SENATE

MONDAY, March 4, 1929

CHARLES CURTIS, of Kansas, Vice President of the United States, to whom the oath was administered at the close of the last regular session of the Seventieth Congress, called the Senate to order at 12 o'clock meridian.

The Chaplain, Rev. ZBarney T. Phillips, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty and Eternal God, Father of all mankind, Ruler of the destinies of nations, Thou hast called us by our name and we are Thine. Thou hast established us in the gateways of the world. Thou hast moulded our speech, mixed our blood from uncorrupted springs and crowned us with every blessing; make us therefore a righteous nation doing justice, loving mercy, walking humbly with our God. Breathe upon all who are assembled here the spirit of Thy grace, especially upon those Thy servants whom Thou hast called to be President and Vice President of the United States. Endue them with innocence of life, with wisdom and discretion, manifest Thyself to them that in the excursions of their work they may never be drawn aside from the path of rectitude. Inspire them with divine faith, subdue them to the lovely practice of those who have lived as fellow workers with Thee, and grant that the words of their mouth and the meditations of their hearts may be always acceptable in Thy sight.

Let Thy blessing abide continually upon them, the Members of Congress, and all others in authority, that they knowing whose ministers they are may above all things seek Thy honor and glory and that all the people duly considering whose authority they bear, may faithfully and obediently honor them in Thee and for Thee according to Thy blessed word and ordinance. May the benediction of Thy peace rest upon the retiring President, Vice President, and Members of Congress, to whom a grateful Nation pays loving tribute. Bless all the nations of the world and bind us ever closer together in the bonds of holy fellowship, that when the silver cord is loosed and the golden bowl is broken we may receive the crown of life and dwell with Thee in the brightness of Thy eternal morning. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PROCLAMATION

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will read the proclamation of the President convening the Senate in extraordinary session.

The Chief Clerk (John C. Crockett) read the proclamation of the President as follows:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Whereas public interests require that the Senate of the United States be convened at 12 o'clock on the 4th day of March next to receive such communications as may be made by the Executive:

Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the Senate of the United States to convene at the Capitol, in the city of Washington, on the 4th day of March next, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as Members of that body are hereby required to take notice.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the United States.

Done at the city of Washington, this 11th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and fifty-third.

By the President:

FRANK B. KELLOGG,
Secretary of State.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

ADDRESS OF THE VICE PRESIDENT

The VICE PRESIDENT. Senators, the United States Senate is to-day one of the most distinguished legislative bodies in the world—one of the greatest actual and potential powers for the promotion and advancement of civilization. Its personnel is of a caliber equal to if not the superior of any previous body heretofore assembled. Any individual, no matter how outstanding in the realms of leadership, political or otherwise, might well be proud to preside over its deliberations. I may, therefore, be pardoned in declaring here the feeling of pride which I experience that through my election as Vice President of the United States such a signal honor has come to me. I hope I may prove worthy of the people's choice, and of you. No efforts of mine will be spared to aid and assist you in the successful solution of the numerous intricate and important problems which will come before you.

During the course of my 20 years' service among you, as Senator from the State of Kansas, I have profited much from the wisdom, tact, and experience of the Members of this august body as displayed by its most modest and unassuming Members as well as by its most outstanding and brilliant leaders.

My relations with the Senators during all these years have been pleasant. My memories of persons and events in this Chamber constitute some of the most delightful in a long public life by means devoid of sorrow and unceasing.

At this point I may with propriety, I think, be permitted to offer to the honorable gentleman who is retiring as Presiding Officer of this body, Mr. Dawes, an expression of appreciation, admiration, and esteem. We will all agree that he has filled his arduous and frequently onerous duties with credit and distinction, not only to himself but to the Senate and to the people of the United States.

It would seem fitting also at this point to offer a word of welcome and greeting to our new Senators. They will find their fellow Senators, as I have found them, most human and kindly gentlemen, willing and anxious to help newcomers where they may.

My service among you has impressed me with the responsibilities of every Senator, and at the same time it has given me a clear understanding of the duties and obligations of the Vice President.

He is not one of the makers of the law, nor is he consulted about the rules adopted to govern your actions. His obligations to the people of the country to whom he owes his high position are secondary to you, and Senators, call for a paramount construction of the rules which you, yourselves, have adopted and which you alone may change. His obligations and duties require a recognition and application of the precedents which have brought the United States Senate to its present recognized position of paramount importance as a legislative body.

