U.S. Treasurer visits Clayton

Purpose of trip is to promote Savings
Bond program.

Spc. Kenneth K. Rockett
Tropic Times staff

FORT CLAYTON – U.S. Army South received a special guest March 25 when the Treasurer of the United States visited Fort Clayton to promote the last Savings Bond Campaign in Panama.

The Honorable Mary Ellen Withrow stopped by Fort Clayton and spoke with USARSO Chief of Staff Col. ??? Negrete discussing the importance of military members' participation in the U.S. Savings Bond program.

Withrow, who was sworn in as the 40th Treasurer of the United States in 1994, is responsible for the operations of the U.S. Mint and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and in addition is the National Honorary Director of the U.S. Savings Bond program. In that capacity Withrow represents the Treasury Secretary to promote the sale of Savings Bonds.

Withrow said that historically, U.S.

service members have contributed immensely throughout the years to the program, starting in World War II, when Savings Bonds were known as War Bonds and people bought them to help with the war effort.

Today the program continues to be popular, as it is a good, sure way to invest money, Withrow said.

"There are a lot of choices out there," Withrow said. "But the thing that is attractive about Savings Bonds is the fact that you don't have to have much money and you know you're going to make money on this no matter what."

"for a little bit of money you can own a part of the United States."

Withrow said she enjoyed her time in Panama and said that during her years as Treasurer she has had many nice experiences during her visits to military installations. She said she plans on visiting USARSO again after the command moves to Puerto Rico in July.

According to Withrow, 55 million Americans hold $186 billion in Savings Bonds. She said there are now several options and even an internet location to help out. The payroll deduction is simple and as Withrow puts it,

Howard to host Heritage Celebration

story by Tech. Sgt. Rick Burnham
24th Wing Public Affairs Office

HOWARD AFB – Chances are, if Hap Arnold, Charles Howard, or Frank Albrook were here for next week's Heritage Celebration, they'd be impressed.

More than 50 years after the the Air Force became a separate service, and more than 80 years after U.S. military aviation first came to the isthmus of Panama, airmen are remembering the courage and sacrifices of their forefathers, and paying tribute to those pioneers of airpower who paved the way for the blue suiters of today.

Those early airmen, such as Arnold, the Air Force's first four-star general; Howard, for whom Howard Air Force Base is named; and Albrook, for whom the former Albrook Air Force Station is named; set the tone for the success of today's Air Force, the premier Air and Space Force in the world.

Which is exactly why the base is setting aside three days next week, April 8 - 10, to honor their accomplishments, and the accomplishments of the many blue suiters who have served side-by-side in this region over the years, said Col. Gregory L. Trebon, 24th Wing commander.

"Thousands of Air Force officers and enlisted, such as General Arnold, Major Howard and Lieutenant Albrook, have ran the race for decades here in Panama," the colonel said. "We owe it to them to finish this race in style, to proudly carry the torch into the stadium. What we're about to do is not only for us, but for them as well."

Those words were echoed by Chief Master Sgt. Curtis L. Brownhill, 24th Wing command chief master sergeant.

"Those who came before us here in Panama, beginning with the courageous men and women who carved Howard and Albrook out of the Panamanian jungle, to those who proudly served from those installations for the next 60 years," he said. "Their 'standard for excellence' has become our heritage. It is our professional obligation to represent them and to honor them."

Easter Sunrise Service

FORT CLAYTON — Chap. (Col.) Conrad N. Walker (retired) will be the guest speaker at the Easter Sunrise Service 6 a.m., Sunday at the main soccer field.

Walker, a master parachutist having made over 1,000 jumps to include one combat jump, became an Army Chaplain in 1962.

He was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star with Valor, Legion of Merit and a Purple Heart for his pastoral mission under hostile conditions in Vietnam.

Walker retired from active duty Nov. 1, 1990, to become the pastor at MacArthur Park Lutheran Church, San Antonio, Texas. After serving as a pastor for five years, he and his wife began new work in retreat ministries.

Walker played football for the University of Washington Huskies and had the opportunity to play professional football upon graduation, but followed the call to enter seminary to Did she say yes?

In front of a large audience, Spc. Ryan Fintel proposed to Petty Officer Sonja Eckhardt during Party in the Park III, Friday on Jarman Field. And without hesitation, she said "Of course." The newly engaged couple met here in Panama and have been dating for the past seven months. Good luck to you both.

treat set for 4 p.m. Thursday near the flagpoles in front of Building 703, are designed to do just that. Later that evening, a "Heritage Celebration" will be held in the base theater. The ceremony will include remarks by a guest speaker and a multi-media presentation depicting the history and heritage of Howard AFB.

The events continue the next day with an early-morning "Remembrance Recall Ceremony" on the Howard flightline. The ceremony will pay respects to those Howard men and women who gave the ultimate sacrifice while serving in the Republic of Panama.

Later that morning, two sporting events will honor the namesakes of the two U.S. Air Force installations in Panama. The Lt. Frank P. Albrook Memorial Olympics, hosted by the 24th Civil Engineer Squadron, will kick off at 10 a.m. At the same time, the Maj. Charles H. Howard Memorial Golf Tournament will begin with a shotgun start at the HOROKO Golf Course.

Later that evening, the Hap Arnold Memorial Reception will be held in the Howard Wing Events Center.

The reception is reserved for distinguished visitors only. As was the case on the first day, the second day will end with a Heritage Celebration in the base theater.

The third and final day of the celebration will begin with a fishing tournament, starting at 6 a.m., at the Gamboa public boat ramp. Prizes will be awarded the group of anglers who bring in the heaviest string of 10 Peacock Bass.

Then, beginning at 5 p.m. on the Howard flightline, the culmination of the Heritage Celebration will feature a concert and fireworks display. "10,000 Maniacs," in addition to a local band, will perform as part of the festivities.

Dislocation Allowance facts

FORT CLAYTON (Accounting and Finance Office) — The purpose of the Dislocation Allowance is to partially reimburse a member for the expenses incurred when relocating the member's household. This allowance is in addition to all other Permanent Change of Station entitlements. DLA is paid based on the member's pay grade and dependency status. The current DLA totals are based on two-and-a-half months of the standard basic allowance for housing rates.

Members are entitled to one DLA during a fiscal year unless the Secretary of the Air Force approves exception. For those members who have processed Early Return of Dependent Orders during the current fiscal year, they will not be entitled to an additional DLA if they PCS during the same fiscal year of the ERD (Oct. 1, 1998, through Sept. 30, 1999).

