

threatened release of hazardous substances at the Site. The United States and Massachusetts entered into a consent decree with CDE in 1992. The 1992 consent decree resolved CDE's liability subject to the governments' ability to further pursue claims under a reservation of rights set forth in paragraph 17 of the 1992 consent decree, authorizing the governments to seek additional relief based on unknown conditions or new information ("reopener"). The proposed Supplemental Consent Decree supplements the 1992 consent decree by requiring CDE to make a cash payment to resolve CDE's liability for response costs and injunctive relief under Sections 106 and 107 of CERCLA and certain claims arising under state law, arising from the reopener set forth in Paragraph 17 of the 1992 consent decree.

Under the terms of the Supplemental Consent Decree, CDE will pay $4 million, plus applicable interest, toward the cleanup of the New Bedford Harbor Site (in addition to the approximately $21 million CDE already paid under the 1992 consent decree). CDE's $4 million payment amount was based upon a determination that CDE had limited financial ability to pay for response costs incurred and to be incurred at the Site. CDE's $4 million payment will be split between the United States and the Commonwealth. Specifically, CDE will pay the United States $3.6 million, and CDE will pay the Commonwealth $400,000. The governments have agreed to resolve their claims for all response costs and injunctive relief without new "reopeners" under Sections 106 and 107 of the CERCLA. The governments retain their rights to additional relief for natural resource damages pursuant to a reservation of rights in the 1992 consent decree.

Relatedly, on May 31, 2022, the United States and State of New Jersey lodged a $4 million ability-to-pay consent decree in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey in United States et al. v. Cornell Dubilier Electronics, Inc., Civil Action No. 2:22-cv-03245 (D.N.J.), relating to the Woodbrook Road Dump Superfund Site in South Plainfield, New Jersey. This consent decree, along with the Supplemental Consent Decree, resolve CDE's liability for response costs in connection with both the Woodbrook Road Site and New Bedford Harbor Site, respectively.
