II. Background

Legionella pneumophila is a bacterium that is often identified as the causative agent of Legionnaires' Disease, which is a disease acquired by inhaling water droplets contaminated with Legionella bacteria. Legionellae are found naturally in freshwater environments but can become a health concern when they grow and spread in human-made building water systems like cooling towers. Cooling towers are a potential breeding ground for L. pneumophila and subsequent aerosolization of L. pneumophila can occur if cooling towers are not properly disinfected and maintained. Following a Legionnaires' disease outbreak in New York City in 2015, New York State began requiring cooling towers to be registered with the state and monitored and treated for L. pneumophila. However, EPA currently does not have guidance providing a framework for those seeking to register antimicrobial products with public health claims to reduce Legionella in cooling tower water. EPA received requests to develop a test method and guidance for registration of antimicrobial products intended to reduce L. pneumophila in water used in cooling tower systems. There is significant interest from stakeholders and the public in the availability of antimicrobial products with these claims.

III. Guidance Documents Do Not Contain Binding Requirements

As guidance, these documents are not binding on the Agency or any outside parties, and the Agency may depart from these documents where circumstances warrant and without prior notice. While EPA has made every effort to ensure the accuracy of the discussion in the guidance, the obligations of EPA and the regulated community are determined by statutes, regulations, or other legally binding documents. In the event of a conflict between the discussion in the guidance documents and any statute, regulation, or other legally binding document, the guidance documents will not be controlling.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

The EEOC is seeking public comments on all aspects of its proposed “Enforcement Guidance on Harassment in the Workplace” (proposed guidance) pursuant to 29 CFR part 1695. The proposed guidance presents a legal analysis of standards for harassment and employer liability applicable to claims of harassment under the equal employment opportunity statutes enforced by the Commission. The Commission posted and requested public input on a proposed guidance on workplace harassment in January 2017, which was not finalized.

The contents of the final guidance document will not have the force and effect of law and are not meant to bind the public in any way. The document is intended only to provide clarity to the public regarding Commission policies and existing requirements under the law. The standards discussed under EEOC-enforced laws will not necessarily apply to allegations of unlawful harassment under other Federal laws or under State or local laws.