With the familiarity gained from long years of close observation, assisted by your full cooperation without which little can be done, I hope to be able to serve your desires certainly and surely; to obey your will, which is the will of the people; to give it effect with the utmost dispatch; and to expedite the business of the Senate in an orderly and speedy manner, for this, I take it, is not only your desire but also the wish of our people. In effect, to be an integral part of this body, not a being strange to or remote and detached from it.

To do these things within the limits of my abilities I conceive to be the whole scope and sphere of the Vice President. The task is not easy. I ask your help and indulgence.

With a whole-hearted spirit of cooperation between us, I am certain your achievements in the Congress before us will redound to the immediate and ultimate good of all; your proceedings will be so much to your credit in the eyes of our people, and so much to the credit of our people in the eyes of the world that they will stand for years in the future as the highest mark of legislative endeavors within, and perhaps without the United States. It gives me pleasure, sir, to receive the gavel from you and to take over the duties of the Vice President.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH

The VICE PRESIDENT. The names of the newly elected Senators, in the order named and as their names are called they will present themselves at the desk for the purpose of taking the oath of office.

The Chief Clerk called the names of Mr. Ashurst, Mr. Connally, Mr. Conkland, Mr. Cutting, Mr. Dill, Mr. Fess, and Mr. Frazee.

These Senators (with the exception of Mr. Cutting), escorted by Mr. Hayden, Mr. Shepard, Mr. Wagner, Mr. Jones, Mr. Smoot, Mr. ToYNES, Mr. Watson, Mr. GOULD, Mr. Goff, Mr. METCALF, and Mr. Norris, respectively, advanced to the Vice President's desk and the oath of office prescribed by law was administered to them by the Vice President.

The Chief Clerk called the names of Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH, Mr. GUIDRY, Mr. HALE, Mr. HAYFIELD, Mr. HICKER, and Mr. HOWELL.
These Senators, escorted by Mr. TYNDES, Mr. D. T. D. DALE, Mr. GIOUL, Mr. GOFF, Mr. METCALF, and Mr. NORRIS, respectively, advanced to the Vice President's desk and the oath of office prescribed by law was administered to them by the Vice President.

The Chief Clerk called the names of Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. KEAN, Mr. KENDRICK, Mr. KING, Mr. LA FOLLETTE, and Mr. MCKEEL.
These Senators (with the exception of Mr. LA FOLLETTE) escorted by Mr. SHORTRIDGE, Mr. EMER, Mr. WARREN, Mr. SMOOT, and Mr. TYSON, respectively, advanced to the Vice President's desk and the oath of office prescribed by law was administered to them by the Vice President.

The Chief Clerk called the names of Mr. SWANSON, Mr.
TOWNSEND, Mr. TRAMMELL, Mr. VANDENBERG, Mr. WALCOTT, Mr.
WALSH of Massachusetts, and Mr. WHEELER.

These Senators, with the exception of Mr. SHIPSTEAD, Mr.
HASTINGS, Mr. FLETCHER, Mr. COUSENS, Mr. BINGHAM, Mr. ROBINSON of ARKANSAS, and Mr. WALSH of Montana, respectively, advanced to the Vice President's desk and the oath of office prescribed by law was administered to them by the Vice President.

INAUGURATION OF THE PRESIDENT

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Sergeant at Arms will carry out the program for the inauguration of the President of the United States on the east front of the Capitol.

The President elect, Herbert Hoover, escorted by the Chief Justice of the United States and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, and accompanied by the joint committee on arrangements, followed by the members of the diplomatic corps, the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Chief of Naval Operations, and the Commandant of the Marine Corps, entered the inaugural platform at the east front of the Capsitol.

The oath of office having been administered to the President elect by the Chief Justice of the United States, he delivered the inaugural address.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER

My Countrymen: This occasion is not alone the administration of the most sacred oath of office which can be rendered by an American citizen. It is a dedication and consecration under God to the highest office in service of our people. I assume this trust in the humility of knowledge that only through the guidance of Almighty Providence can I hope to discharge its ever-increasing burdens.

It is in keeping with tradition throughout our history that I should express simply and directly the opinions which I hold concerning some of the matters of present importance.

