Title: Reporting Requirements for Disability-Related Complaints.

Type of Request: Renewal of information collections.

Background: The Department's regulation 14 CFR 382.157 requires U.S. and foreign air carriers operating to, from, and within the United States that conduct passenger-carrying service with at least one aircraft with a designed seating capacity of more than 60 passengers (large aircraft) to record disability-related complaints that they receive. For the purposes of the requirement, a disability-related complaint means a specific written expression of dissatisfaction received from, or submitted on behalf, of an individual with a disability concerning a difficulty associated with the person's disability, which the person experienced when using or attempting to use an air carrier's or foreign carrier's services. The carriers must also categorize these complaints according to the type of disability and nature of complaint, prepare a summary report annually of the complaints received during the preceding calendar year, submit the report to the Department's Office of Aviation Consumer Protection, and retain copies of correspondence and records of action taken on the reported complaints for three years. Carriers are required to submit their annual report to the Department by the last Monday in January of each year for complaints received during the prior calendar year.

Carriers report annually the information described in Appendix A to 14 CFR 382 "Report of Disability-Related Complaint Data" (Reporting Form). DOT regulations provide that carriers must submit their reports using the World Wide Web unless approved by DOT to use another method. See 14 CFR 382.157. The Department intends to use its newly modernized Aviation Complaint, Enforcement, and Reporting System (ACERS), a web-based portal, to accept annual disability reports from carriers beginning with annual reports for calendar year 2025 operations. These reports will be due January 26, 2026.

To file a report using ACERS, an authorized air carrier representative will use the organization's ACERS account information to log into ACERS and access the web-based version of the Reporting Form to enter the information, including contact information, complaint data, and certification information. Then, the representative will click "Submit" which will electronically transmit the report to the Department.

Among other things, ACERS was developed to offer air carriers and other industry users improved disability reporting efficiencies and capabilities. More specifically, ACERS will enable a carrier receiving "0" disability-related complaints during a particular reporting year to, with one click, auto-populate each field of the report with a "0" instead of selecting each field separately and then entering a "0." In addition, ACERS allows carrier representatives to save their progress on partially completed reports, so that they may return to edit and complete their report without losing information entered previously.

Reporting carriers must be registered with the Department to receive a log-in for ACERS prior to filing a report using the system. Information collection activities, including burden estimates, for air travel industry representatives and other users to create and manage ACERS accounts and to use ACERS functionalities to submit reports, in general, are covered under a separate OMB Control Number (2105-0568) which is valid through August 31, 2027. OMB Control Number 2105-0551, which is addressed by this notice, covers burdens associated with preparing and submitting the annual disability report to the Department. OMB Control Number 2105-0551 is valid through January 31, 2026.

The Department relies on the disability-related complaint information collections primarily to comply with 49 U.S.C. 41705(c)(3), which requires the Secretary of Transportation to "regularly review all complaints received by carriers alleging discrimination on the basis of disability" and "report annually to Congress on the results of such review." The Department may also rely on this information to inform policy and in enforcement matters. The Department publishes the data collected from airlines each year, and the corresponding reports to Congress, on its website at: <https://www.transportation.gov/airconsumer/annual-report-disability-related-air-travel-complaints>.

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (PRA) and its implementing regulations,

5 CFR 1320, et seq., require Federal agencies to issue two notices seeking public comment on information collection activities before OMB may approve paperwork packages. A Federal agency generally cannot conduct or sponsor a collection of information, and the public is generally not required to respond to an information collection, unless it is approved by OMB under the PRA and displays a currently valid OMB Control Number. In addition, notwithstanding any other provisions of law, no person shall generally be subject to monetary penalty for failing to comply with a collection of information if the collection of information does not display a valid OMB Control Number. See 5 CFR 1320.5(a) and 1320.6.

For each information collection, the title, a description of the respondents, and an estimate of the annual recordkeeping and periodic reporting burden are set forth below.

Estimated Burden on Respondents: 0.083 (repeating) hours per complaint (the time it takes for a respondent to retain or save the correspondences and records of action taken on a single disability-related complaint).

Estimated Total Annual Burden: 4,090.17 hours (time it takes for a respondent to retain or save the correspondences and records of action taken on a single disability-related complaints (0.083 (repeating) hours) multiplied by the total number of complaints received during CY 2023 (49,082)).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Introduction

Community banks¹ have an outsized impact on lending and are vital to the strength of the U.S. economy. The OCC has committed to prioritizing reforms targeted at reducing the supervisory and regulatory burden for community banks and exploring efforts to tailor our regulation and supervisory frameworks to better fit their business models and unique risks—better positioning these banks to support their communities and drive economic growth. Many community banks are dependent on third parties to operate effectively and competitively in an increasingly online marketplace. This includes those third parties that provide the comprehensive back-end applications and infrastructure that support the operation and essential functions of one or more of the bank's lines of business, including, for example, through the provision of transaction processing, account management, payments processing, customer relationship management, compliance and reporting, online banking, and other material functions (core service providers). It also includes those third parties who provide other essential functions supporting those core functions, including cloud processing, cloud storage, artificial intelligence, and compliance tools.

The OCC is aware that continued consolidation in the core service provider and other essential third-party service provider markets can result in reduced competitive pressure to provide innovative and effective solutions for community banks; reduced negotiating power for many community banks vis-à-vis their core service providers, resulting in potentially burdensome contractual provisions and bundled products that raise fees; and a sense that many community banks do not believe that their core service providers and other essential third-party service providers are partners committed to their long-term success. According to one survey, for example, the three largest core service providers served more than 70% of depository institutions in 2022, with the largest core service provider alone serving 42% of depository institutions.² At the same time, the OCC is aware that many of these same banks believe these potentially anti-competitive forces are
