Representative Member selection criteria includes but is not limited to: years of experience effectively representing stakeholder groups, industries, or constituencies; demonstrated advocacy success; strong communication and analytical skills; established credibility within their representative sector; and ability to balance constituent interests with committee objectives. Nominees being considered for an SGE position will be subject to a conflict-of-interest review in accordance with government ethics law and regulation prior to their appointment and will be chosen for their ability and to provide independent expert advice to the Agency. SGEs will be appointed based on the individual's ability to provide independent advice to the Agency. SGE selection criteria includes but is not limited to: years of experience as a technical advisor in the candidate's specialized field; track record of publishing research findings while working in academia; and ability to balance independent expertise with collaborative committee participation.

To the extent permitted by FACA and other laws, the Committee membership shall also be consistent with achieving the greatest impact, scope, and credibility among diverse stakeholders. In making such appointments, HHS shall ensure a fair balance among viewpoints from all relevant stakeholders, broad geographic representation—including both urban and rural perspectives—and diversity across demographic characteristics, including race, ethnicity, sex, disability status, and socioeconomic background. HHS will also seek representation from stakeholders across relevant sectors, including patients, providers, payers, academia, community-based organizations, and regional, State and local government. HHS reserves the discretion to appoint Committee members from outside the pool of respondents to this notice if such appointments are necessary to fulfill specific expertise requirements in a manner to ensure an appropriate balance of membership.