OUR PROGRESS

If we survey the situation of our Nation both at home and abroad, we find many satisfactions; we find some causes for concern. We have emerged from the losses of the Great War and the reconstruction following it with increased virility and strength. From this strength we have contributed to the recovery of the world. What America has done this year has given renewed hope and courage to all who have faith in government by the people. In the large view we have reached a higher degree of comfort and security than ever existed before in the history of the world. Through the liberation of the millions freed from war and poverty we have reached a higher degree of individual freedom than ever before. The devotion to and concern for our institutions is increasing. Now we are steadily building a new race—a new civilization great in its own attainments. The influence and high purposes of our Nation are respected among the peoples of the world. We aspire to distinction in the world, but to a distinction based upon confidence in our sense of justice as well as our accomplishments within our own borders and in our own lives. For wise guidance in this great period of recovery the Nation is deeply indebted to

THE FAILES OF OUR SYSTEM OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE

The most malign of all these dangers to-day is disregard and obsolescence of law. Crime is increasing. Confidence in rigid and speedy justice is decreasing. I am not prepared to believe that this indicates any decay in the moral fiber of the American people. I am not prepared to believe that it indicates an impoance of the Federal Government to enforce its laws.

It is only in part due to the additional burdens imposed upon our judicial system by the eighteenth amendment. The problem is much wider than the amendment. Many influences have complicated and weakened our law-enforcement organization long before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment.

To reestablish the vigorous and effective Federal law enforcement we must critically consider the entire Federal machinery of justice, the redistribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better selection of jurors, and the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution that justice may be sure and that it may be swift. While the authority of the Federal Government, to enforce its laws, is essentially needed to protect the unity of the nation, State, and local justice, yet the standards which the Federal Government establishes have the most profound influence upon the whole structure of our law and order, our ability and integrity of our Federal judges and attorneys. But the system which these officers are called upon to administer is in many respects ill-adapted to present-day conditions. Its inherent and prevailing rules of procedure have become the refuge of both big and little criminals. There is a belief abroad that by invoking technicalities, subterfuge, and delay the ends of justice may be thwarted by those who can pay the price. Reform, reorganization, and strengthening of our whole judicial and enforcement system both in civil and criminal sides have been advocated for years by statesmen, judges, and bar associations. First steps toward that end should not longer be delayed. Rigid and expeditious justice is the first safeguard of freedom, the basis of all ordered liberty, the vital force of progress. It must not come to be in our Republic that it can be defeated by the indifference of the citizen, by exploitation of the delays and entanglements of the law, or by combinations of criminals. Justice must not fail because the agencies of enforcement are either deficient or ineffectively organized. To overcome the disabilities, to find their remedy, is the most sore necessity of our times.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT

Of the undoubted abuses which have grown up under the enforcement, part at least, of the provisions of the eighteenth amendment, there can be no question. But those difficulties, which are not mentioned; but part are due to the failure of some States to accept their share of responsibility for concurrent enforcement and to the failure of many State and local officials to accept the obligations which such acceptance imposes.

With the failures from these many causes has come a dangerous expansion in the criminal elements who have found enlarged opportunities in dealing in illegal liquor.

The more responsibility rests directly upon our citizens. There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from the millions of law-abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime.

I have been selected by you to execute and enforce the laws of the country. I propose to do so to the extent of my own abilities, but the measure of success that the Government shall attain will depend upon the moral support which you, as citizens, extend. The duty of citizens to support the laws of the land is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist. No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and overt- lawy by their vigilance and by their condemnation of all transactions with illegal liquor. Our whole system of self-government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they will enforce or if citizens believe what laws they will enforce. If the support for a law is that it destroys respect for all law. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destructive of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes and property which they rightly claim under other laws. If citizens do not like a law, their duty as honest men and women is to discourage its violation; their right is openly to work for its repeal.

To those of criminal mind there can be no appeal but vigorous enforcement of the law. Fortunately they are but a small percentage of our people. Their activities must be stopped.

A NATIONAL EXPERIMENT.

I propose to appoint a national commission for a searching investigation of the whole structure of our Federal system of jurisprudence, to include the method of enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the causes of abuse under it. Its purpose will be to make such recommendations for reorganization of the administration of Federal laws and court procedure as may be found desirable. In the meantime it is essential that the function of the enforcement of the amendment be transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice as a beginning of more effective organization.