When a member is married to another military member, only one will receive DLA. If married members move independently of each other, both members may be entitled to DLA in their own right. Contact Accounting and Finance for more guidance and details. DLA is considered a travel entitlement and is paid upon completion of a member/dependent travel voucher at the new Permanent Duty Station. DLA is not paid in advance but if funds are needed prior to completion of the travel voucher, cash advances using the Government VISA card are authorized. The 1999 DLA rates are as follows:

Rodman transfers as "a virtual island of green"

Commander, Navy Region Southeast PAO

RODMAN NS — Visit any cultural hotspot and you will find a vestige of who was there before: Spain's New World is discernibly Spanish, for example, and French cuisine can be found throughout Southeast Asia and the Caribbean.

However, when the last Americans depart Panama, they will leave mostly physical remnants: the Panama Canal; the Bridge of the Americas; and the modern facilities at a dozen former U.S. military installations.

At Naval Station Rodman, which is set to officially transfer to the Government of Panama (GOP) on April 30, departing sailors will help close a 150-year-old partnership by leaving a precious gift: an environmentally-protected area that has evolved as a virtual island of green.

Like New York's Central Park, the base is a oasis in the heart of one of the busiest commercial-industrial areas in the world.

Nestled on the west bank where the Canal meets the Pacific, Rodman's 1,144 acres of thick, tropical habitat serve to protect and safeguard scores of endangered animal and plant species. Rodman remains a safe haven for titi monkeys, coetmundis, mahogany trees, reptiles, and native and migratory birds.

"This base presents something of an environmental jewel in that our operations have always accommodated a rich and diverse array of species; especially in the San Juan Hill area," said Capt. R. W. Bennett, the base commanding officer.

That biodiversity has been protected by a long-standing partnership between the Navy and the Nature Conservancy, in conjunction with Panama's National Association for the Conservation of Nature.

Not surprisingly, the station was among the very first overseas military installations to receive Legacy Resource Management Program funding for its natural resource program. Those funds, awarded shortly after the program was established by Congress in 1991, bolstered the local effort to provide additional wildlife and vegetation inventories and to map sensitive plant and animal species.

A row of mahogany trees stand at the foot of Rodman's San Juan Hill. For decades, the area has served as a haven for monkeys, coetmundis, and many species of birds and reptiles.

Prior to initiating cleanups aimed at ensuring compliance with the Final Governing Standards and, to satisfy special Operation of the Navy Instructions (OPNAVINST 5090.1b), the Rodman team worked for several months to push the transfer of nearby Arraijan Farm.

"Coordinating the transfer of an 807-acre fuel storage and distribution complex, one with a fuel-handling capacity of almost 50 million gallons, and with varying levels of fuel in the soil and sludge around 36 separate tanks, was a challenge," said Michael Stanka, Rodman's environmental director.

"The extensive sampling needed to assess the area definitely required a joint effort by our people and the contractor." He added that working with a mature and experienced staff, comprised entirely of Panamanian specialists; had eased the demands of coordinating both the Arraijan transfer and more recent projects.

Alcidez Sanchiz, 40, who has directed several environmental programs at the base, admitted feeling a personal, vested interest in the quality of cleanup performed in his home country.

"We are doing quality work here because we love Rodman and because we have worked in the environmental area for some time," said Sanchiz, who studied electrical engineering at Panama City's Universidad Tecnologica de Palma.

"Our standards should not present a concern for anyone as we are well trained for these jobs. I, for example, have traveled to the United States on several occasions to attend professional seminars and DoD-sponsored symposiums and training events there. I was also serving as Rodman's environmental coordinator in a collateral duty capacity from 1989 to 1992."

In addition to Sanchiz's influence, environmental staffers Roberto Rodriguez, 54, and Guillermo Wallace, 41, are managing the day-to-day operations like recycling and solid waste disposal. Because port services have been discontinued, the team no longer tends the hazardous waste warehouse nor accepts hazardous waste from transient ships.

Rodman's Executive Director Nancy Trotter, 39, who was raised in the Canal Zone, said sailors should be proud of the overall effort and manner in which the Navy is conducting the transfer.

"We've been completely forthcoming and helpful in every environmental meeting or discussion; especially with members of the community and with representatives of the Panamanian government," said Trotter.

"Aside from our treaty requirement to provide the GOP an Installation Condition Report, we've opened our books on numerous occasions, and we feel that has contributed to a strong relationship."

When Capt. Bennett was asked if he foresaw any transfer impediments in store for Rodman, he replied, "Quite the contrary, the transfer of Rodman is a 'win-win' for both the Government of Panama and the Navy. The GOP receives an operational port facility already generating revenues for Panama and our departure should therefore be seamless and on schedule."

JIATF-South drives on, continues with missions

HOWARD AFB (JIATF-SOUTH) — The Joint Interagency Task Force-South will continue its coordination of the counterdrug effort in South America until April 1, and then will assist Joint Interagency Task Force-East in taking over the "Source Zone" mission until May 1.

To many observers here at Howard — and those at Key West, Florida — who stand ready to take on this expanded role, the end is very near.

For the military, civilian and contract professionals completing the mission, there is still much to be done before the final page in this chapter is turned.

During the last week in February, two small but important observer teams came to Howard to ensure the transition plan was on track and executable. Both the U.S. Southern Command Inspector General Team and the General Accounting Office (better known as "The GAO") will carry back the word that the JIATF-South Team is "sprinting across the finish line" in the marathon effort to complete the terms of the Torrijos-Carter Treaty while preserving the ability to successfully complete the mission.

One segment of the team garnered especially glowing comments.

Both the USSOUTHCOM IG and the GAO cited JIATF-South's efforts at "Operational Improvements" as a "benchmark" effort.

Operational Improvements is a JIATF-South term for a systemic effort which applies a mixture of the brand of Total Quality Management used in the Air Force, with the discipline of Operations Research methodology employed in the Navy and Marine Corps, and the planning model used by the Army.

The particular applications being developed in JIATF-South also emphasizes information-age business applications — particularly "push technology."

In short, putting data base management and web page distribution together puts extremely accurate information in the hands of decision makers on a shortened time cycle. The information is used for a range of decisions from operational targeting to resource management goals.

Objectives and metrics "cascade" down from the national level to USSOUTHCOM, then from the JIATF to the units executing the mission.

