PREFACE

The "consolidated index of Congressional documents" for the second session of the Fifty-seventh Congress, herewith presented, is the ninth in the series prepared in the office of the Superintendent of Documents in compliance with the requirements of section 62 of the printing law of January 12, 1895. It is made on the same plan as its predecessors, but an explanation of its scope is here given for the benefit of users not familiar with it.

First, there is an alphabetical arrangement in which documents of both Senate and House are entered under their subject or subjects and under the names of those presenting them; but under Departments and bureaus, lists of publications are as a rule omitted, as are also entries under names of personal authors, except Congressmen. In this same alphabet committee reports of Senate and House are entered under names of Congressmen submitting them, under names of committees, and under the subject or subjects of the reports. Committee reports are numbered consecutively through a Congress, but documents are numbered only through a particular session. Bills and resolutions, like reports, have only one numerical series during a Congress, but such bills and resolutions receive no entries in this index, except that in the alphabetical list their numbers are added to all entries for the reports made upon them.

The alphabetical arrangement is followed by a numerical arrangement under the four series in which Congressional documents, exclusive of bills and resolutions, have been issued since the beginning of the Fifty-fourth Congress, namely: Senate documents, Senate reports, House documents, and House reports, giving in each instance the number of the document or report, its title or subject, and the number of the volume of the Congressional reserve in which it will be bound.

The schedule of volumes for the Congressional reserve follows the numerical arrangement and includes the serial numbers assigned by this office to the volumes. The Senate and House reports have been placed before the Senate and House documents, because the schedule of reports can always be made up before the schedule of documents and it seems desirable to assign serial numbers to the former without waiting for the completion of the latter.

The documents included in this index number 3,083, divided as follows: Senate reports, 1,192; House reports, 1,169; Senate documents, 227; House documents, 495. The Senate reports will be bound in 3 volumes, the House reports in 3, the Senate documents in 24, and the House documents in 116, making a total of 146 volumes for the session.

L. C. FERRELL,
Superintendent of Documents.
