SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background: The NITRD Subcommittee of the National Science and Technology Council coordinates multiagency R&D programs to help ensure continued U.S. leadership in networking and information technology, satisfy the needs of the Federal Government for advanced networking and information technology, and accelerate development and deployment of advanced networking and information technology. In 2016, the NITRD Subcommittee released the Federal Big Data Research and Development Strategic Plan. The plan drew upon activities started under the Big Data Research and Development Initiative that the Obama Administration launched in 2012 to harness benefits from the many rich sources of Big Data.

The 2016 strategic plan identified seven strategies representing key areas for Big Data R&D that Federal agencies could use when developing or expanding their individual Big Data R&D plans:

- Strategy 1: Create next-generation capabilities by leveraging emerging Big Data foundations, techniques, and technologies.
- Strategy 2: Support R&D to explore and understand trustworthiness of data and resulting knowledge, make better decisions, enable breakthrough discoveries, and take confident action.
- Strategy 3: Build and enhance research cyberinfrastructure that enables Big Data innovation in support of agency missions.
- Strategy 4: Increase the value of data through policies that promote sharing and management of data.
- Strategy 5: Understand Big Data collection, sharing, and use with regard to privacy, security, and ethics.
- Strategy 6: Improve the national landscape for Big Data education and training to fulfill increasing demand for both deep analytical talent and analytical capacity for the broader workforce.
- Strategy 7: Create and enhance connections in the national Big Data innovation ecosystem.

In the decade since the Big Data Research and Development Initiative was launched, significant progress has been made in many research areas, and a Big Data innovation ecosystem continues to evolve among Federal agencies, leading to enhanced knowledge discovery and more informed decision-making. Instrumented systems and environments are becoming the norm, large numbers of heterogeneous sensors and sensor networks are being deployed to collect vast amounts of data, and new capabilities are emerging to integrate and organize this information in a timely fashion. There have been significant changes in the ways data are captured, used, stored, and shared.

In response, the NITRD BD IWG is revisiting the strategies listed in the original plan to identify areas that should continue to be priority areas for federally funded research, new areas of risk or opportunity, and options for leveraging collaborations with other segments of the data innovation ecosystem to accelerate innovation, improve inclusive and equitable access, and broaden participation in Big Data R&D.

Objectives: The NITRD NCO seeks input on potential revisions to the 2016 Federal Big Data Research and Development Strategic Plan to reflect priorities related to Big Data R&D. Responders are asked to answer one or more of the following questions in response to the RFI:

1. What areas of research or topics of the 2016 Federal Big Data Research and Development Strategic Plan should continue to be a priority for federally funded research and require continued Federal R&D investments? What areas of research or topics of the plan no longer need to be prioritized for federally funded research?

2. What challenges or objectives not included in the 2016 Federal Big Data Research and Development Strategic Plan should be strategic priorities for federally funded Big Data R&D? Discuss what new capabilities would be desired, what objectives should guide such research, and why those capabilities and objectives should be strategic priorities.

3. What are emerging and future scientific and technical challenges and opportunities that are central to enabling extraction of knowledge and insight from Big Data across the data lifecycle (including capabilities for collection, storage, access, analysis, and reuse of Big Data)? Which of the challenges and opportunities are still appropriate for Federal research funding?

4. What are appropriate models for partnerships among government, academia, and industry in Big Data, and how can these partnerships be effectively leveraged to enhance innovation in Big Data R&D?

5. How do we nurture, develop, and enhance a diverse, inclusive, and sustainable workforce of cyberinfrastructure professionals and practitioners for Big Data R&D? What are some effective ways to broaden participation in Big Data R&D?

6. What are the future national-level use cases that will drive future federally funded Big Data R&D? Please describe these use cases and applicable research that the R&D will drive. Are there other industry or international initiatives that are synergistic with federally funded Big Data research?