This keeps efforts focused on activities dictated by The Office of National Drug Control Policy. For those with access to the classified branch of the MILNET (known as the SIPRNET), J-2, J-3, J-8 and the Surgeon General's links off the JIATF-South Home Page offer great detail on this effort.

Col. Barry Chisholm, the director of JIATF-South, said he was pleased with all the results of both visits, but "especially pleased" that this effort got such favorable comments.

"It just became possible to pull the elements together this fiscal year. It requires a team effort — technical expertise, programming skills, a high level of communications support plus a commitment to progress. That really came together in about October of last year. The efforts have been embraced across the JIATF."

In J-3, there is a specific branch to manage the O & I effort. Lt. Col. Greg Dunlap, USMC (the Director of Operations), said he was fortunate to bring an O & I team on board, despite the impending mission transition and organizational closure.

He added, "We were also fortunate in the personalities we picked up to complete this task . . . and to already have a Watch Branch on board which accepted the mission when many others would have resisted."

The O & I personalities Lt. Col. Dunlap refers to are:

Scott Johnston, an MS Access certified solution provider who had almost ten years in Army intelligence before joining the JIATF-South team in October of 1998, Michael Schulman, a retired 24th Wing Vice Commander with more than a decade of counterdrug experience in theater, and Capt. Anthony "Mel" Tormey, the branch chief.

Tormey came from Tinker AFB in November of 1998 where he was the 552nd Ops Group Quality Officer. He is an experienced AWACs crewmember with 18 years of service under his belt.

Tormey also praised the Watch Branch members, saying they "changed the majority of their standing procedures for log creation in order to create the data base (DB) which starts the improved operations cycle."

Tormey is also quick to point out that while Lt. Col. Dunlap set up a separate O & I section, similar efforts are under way in J-2 (Intelligence), J-8 (Budget and Programatics) as well as the Surgeon General's Office.

The interaction between independent programs throughout the JIATF has accelerated development and created a natural forum for cross-checking ideas and applications.

Beyond his regular duties, Ron Hearn (the J-8 O & I Specialist) has been active in the J-3 programming effort, while Air Force Staff Sgt. Lisa Simmons (who manages the advanced J-2 DB) has been a consultant and mentor to us as well.

Tormey added that Staff Sgt. Simmons has won respect across the counterdrug community for her work on the Consolidated Counterdrug Data Base (CCDB). "We're very lucky to have had her here to shorten our learning curve." Meanwhile, Capt. (USN) Timothy Sternberg, the JIATF-S Surgeon General, has personally set the standard on the "push" end of the cycle.

His JIATF-S SG's Home Page, with over a hundred linked pages, literally chronicles the status of medical care available to those active in CD efforts across our AOO.

"His links have made accurate medical planning for deployments light-years easier" Tormey said. "Our efforts will leverage his web model, while his office plans to apply our data base program in the next phase. It's good now — it's going to be great soon."

Chisholm summed it up by saying, "This specialized effort is just an example of what every member of this team has been doing — transitioning the source zone mission to JIATF-East with the highest standards . . . and a great deal of pride. It is our visible legacy and in that respect the benchmark status is most appropriate."

Precautions for salmonella and Easter eggs

story by Staff Sgt T. Forrest Kays
24th Medical Group

HOWARD AFB — The story of the Easter Bunny bringing eggs to children comes from a German fable. In Switzerland (land of the Cuckoo clock), children receive eggs from the Cuckoo. But several precautions for handling eggs are necessary before the fun begins.

In the 1970s, the intact egg was considered sterile. With today's changes in chicken husbandry, all eggs are considered potentially contaminated with salmonella. Other sources of salmonella include undercooked chicken, pork, beef, rodents, and pets such as iguanas, turtles, and birds. Great care should be used when handling pets. Parents must ensure children wash their hands thoroughly after playing with them. On rare occasions, salmonella outbreaks have occurred due to unchlorinated municipal water supplies.

This germ is present in less than one percent of all intact eggs. If a contaminated egg is improperly cooked, or is stored incorrectly, the person ingesting the egg may potentially experience symptoms like headaches, fever, nausea with associated abdominal cramping, diarrhea and vomiting.

Fortunately salmonellosis (the illness caused by salmonella) is rarely fatal. Even after recovery, a victim may pass the germ for several weeks without showing any signs of illness.

Just because there are a few "bad eggs" out there does not mean that the Easter Egg Hunt should be canceled. Proper handling of eggs before and after processing can prevent a foodborne illness outbreak. The germ will not grow when temperatures are below 40 F; therefore, keep eggs constantly refrigerated.

The germ is killed at 160 F. It will be killed even at temperatures as low as 140 F if held for 3.5 minutes. That is one reason why foods to be served hot need a holding temperature of 140 F or higher.

Eggs can be served many ways thus requiring different cooking times. Egg whites will coagulate between 144 to 149 F. The yolk will coagulate between 149 to 158 F.

Hard-boiled eggs with the white set and the yolk thickened (no longer runny but not hard) have reached an internal temperature high enough to kill salmonella. Since Easter eggs tend to be handled more than the typical egg, there are several precautions to follow:

- Wash hands before handling eggs.
- Use only clean, uncracked eggs to boil.
- If not coloring the eggs after cooking, immediately refrigerate them in their original carton. This reduces the chance of cracking or taking up food odors.
- Before coloring, check the eggs to assure there are no cracks.

To boil, put the eggs in a pan covered with one inch of water. Bring the water to a boil for seven minutes. Remove from the heat. Crack an egg to see how well the yolk has set. The yolk at this point may only be soft set. It may take an additional 20 minutes in the hot water (off the heating element) to completely set the yolk. Periodically, during this time, crack open another egg and check it. Once the yolk has set, it is time to color the eggs.

Coloring can be a fun time for children! Be sure to use dyes that are safe for consumption. Coloring should be accomplished in water warmer than the eggs.

Once the eggs are dyed, return them to their original carton for storage in the refrigerator.

There are several natural dyes that can be made at home. Add a little vinegar to the water to help set the color.

Natural Dyes:

- Red cabbage leaves = blue.
- Fresh beets, cranberries, or raspberries = pinkish red.
- Yellow onion skin = orange.
- Ground turmeric = yellow.
- Spinach and parsley = pale green

Wait until the last minute before hiding the eggs. Eggs should not be out of refrigeration for more than two hours.

