Contractors or vendors are individuals or entities that provide goods or services to a recipient or subrecipient in support of a federal program, but do not carry out the federal program itself.

Records also include documentation regarding contracts entered into by recipients and subrecipients with contractors for activities undertaken using funds received from Treasury Departmental Offices financial assistance programs.

Information in such records may include, but is not limited to, the following information: full legal name; unique identifiers or application identification numbers assigned by the recipient, subrecipient or contractor; residential address and contact information; reported income and household financial information; self-attestations, certifications, and signatures; supporting documentation provided by applicants; amounts of assistance awarded or received; periods of assistance, including applicable dates; information about employees or owners of recipients, subrecipients, contractors, or business beneficiaries; and identifying, demographic, and financial information associated with the receipt of or entry into awards, grants, loans, contracts, investments, and other transactions, including Social Security numbers or taxpayer identification numbers.

Treasury would collect such information as necessary for program administration, reporting, audit, compliance, or research and statistical purposes.

RECORD SOURCE CATEGORIES:

The information contained in the system may be provided by recipients, subrecipients, and contractors that managed these programs on their behalf. Recipients include, but are not limited to, states, territories, local governments, Tribes, the freely associated states, and various non-profit and for-profit entities.
