

Potential effects on the built and human environment, including land use, public health and safety, transportation, and infrastructure, will also be considered as part of the Federal, State, and local environmental review processes. The EIS will present the results of these evaluations, providing a transparent comparison of the alternatives and their environmental consequences. Public involvement remains a central component of the review, and input received during scoping will help refine the range of alternatives, identify additional issues for analysis, and ensure that relevant information and studies are incorporated into the EIS.

The information about historic, Tribal and cultural resources and threatened and endangered species within the area potentially affected by the proposed Project will assist the BLM in identifying and evaluating impacts to such resources.

The BLM will consult with Indian Tribal Nations on a government-to-government basis in accordance with E.O. 13175, BLM Manual Section 1780, and other Departmental policies. Tribal concerns, including impacts on Indian trust assets and potential impacts to cultural resources or areas of Tribal concern, will be given due consideration. Federal, State, and local agencies, along with Indian Tribal Nations and other stakeholders that may be interested in or affected by the proposed Project that the BLM is evaluating, are invited to participate in the scoping process and, if eligible, may request or be requested by the BLM to participate in the development of the environmental analysis as a cooperating agency.