Check the eggs for cracks and be sure to wash hands before handling the eggs. Avoid placing eggs where pets or wild animals may have defecated.

Also avoid areas where lawn chemicals have been sprayed. Once the eggs have been found, either eat or refrigerate immediately.

Easter is an important religious holiday as well as fun time of the year.

Do not spoil it with a foodborne illness. Questions about food preparation or food/waterborne diseases may be answered by contacting Public Health at 284-4727.

Silence is a Virtue in the Eyes of the Law

story by Capt. Art Rabin
Trial Defense Service

"You do not have to answer my questions or say anything. Anything you say or do can be used as evidence against you in a criminal trial. You have the right to talk privately to a lawyer before, during and after questioning and to have a lawyer present with you during questioning. This lawyer can be a civilian lawyer of your own choice at no expense to the government or a military lawyer detailed for you at no expense to you. If you are willing to discuss the offense(s) of which you are suspected, with or without a lawyer present, you have the right to stop answering questions at anytime, or to speak privately with a lawyer before answering further, even if you sign the waiver of your rights."

If you hear this rights warning from a CID agent, a Military Policeman, your first sergeant, your commander, or any other official investigator, then you are a "suspect" in a criminal investigation. Unless you are a lawyer experienced in the complexities of criminal law, you should heed the warning and remain silent.

It is always wiser to stop the interview at this point and consult with a defense attorney. Once you make a statement, oral or written, it cannot be taken back.

Even in situations where it seems appropriate to waive your rights and to make a statement, you should always consult with an attorney first. If, after consultation, you believe it is in your best interest to make a statement, you can do so at that time. It will not be too late.

You should be unafraid to invoke your right to remain silent. The Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution gives you the absolute privilege to do so. Once you invoke your rights, Article 31(b) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (U.C.M.J.), states that no one subject to the Code can request or order you to make a statement. In fact, any attempt to do so is criminally punishable by Article 98, U.C.M.J.

If court-martialed, your silence cannot be used as evidence. Military judges routinely give strict instructions to court-martial members that they cannot hold an accused's silence against him.

The law recognizes that just because a person wishes to consult with an attorney, this does not mean they are guilty of anything. Most of the time, the accused person just wants to make an informed decision about his legal rights.

Your choice to waive or invoke your rights should never be swayed by public opinion or "barracks lawyers."

All reasonable people know that just because an allegation is leveled against someone, it does not mean that they are automatically guilty. After all, no one is immune from false accusations.

The reason you should always invoke your right to remain silent is that "anything you say or do can be used as evidence against you." Most of the time, your uncounseled, unadvised, uninformed statement to investigators will not "clear anything up." Often, it will do more harm than good.

During any CID or MPI interrogation, you will be subjected to various interrogation techniques by a professional investigator. The investigator's goal is rarely to assist you in clearing yourself; and usually it is to obtain incriminating evidence against you.

Remember, the investigator would not have read you rights if he did not already suspect that you committed the crime.

If you hear this rights warning from a CID agent, a Military Policeman, your first sergeant, your commander, or any other official investigator, then you are a "suspect" in a criminal investigation. Unless you are a lawyer experienced in the complexities of criminal law, you should heed the warning and remain silent.

that by making an immediate statement or by cooperating with investigators (without counsel) their actions will "clear things up" or help them receive a lighter punishment. By law, no investigating officer, CID agent, or MPI investigator can promise you a certain disposition of your case or a lesser punishment. The decision to court-martial you, to give you an Article 15, or some other punishment is totally up to your chain of command.

Sometimes the decision extends all the way up to the commanding general. In the process, any lower level of command may be overruled by a higher level.

In short, no one individual can guarantee that your cooperation will get you anything other than someone's personal gratitude for making their investigation

Additionally, if you are suspected of an offense you should never discuss the case with friends, doctors, psychiatrists, counselors, or even family members. One of these persons could be called as a witness against you to testify about some admission they claim you made, even if you deny this later.

All of these misconceptions may be easily cleared up during consultation with an attorney. So, if you wish to speak with an attorney, to whom do you turn? In one word — TDS.

The U.S. Army Trial Defense Service (TDS) is the only Army organization responsible for advising and representing accused soldiers. TDS is a separate and independent branch of the Judge Advocate General's Corps. TDS attorneys are not assigned to the local command. TDS is also not subordinated to the command's Staff Judge Advocate's Office.

The TDS Panama Field Office consists of two defense attorneys, both licensed U.S. lawyers and former prosecutors. TDS is located in Building 154 on Fort Clayton. You may call TDS during normal duty hours at 288-3636 or fax documents to 288-6258. Speaking with a TDS attorney is not a privilege subject to command cancellation. It is a right you enjoy as a U.S. Army soldier.

TDS attorneys are legally responsible for representing the sole interests of their clients — not the command's. We fully advise our clients about their rights and all aspects of the investigation. We also zealously represent our clients in all proceedings against them.

Our mission is to obtain the best result possible in every case. All statements during counseling are protected by the attorney-client confidentiality. Ethically and legally, our loyalty is always to our clients first. Our motto is "Defending Those Who Defend America."

TDS strongly believes that it behooves all soldiers to know their legal rights. So, if you are accused of a crime and read your legal rights, always ask to speak with a TDS attorney before making any statements. Remember that "silence is a virtue in the eyes of the law."

Boy Scouts host 46th

Rich in history and tradition, the Cayuco Race brings various participants for three days of serious, fun competition.

story and photos by Sgt. Paul Bouchard
Tropic Times Editor

GATUN LOCKS — The last Ocean-to-Ocean Cayuco Race hosted by the Boy Scouts of America took place March 26-28, with more than 40 teams taking part in the three-day competition.

But though 1999 marks the end of the Boy Scouts involvement in this popular event, Dr. Marcos D. Ostrander, the Cayuco Race race master, was confident in saying that the race will continue on an annual basis with a new sponsor.

Rich tradition, history

The Cayuco Race, whereby participants, often in teams of four, paddle cayucos through the Panama Canal, is a sporting and community event rich in tradition and history. Take the cayucos for example. These canoe-like boats made of mahogany, pine or cedar, are often passed down through family and friends, sometimes spanning a generation or two.

Also, the participants themselves are also part of the races's tradition. For example, some team members meet just once a year (some traveling from abroad) to take part in the race.

