Description

The cultural item was removed from the Haines Borough, AK. A drum was likely collected by Charlie Goldstein (1869-1961), who transferred it to his sister, Belle Simpson (nee Goldstein, 1885-1985), proprietor of The Nugget Shop in Juneau, Alaska. Around 1967, Morton D. May acquired the drum (along with other items in the Belle Simpson collection), and in 1970, William P. Palmer, III acquired it from May through Stendahl Galleries of Hollywood, CA. In 1982, Palmer bequeathed the drum to the University of Maine and it became part of the Hudson Museum's holdings. The one object of cultural patrimony is a Bentwood Box Drum (HM5523).

In June of 2018, a delegation from the Central Council of the Tlingit & Haida Indian Tribes came to the Hudson Museum for consultation. Subsequently, the Hudson Museum determined that this drum is affiliated with both the Central Council of the Tlingit & Haida Indian Tribes and the Ghaanaxhteidí clan of the Chilkat Indian Village (Klukwan).

Cultural Affiliation

The cultural item in this notice is connected to one or more identifiable earlier groups, tribes, peoples, or cultures. There is a relationship of shared group identity between the identifiable earlier groups, tribes, peoples, or cultures and one or more Indian Tribes or Native Hawaiian organizations. The following types of information were used to reasonably trace the relationship: anthropological, geographical, historical, oral traditional, and other relevant information.
