Analysis of Proposed Consent Order To Aid Public Comment

The Federal Trade Commission ("FTC" or "Commission") has accepted, subject to final approval, an agreement containing a consent order from The Bountiful Company ("Bountiful"). The proposed consent order ("proposed order") has been placed on the public record for thirty days for receipt of comments from interested persons. Comments received during this period will become part of the public record. After 30 days, the Commission will again review the agreement and the comments received and will decide whether it should withdraw from the agreement and take appropriate action or make final the agreement's proposed order.

This matter involves Bountiful's alleged manipulation of the Amazon.com product pages for a number of its Nature's Bounty and Sundown brand dietary supplement products. Bountiful is a vendor to Amazon, Inc., which allows its vendors to create or submit requests to create "variation" relationships between products sold on Amazon.com that are substantially similar, like a shirt which is available in different sizes and colors. The product detail page of products that are in a variation relationship displays the total number of ratings and reviews, the average star rating, and the individual reviews for all the products in the variation relationship. All the products in a variation relationship also share any "#1 Best Seller" or "Amazon's Choice" badges.

According to the Commission's proposed complaint, during 2020 and 2021, Bountiful submitted requests to Amazon to create numerous variation relationships involving products with different formulations. The proposed complaint quotes a Bountiful employee explaining that they did this with new products to "try and ramp them faster as they were NOT selling and we wanted to give them a little boost in R[atings]&R[evIEWS] to gain visibility and allow them to also borrow the 'amazon choice' badge and best seller badge which worked."

The proposed complaint alleges that Bountiful violated Sections 5(a) and 12 of the FTC Act by misrepresenting that: (a) the apparent reviewers of certain of its products sold on Amazon.com had used and endorsed the products; (b) certain of its products sold on Amazon.com had received the numbers of customer ratings appearing on their Amazon.com product pages; (c) certain of its products sold on Amazon.com had obtained the average star ratings displayed on their Amazon.com product pages; (d) certain of its products sold on Amazon.com were number one best sellers; and (e) certain of its products sold on Amazon.com had earned an Amazon's Choice badge.

The proposed order contains provisions designed to prevent Bountiful from engaging in similar acts and practices in the future and to provide monetary relief.

Provision I prohibits Bountiful from making any misrepresentation about or through the ratings, reviews, badges, or endorsements of any of its products or services, including false claims that someone reviewed or used the product or service or about the number of ratings or reviews the product or service has, its average star rating, its having earned an Amazon's Choice badge, or its being a best seller. Provision II prohibits Bountiful from distorting or otherwise misrepresenting what consumers think of its products or services by creating relationships between different products sold online or by procuring, suppressing, boosting, organizing, selectively publishing, up-voting, down-voting, or editing consumer reviews or ratings of its products or services.

Provision III requires Bountiful to pay the Commission $600,000 within eight days of the effective date of the order. Provision IV sets out additional requirements related to the monetary relief.

Provisions V through VIII of the proposed order are reporting and compliance provisions. Provision V requires acknowledgement of the order and dissemination of the order now and in the future to persons with responsibilities relating to the subject matter of the order. Provision VI ensures notification to the FTC of changes in corporate status and mandates that the company submit an initial compliance report to the FTC. Provision VII requires the company to create and retain certain documents relating to its compliance with the order. Provision VIII mandates that the company make available to the FTC information or subsequent compliance reports, as requested. Provision IX states that the proposed order will remain in effect for 20 years, with certain exceptions.

The purpose of this analysis is to facilitate public comment on the proposed order. It is not intended to constitute an official interpretation of the complaint or proposed order, or to modify in any way the proposed order's terms.

By direction of the Commission.

April J. Tabor,
Secretary.