"We have a lot of support for this event," said Rick Williams, the Boy Scouts Post 21 advisor. "Parents support is a lot, the spectators come out in large numbers, the competitors get all geared up. This is an event that brings the community together. We're talking about 46 years of tradition."

Bill McGann, the assistant race master, reiterated similar sentiments by saying, "The interest in the Cayuco Race is incredible."

Taken seriously

Cayuco Race participants and spectators take this three-day competition very seriously. For example, many racers spend numerous hours sanding, fixing and painting their cayucos in an effort to make them fast, sleek and as attractive as possible.

Another example — each race day begins with an invocation, asking for good weather and no injuries.

And then there's the very language and terminology of this competition. Cayuco Race lovers are quick to point out that the cayuco is not a canoe or a boat, it's simply a cayuco. They'll also remind you that the cayuco is not rowed but paddled.

Another serious aspect of this annual race is the very logistics that make the race possible. Numerous volunteers, a race coordinator, race master, assistant race master, awards coordinator, organizations like Fort Sherman's Jungle Operations Training Center providing escort boats and safety personnel, the Panama Canal Commission providing such things as safety boats, water taxis for spectators, ambulance services, computers for race results — all of these are examples of the various logistical complexities involved in putting this historical sporting event together.

'Will continue'

Both Williams and McGann reiterated Ostrander's confidence that the Cayuco Race will continue after 1999. Ostrander said the Abou Saad Shrine Temple will replace the Boy Scouts of America as the principal sponsor of the event. And Williams said, "Everybody wants this race to continue — the American community here, the Panamanians, businesses downtown. The Cayuco Race will continue here in Panama."

The competitors encountered higher-than-normal w obviously essential for doing well in the race. Often, while the remaining crew members keep paddling.

The crew of the cayuco named Rio Senales gets ready for another day of competition. This team finished in third place in the male (trophy) category with a time of 5:46:35.

Patch boats, often manned by teams of more than four members, compete for the honor of completing the race and receiving the coveted Cayuco Race Patch. This cayuco, the Slave Galley, finished the three-day race in a time of 6:15:43. The third member from right is the Honorable Simon Ferro, the U.S. Ambassador to Panama.

The new Right Start briefing is at the Mountain View Chapel on the first and third Thursdays with the following forecast dates: April 15, May 6 and 20, and June 3 and 17. For more information, call Staff Sgt. Diana Miller at 284-3508/3241.

Tax Assistance Center still open

The Tax Assistance Center is open at the Valent Recreation Center weekdays 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. until April 15. After April 15 the Tax Center will relocate to the Legal Assistance Office. You may direct your tax questions to this office at 288-3648. The Tax Center is also a central distribution point for tax forms. Tax return forms for all states are also available, as are all IRS forms. If you have not received your refund, call the IRS at 1-800-829-1040 for the status of your return. Remember not to ignore any notification from the IRS. They have the power to freeze your assets if they determine that you owe taxes. In addition, if you are in the military or work for the military, problems with the IRS could cause a revocation of your security clearance. Therefore, you should always respond to any notification from the IRS.

AUSA Scholarships

The Isthmian Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army will be granting two scholarships for academic achievement to high school seniors. A key requirement is that the student's sponsor must be a AUSA member. Applications can be picked up at the Counselor's Office at Balboa High School. The deadline for submission of applications is April 16. Applications should be sent to Lina Norris, PSC 04 Box 3032, Fort Clayton, APO AA 34004. For more information, call Lina Norris at 285-9903.

Relocation Awareness Day

The Relocation Assistance Program is holding a Relocation Awareness Day 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. April 21 in Building 200, Fort Clayton. There will be subject matter experts from various organizations. You can get information from qualified Relocation Specialists and get cool prizes. For more information, call 288-9234/9235.

Luncheon

There will be a farewell dinner for Command Sgt. Major Thomas Quinn 6 p.m. April 24 at the Fort Clayton Community Club. The guest speaker is the Commanding General and the dress is coat and tie. The cost is $12.95 per person. There is limited seating so contact the Protocol Office at 288-3117/3118 no later than April 20. You will be able to chose between baked chicken and roast beef in mushroom sauce for dinner. All organizations wishing to make a presentation should coordinate with Maritza Pearce at 288-5546 or 218-1250.

Accreditation survey

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of the 24th Medical Group on April 25 - 27 to evaluate its compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. Anyone believing they have pertinent and valid information about the quality-of-care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representative at the time of the survey. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins, and must indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to: Ambulatory Care Service Team, Joint commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, One Renaissance Boulevard, Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181.

Phone Centers will not reopen

Despite a considerable effort by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service to reopen their Charter Communication Phone Centers, the centers will not reopen. The long distance lines which provided satellite connectivity to the centers were disconnected Jan. 8. This occurred due to the privatization of telephone services in Panama. For more information on available long distance options, call Paul Peart at 285-5232.

New Housing hours at Howard

Effective May 3, the Howard Housing Office will change its operating hours to 7:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. Mondays through Fridays for walk-in customers, and 1 - 4:30 p.m. by appointment only. For more information or to schedule an appointment, call 284-3301.

CWO selection board

A selection board convenes May 4 to consider eligible chief warrant officers on the active duty list for promotion to CW3, CW4 and CW5. For more information, call the Officers Records Section at 288-4656.

More money for meals

The dining facility is closed to non-meal card holders for the lunch meal. As a result, non-meal card holders will now receive Rations-In-Kind not available for the lunch meal. Each member receiving Basic Allowance for Subsistence will now receive an additional 32 cents per day. If you are TDY or on leave, however, BAS will revert back to the standard rate. This additional BAS entitlement will be reported and "paid" at the end of each month. For more information, contact the 24th Comptroller Squadron at 284-5046/5101/4454/4902.

School physicals

The Howard Air Force Base and Fort Clayton Pediatric Clinics are increasing the number of school physical appointments available. Physical appointments will be offered 1 - 3:30 p.m. daily. If you are moving to Puerto Rico and your child will require a school physical prior to the start of the next school year, call the appointment desk at 284-3832/3834/3837.

Physical Therapy reduces services

The 24th Medical Groups Physical Therapy Clinic has reduced its services by 50 percent and will close July 1. In preparation for this reduction in services, clinic personnel are working closely with all providers in an effort to ensure the transition is as painless as possible for all customers.

The gang's all there, together for fun and friendship as part of the Fort Clayton Mixed Bowling League.

