PREFACE

The five previously published volumes of Kappler's Indian Affairs, Laws and Treaties, contain treaties and statutes relating to Indian affairs enacted through the Seventy-fifth Congress in 1938. These volumes have long needed updating. Congress, by Title VII of the Act of April 11, 1968, 25 U.S.C. § 1341, authorized and directed the Secretary of the Interior to revise and extend Kappler's compilation to include all treaties, laws, executive orders and regulations relating to Indian affairs in force on September 1, 1967. The volumes now published extend the work through the Ninety-first Congress, 1970. It is anticipated that supplemental volumes will be published at intervals sufficient to keep the compilation reasonably current.

For the most part, Kappler's format has been followed in the new volumes. There are however, certain changes which should be mentioned.

In recent years, many statutes of general application, in particular those establishing federal programs, have contained special provisions for Indians or have specifically included Indians and Indian tribes within the terms of the statute. Often these acts are lengthy and are followed by numerous amendments. Little purpose would be served by publishing the original statutes and the entire text of their amendments. Therefore, the amended acts are published, in Part III, as they appear in the United States Code, 1970 edition. Edited versions of the statutes, containing the sections which specifically refer to Indians, appear in their chronological sequence in Part I. Part III, Selected Provisions of the United States Code, in no way purports to contain the authorizing statutes for all federal programs for which Indians and Indian tribes are eligible. Many such statutes do not mention Indian tribes at all but have been administratively interpreted to include them.

Kappler's volumes included executive orders relating to Indian lands. In Part IV, the equivalent section of the new volumes, secretarial and departmental orders of the Department of the Interior are included in addition to executive orders. This material has been derived from the Federal Register and begins with 1936, the first year the Federal Register was published. At the end of Part IV are two tables. The first contains a list of delegations of authority by the Secretary of the Interior. The text of the delegations is included in the main body of Part IV, and the table is intended as a guide to aid in locating them. The second table lists tribal ordinances relating to the introduction, sale, or possession of intoxicating beverages in Indian country that have been published in the Federal Register pursuant to the Act of August 15, 1953, 67 Stat. 586, which authorized Indian tribes to adopt their own liquor ordinances. The ordinances themselves are not included in this compilation, but they can be located in the Federal Register through use of this table.

Part V, Tables of Statutes Affected, is new. Kappler included notations of amendments, repeals, etc., in the margins of the affected statutes. Kappler's notes were quickly out-dated however, because they were current only through the publication date of the volume containing the original statute. An additional problem with the marginal notation method is that it becomes very unwieldy when one statute is amended several times. The tables in Part V attempt to overcome these limitations. They list the amendments, repeals, etc., through 1970, for the statutes compiled in Kappler, Volumes I and III through VII.

In addition to the new material hereby published, the five earlier volumes have been reprinted, as they have long been difficult to find. They have been reprinted in their entirety except that in Volume IV, a 1928 edition of Title 25 of the United States Code has been omitted, as have duplicate indexes to Volumes I, II and III. Since the current edition of Title 25 is reasonably accessible, reprinting such an outdated version did not seem useful. The indexes to Volumes I, II and III are included in their respective volumes.

Federal regulations relating to Indians, which the 1968 statute directed to be published, are not included in these volumes. Because of their need for frequent revision, they have been published separately in a paperbound volume entitled Supplement to Kappler's Indian Affairs, Laws and Treaties; Compiled Federal Regulations Relating to Indians.

The new volumes were prepared in the Office of the Solicitor under the direction of Deputy Solicitors Raymond C. Coulter and David E. Lindgren. Substantial contributions were made by M. Frances Ayer, Peter S. Taylor, Thomas Viall, Janet Lang, Nicholas Goschy, Sarah Jo Rowland, Bobbie Jean Ware, Kathleen Johnson, Gilbert Hall and Anita Vogt.

SEC. 204. In the case of children who reside on Federal property—

(1) if no tax revenues of the State or any political subdivision thereof may be expended for the free public education of such children; or

Sums so appropriated, other than sums appropriated for administration, shall remain available until expended. Not to exceed 10 per centum of the amount so appropriated for any fiscal year (exclusive of any sums appropriated for administration) may be used by the Commissioner, under regulations prescribed by him, to make grants to local educational agencies eligible for payments under section 202, where (1) the application of such agencies would be approved under section 205 (b) but for the agencies' inability, unless aided by such grants, to finance the non-Federal share of the cost of the projects set forth in their applications, or (2) although the applications of such agencies have been approved, the projects covered by such applications could not, without such grants, be completed, because of flood, fire, or similar emergency affecting either the work on the projects or the agencies' ability to finance the non-Federal share of the cost ⊥of the projects. Such grants shall be in addition to the payments otherwise provided under this title, shall be made to those local educational agencies whose need for additional aid is the most urgent and acute, and insofar as practicable shall be made in the same manner and upon the same terms and conditions as such other payments.