The final frame

A 10-year-old Fort Clayton bowling league says goodbye

FORT CLAYTON — The Fort Clayton Mixed Bowling League celebrated its 10th anniversary and ended years of bowling fun with the final night of competition play March 18 at the Fort Clayton Bowling Center.

Since 1988, the league has been abusing the boards with a wide variety of participants as well as resulting scores.

According to Laura McDill, league president, "This is a sad end to what has been tremendous fun for all. Even on the nights we didn't bowl well, the friendship and joking between teams made the night a refreshing diversion to everyone's busy schedule."

According to McDill, the league was originally called the DCSRM Bowling League, since it was an idea approved by Col. William Connolly, the Deputy Chief of Staff, Resource Management, at the time.

The idea was to provide a stress reliever for his directorate. Since then the league has moved along providing a welcomed diversion throughout numerous challenges over the years.

A final goodbye party and dinner was held March 25 recognizing season high scorers, both individual and teams, and to simply share the good old times for one last time.

Left, Javier Valdivieso shows off his smooth winning form during non-competition play as a member of the Fort Clayton Mixed Bowling League. Above, Laura McDill, Fort Clayton Mixed Bowling League president, hands a certificate of recognition to Bobby Johnson, the bowler who held the league's highest average (170) during the season, and highest series (620). For the league's end-of-an-era farewell party, all the bowlers received certificates highlighting their achievements and afterwards got a little goofy as they participated in different fun events such as "lights out" bowling.

Congratulations to the Misconception crew of David Chase, Armando Gundin, Chris Gibson and Romel Diaz, for taking first place in the trophy (male category), and for winning four of the five race stretches. Misconception finished 3 minutes and 26 seconds faster than last year's winner.

Congratulations to all participants

Paddler challenged by Cayuco Race

Former pro circuit motorcycle racer Ted Henter became blind as a result of a car accident. Not one to sit on his laurels, Henter went back to college, became a computer programmer and started a successful software company. Along the way he also became the World Blind Water Skiing Champion, and he recently took up downhill skiing. This year marks his fifth (second as a blind person) participation in the Cayuco Race. Find out what Henter, though blind, credits his success to.

GAMBOA — Sometimes one comes across an individual who seems to have it all together, an individual who is not only successful, but also inspiring. That's what happened to me this past weekend when I covered the annual Boy Scouts of America Ocean-to-Ocean Cayuco Race. I came across such an individual. His name is Ted Henter.

After graduating from Balboa High School in 1969, Henter enrolled at the University of Florida in Gainesville. He completed his degree, but his true passion was racing motorcycles. Henter pursued his passion and became a professional motorcycle racer.

Henter was successful as a motorcycle racer — in 1978 he finished eighth in the World Championship. But that success came to a crashing end that same year when Henter was involved in a car accident that left him blind.

It's hard to guess how any individual faced with this predicament would react to a career-ending injury that robs you of your vision. Here's how Henter responded: "I'm a Christian. I got over it (the accident) in 10 minutes. I figured this is the way God wanted it. I just had to figure out what I would do with the rest of my life."

To date, the rest of Henter's life has been a success story. After the accident, he enrolled at the University of Southern Florida in Tampa and learned how to program computers. He then teamed up with friend and business partner Dean Blazie to make computers for blind people.

In 1986, that company, Maryland Computer Services Company, was sold. With some of the proceeds, Henter started Henter-Joyce that same year, a company that writes software to make computers talk for blind people.

Henter said his company currently employs 60 people (24 are blind). Last year's revenues totaled $8 million.

Henter has not only been successful in the business world. This upbeat, optimistic individual who's often smiling and shaking hands with people standing next to

Henter At-A-Glance

Background: A 1969 graduate of Balboa High School, Henter went on to race motorcycles professionally in the United States and Europe. At one point he finished eighth in the world motorcycling championships. His career was cut short in a 1978 car accident that left him blind.

Reaction to the car accident that left him blind: "I'm a Christian. I got over it in 10 minutes. I figured this is the way God wanted it. I just had to figure out what I would do with the rest of my life."

Second career: Became a computer programmer after graduating from the University of Southern Florida in Tampa.

First business: Teamed up with friend and business partner Dean Blazie to make computers for blind people. Henter worked as a programmer for the company. The company was sold in 1986.

Second business: That same year Henter started Henter-Joyce, a company based in St. Petersburg, Fla., that writes software to make computers talk for blind people. Henter currently has 60 employees, 24 of whom are blind. Last year's revenues totaled $8 million.

Hobbies: Used to water ski competitively. Seven-time U.S. Blind Water Skiing Champion. Became the World Blind Water Skiing Champion in 1991. Two years ago Henter picked up downhill skiing.

Key to success: "Hard work and a positive attitude. And you have to have a good woman too."

Family: Married high school sweetheart Mel Little. Together they have three daughters — Amber, 7, Elizabeth, 16, and Emley, 18.

him, has witnessed success in new hobbies.

He was a competitive water skier for many years after his accident. Seven times he was the U.S. Blind Water Skiing Champion. And in 1991, he became the World Water Skiing Champion.

Henter, saying he achieved all he wanted in water skiing, next picked up downhill skiing as a hobby. He also said he plans to keep competing in the annual Cayuco Race here in Panama.

Asked to sum up his key to success, Henter simply responded, "Hard work and a positive attitude. And you have to have a good woman too."

Henter certainly follows his own advice. He worked hard in the business world to start a company; he certainly possesses a positive attitude; and he married his high school sweetheart Mel Little. Together they have three daughters — Amber, 7, Elizabeth, 16, and Emley, 18.

This is Ted Henter's (first on left) fifth Cayuco Race, his second as a blind person. Henter, along with his friends Julius Little, Dean Blazie and Ben Quinn, took seventh place in the Patch category. They paddled the Red-Ed.

Argentinean soldiers train with 5/87th

FORT KOBBE - Thirty instructors from the Mountaineering School in Argentina visited Panama in order to gain important infantry training skills to take home during a platoon exchange March 20-28.

The Argentineans joined a platoon from Company A, 5/87, to learn about different training methods and the different weapons that are being used by U.S. military forces.

The week began with a six mile road march followed by simulation training.

With simulations training, the Argentians learned how to enter and clear a building with an opposing force inside.

"They did pretty well considering they had never had any training like this before," said Sgt. 1st Class Jose Diaz, Co. A, 5/87th Infantry Division.

"The physical portion of the training is quite similar to what we do at our mountaineering school," Sgt. Maj. George Altamiranda said.

"We do everything at a little slower pace, but we get everything done.

"We have three course levels in our school, a basic, advanced and professional," he said.

"The training we receive here enhances our instructors ability to better train our recruits," Altamiranda said.

"Here we are learning about quick-fire techniques, close combat operations, ambushes and raids and combat water survival training."

"I'm glad we have the opportunity to learn about the way the Army trains.

"When we go back we will be able to add to our training and hopefully give something more to our recruits that they can use in special jungle situations."

Thirty instructors from the Mountaineering School in Argentina took part in the training.

Rappelling was one of the training skills the Argentinian soldiers learned during the March 20-28 platoon exchange with soldiers from the 5/87th.

Rodman Security Dept., SMN, in partnership against crime

Chief of Security Forces,
Rodman Naval Station

RODMAN NAVAL STATION- The Rodman Security Department and Panama's Servicio Maritimo Nacional are patrolling Rodman Naval Station in a joint effort against crime.

The SMN recently were patrolling the laydown area as part of their normal duties with their K-9 teams when they spotted two unidentified individuals within the perimeter of the Naval Station. The K-9 team handler Carlos Navarro and his dog Conan, gave chase but were unable to locate the two fleeing suspects in the jungle.

The addition of the SMN K-9 teams has greatly increased the perimeter security of the Naval Station thus enhancing the protection of not only Rodman Naval Station assets, but the assets of the SMN.

One of the K-9 team handlers from Panama's Servicio Maritimo Nacional, Carlos Navarro, and his partner Conan, go through drills as preparation for patrols of Rodman Naval Station's perimeter.

FORT CLAYTON - Fourteen MPs from Fort Claytons's 534th Military Police Company and 11 National Guard MPs for the 133rd MP Co. out of Florence, S.C., conducted vehicle inspections at the Curundu Elementary School parking lot in the late hours of March 24 as part force protection measures that help ensure the safety and security of all personnel on Fort Clayton.

According to 2nd Lt. Levecia Hersey, platoon leader of the 534th MP Co., the MPs inspected vehicles in roughly a four-hour period to ensure the driver and passengers had: proper identification, that the vehicle was insured and registered, and that the vehicle didn't have any deficiencies such as cracked lights or windshields.

Hersey also said two K-9 teams (one explosives, one counter-narcotics) took part in the vehicle inspections.

Fort Clayton's Provost Marshal Lt. Col. Don C. Cater said vehicle inspections like this one are routine and that "We (MPs) do these about twice or three times a month. As we continue to drawdown, we'll do more of these."

Staff Sgt. Paul Brooks and his "best friend" Tanja, a 4-year-old Belgian Walois trained to sniff out explosives, inspect a vehicle during the unannounced March 24 vehicle inspection. Officials said inspections like these will continue throughout the drawdown.

Chica's cool village mountain top retreat

One of Panama's most beautiful, picturesque weekend getaways

story and photos by Rosemary Chong

Tropic Times chief

When people think of a weekend getaway in Panama, they usually think "beach." While Panama is home to some awesome beaches, there is another landscape that offers a chance to leave the city behind and take in some gorgeous sights – the mountains.

The picturesque village of Chica, located only an hour's drive away from Panama City, is worth a visit if you want to enjoy a cool climate, a splendid panorama, and the beauty of tropical flowers grown by the inhabitants.

Chica belongs to the Chame District. It can be reached in one of the small buses that park alongside the Capira market on the Interamerican Highway and which leave every hour on the hour on weekdays.

To travel the 12 kilometers before reaching Chica on one of these buses through the forest preserve of Altos de Campana is certainly an adventure. Chica is populated by approximately 150 families, most of who make a living from agriculture and diverse types of flowers that grow very well due to the cool climate.

The main road of access to Chica is through the town of Campana. The road is under repairs, but this is compensated by the marvelous mountain view.

As one drives up the mountain one can see several rivers emptying into the ocean, part of the Altos de Campana forest preserve, as well as flora and fauna.

Another way to reach Chica is by bus from Panama City, and transfer in the town of Bejuco to a bus on the Chame-Sora route.

For those who want to take a trip to Chica, it is important to know that there are no lodging facilities in the village proper. The only possibility is quite a distance from Chica, but offers small rooms for singles or families. The mild climate, lovely setting and peaceful surroundings have attracted numerous people who have built summer homes in this location.

Another attraction is the numerous waterfalls where one can enjoy a refreshing swim.

Visitors will enjoy the spectacular sunsets, and will be delighted with the singing of the numerous species of birds that abound in the lush forest.

The flower growers are mostly women who sell their product to increase their income, although this is not such a lucrative business.

Project Veranera is located in Chica. It is a flower-growing venture sponsored by the Office of the First Lady of Panama.

Many different types of flowers are cultivated here, especially the many varieties of bougainvilleas.

Another beautiful attraction this region of Panama has to offer is the numerous waterfalls where one can enjoy a refreshing swim.

A Civil Action

John Travolta, Kathleen Quinlan

Attorney John Travolta and his small law firm are hired to sue industrial giants accused of contaminating two water wells in a small Massachusetts town. Kathleen Quinlan plays a mother whose son mysteriously died of leukemia. Robert Duvall is the defender of the industrial conglomerates, and John Lithgow acts as the presiding district judge. PG-13, 1 hr, 52 min.

A Simple Plan

Bill Paxton, Billy Bob Thornton

The quiet, rural lives of three men erupt into conflicts of greed, paranoia and distrust when they discover $4 million in cash in a small airplane. Their simple plan to retain the money while avoiding detection opens a Pandora's Box. R, 2 hrs, 1 min.

Blast From The Past

Brendan Fraser, Alicia Silverstone

Brendan Fraser emerges from the bomb shelter where he's spent his life sparking a romantic comedy that also features Alicia Silverstone, Christopher Walken, Sissy Spacek and Dave Foley. PG-13, 1 hr, 46 min.

Message in a Bottle

Kevin Costner, Robin Wright

Walking along a deserted stretch of coastline, Robin Wright discovers a romantic letter in a bottle. Her own desire for romance motivates a search for the heartbroken author. A dedicated effort leads her to a widowed sailboat builder, played by Kevin Costner. As friendship and love develop, Costner struggles with his past and a new found passion. PG-13, 1 hr, 50 min.

Patch Adams

Robin Williams, Monica Potter

Robin Williams stars as a medical student who believes that laughter is the best medicine. While dangerous to his career prospects, his funny antics also challenge the industry to consider the healing powers of humor. Based on a true story. PG-13, 1 hr, 55 min.

Duty-free merchandise

FORT CLAYTON (Contraband Control Office) – As a reminder, in accordance with the Panama Canal Treaty and U.S. Southern Command regulations, duty-free merchandise, whether new or used, cannot be given, transferred or generally sold to non-privilege holders. Violations to these dispositions may subject violators to prosecution under both military and Panamanian laws. It is sometimes permissible to sell an item, but only if Panamanian taxes are paid. Before such a sale, it is strongly recommended that the seller contact the Contraband Control Section for advice at 288-5814.

Access to installations is allowed for ID card holders & pass holders only. All guests must be signed on by ID card holders.

El acceso a las instalaciones militares solamente le está permitido a las personas con tarjetas de identidad personal del Gobierno de los EEUU y el personal con pases de acceso a las instalaciones. Todos los invitados deben ser firmados a la entrada de las instalaciones por una persona con tarjeta de identidad personal de los EEUU.

Community briefs

Veronica's Room

The Directorate of Community Activities Valent Recreation Center and The Theatre Guild of Ancon will present Veronica's Room, a mystery by Ira Levin.

The play opens April 16 with performances on April 17, 22, 23, 24, 29, 30 and May 1 at the Ancon Playhouse.

The play is a totally absorbing spider web that entwines fantasy and reality. It is a story about Susan Kerner, a young Boston college student and Larry Eastwood, a young lawyer she met, who have been enticed to the Barbissant mansion by the Mackeys - a charming, elderly couple who are struck by Susan's resemblance to Veronica Barbissant, the long-dead daughter of the family for whom they work. It has a jarring and surprising climax, and has been rated as "a neat, elegant thriller."

Veronica's Room is being directed by Edwin Cedeno and is produced by Gale Cellucci. The cast features Dionisio Johnson as the man, Myrna Castro as the woman, Ana Lorena Broce as the girl, and Michael Winfrey as the young man. It is being directed under the sponsorship of AT&T. Reservations are now being accepted. For more information or reservations, call 272-6786.

nators should ensure that all volunteer hours are registered with the Howard Family Support Center's Volunteer Program. Also, any volunteers who are PCSing in the near future should come by the FSC to pick up a letter stating their volunteer hours. For more information, call Lizca Fearon at 284-5650.

Aggie Muster

The Panama Texas A&M Club is hosting the last Aggie Muster of the millennium 7 p.m. April 21 at the Club de Golf Ejecutivo on Balboa Avenue. For tickets and information, call Lilibeth B. Langoni at 272-5166 or Teresa Arosemena at 272-1873 or 260-1523 after 5 p.m.

Wing Heritage Day

The 24th Wing Heritage Committee members are looking for easels, bulletin boards and partitions to mount pictures on for the Wing Heritage Day static display Thursday - April 9 at Hangar One on Howard. Organizers also need bunting, streamers, bows and ribbons for the event. For more information, call Master Sgt. Shari Gray at 284-5067.

Pet supplies

Since the Corozal Veterinary Treatment Facility approaches closure Aug. 31, the VTF is reminding pet owners to stock up on routinely used medications to last through their PCS move. The last order for pet supplies is June 1 and when supplies run they will not be replenished. Also, the VTF is requesting that if your pet is no longer in Panama or has been adopted to another family to call them at 285-5866/5867 to help update their records.

Pens pose peril

The 24th Medical Group is recalling all the "Putting Prevention into Practive" pens. The pens have a dangerous defect causing the top along with the spring to pop off and go shooting across the room without the user doing anything out of the ordinary. Return the pens to the Primary Care Clinics on Howard AFB or Fort Clayton. The pens are a navy blue with black trim and white lettering.

Mailing packages

The Fort Clayton Post Office has implemented an appointment system for individuals who need to mail five parcels or more. Due to an increase in moves we suggest that people call the number listed below and arrange an appointment between 9 - 9:20 a.m. and the staff will assist those individuals before opening for regular customer service. In return, this will decrease the lines and waiting time for other customers. All forms and documentation need to be ready prior to the appointment date. For more information, call 288-5522/4802.

Free child care

Air Force staff sergeants and below can receive up to 20 free hours of childcare when they are within 90 days of PCS departure from Howard Air Force Base. The Child Development Center will provide services. Members should bring orders to the Family Support Center to receive a certificate.

Typing course

The Howard Family Support Center's Computer Resource Center offers computerized, multi-media typing tutorial software by Mavis Beacon. Beginners can learn how to type at their own pace and advance typists can brush up their skills. To sign up for an appointment call the computer manager, Dave Krier, at 284-5650. Brush up on typing skills with the Howard Family Support Center. For more information, call 284-5650.

Child & Youth Services staff earn childcare credential

FORT CLAYTON — Another three staff members from the local Army CYS program have been awarded a Child Development Associate (CDA) credential in recognition of outstanding work with young children.

Tina Moore, Antonia Valentine and Alexis Mays have joined another 18 Army CYS staff members in Panama who have earned the credential since 1997.

The CDA is awarded by the Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition in Washington, D.C., which represents the early childhood profession.

It is the only major national effort to improve child care by evaluation and recognizing the skills of individuals providing care, and is included in the child care licensing regulations of 46 states and the District of Columbia.

Parents who use child care are especially concerned today about their children's welfare. With this in mind, as part of the CDA assessment process, every candidate for the CDA credential is observed working with young children by an early childhood professional.

In addition, the candidate must demonstrate the ability to work with families to develop children's physical and intellectual capabilities in a safe and healthy learning environment.

CYS Panama is proud of all of its employees, and recognizes the many contributions they have made to the lives of young children. We wish them the best.

Cub camp

FORT KOBBE — More than 45 Cub Scouts gathered at the Fort Kobbe Elementary School March 29 - 31 to participate in the 1999 Cub Scout Day Camp.

Young boys from Cub Scout Packs 6, 23 and 35 had the opportunity to play sports, make crafts and enjoy many other interesting activities.

"Here the kids are having lots of fun, but they're also learning how to get along with each other and learning about nature," said Karen Fox, camp director.

Fox said that in addition to the Cub Scouts, 20 volunteer leaders gave their time and energy to help make the event a success.

Day camp helped change his point of view.