THE RELATION OF GOVERNMENT TO BUSINESS

The election has again confirmed the determination of the American people that Government ownership or operation is the course rightly to be pursued in our relation to business. In recent years we have established a differentiation in the whole method of business regulation between the industries which produce and distribute commodities on the one hand, and public utilities on the other. In the former the Government must rely upon effective competition; in the latter, because we substantially confer a monopoly by limiting competition, we must regulate their services and rates. The rigid enforcement of the laws applicable to both groups is the very basis of the protection of the people at large. The regulation of business is authorized by the Federal Government within the limitations of the Constitution and only when the individual States are without power to protect their citizens through their own authority. On the other hand, it is necessary when the authority rests only in the Federal Government.

COOPERATION BY THE GOVERNMENT

The larger purpose of our economic thought should be to establish more firmly stability and security of business and employment and thereby remove poverty still further from our borders. Our people have in recent years developed a new-found capacity for cooperation among themselves to effect high purposes in public welfare. It is an advance toward the highest conception of self-government. Self-government does not and should not imply the use of political agencies alone. Progress is born of cooperation in the community—not from governmental restraint. Government should encourage these movements of collective self-help by itself cooperating with them. Business has by cooperation made great progress in the advancement of service, in stability, in regulation, and in the correction of the abuses. Such progress, however, can continue only so long as business manifests its respect for law.

There is an equally important field of cooperation by the Federal Government with the multitude of agencies, State, municipal, and private, in the systematic development of those processes which directly affect public health, recreation, education, and the home. Whatever further to perfect the means by which government can be adapted to human service.

EDUCATION

Although education is primarily a responsibility of the States and local communities, and rightly so, yet the Nation as a whole is vitally concerned in its development everywhere to the highest standards and to complete universality. Self-government can succeed only through an instructed electorate. Our objective is not simply to overcome illiteracy. The Nation has marched far beyond that. The more complex the problems of the Nation become, the greater is the need for more and more advanced instruction. Moreover, as our numbers increase and as our life expands with science and invention, we must discover many and more and more that we can not hope to succeed in directing this increasingly complex civilization unless we can draw all the talent of leadership from the general mass. The full opportunity for every boy and girl to rise through the selective processes of education can alone secure to us this leadership.

PUBLIC HEALTH

In public health the discoveries of science have opened a new era. Many sections of our country and many groups of our citizens suffer from diseases, the eradication of which are mere matters of administration and moderate expenditure. Public health service should be as fully organized and as universally incorporated into our governmental system as is public education. The returns are a thousandfold in economic results, and indefinitely in reduction of suffering and promotion of human happiness.

WORLD PEACE

The United States fully accepts the profound truth that our own peace, prosperity, and safety depend upon the progress, prosperity, and peace of all humanity. The whole world is at peace. The dangers to a continuation of this peace to-day are largely the fear and suspicion which still haunt the world. And that suspicion or fear can be rightly directed toward our country.

Those who have a true understanding of America know that we have no desire for territorial expansion, for economic or imperialist enterprises. Such enterprises are repugnant to our ideals of human freedom. Our form of government is ill adapted to the responsibilities which inevitably follow permanent limitation of the independence of other peoples. Superficial observers seem to find no destiny for our abounding increase in population, in wealth and power except that we must be imperialists. They fail to see that the American people are engrossed in the building for themselves of a new economic system, a new social system, a new political system—all of which is founded upon the principles of freedom, self-restraint, and thereby are the negation of imperialism. They fail to realize that because of our abounding prosperity our youth are pressing more and more into our institutions of learning; and while they are seeking a larger vision through art, literature, science and travel; that they are moving toward stronger moral and spiritual life—that from these things our sympathies are broadening beyond the bounds of our Nation and race and the recognition of the brotherhood of man. They fail to see that the idealism of America will lead it to no narrow or selfish channel, but inspire it to do its full share as a Nation toward the advancement of civilization. It will do that not by mere declaration but by action, by undertaking all useful international undertakings. We not only desire peace with the world, but to see peace maintained throughout the world. We wish to advance the reign of Justice and contrast the extinction of force.

The recent treaty for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy sets an advanced standard in our conception of the development of its acceptance. It paves the way to greater limitation of armament, the offer of which we sincerely extend to the world. But its full realization also implies a greater and greater perfection in the instruments and processes for the peaceful settlement of controversies. In the creation and use of these instrumentalities we should support every sound method of conciliation, arbitration, and judicial settlement. American statesmen were among the first to propose, and they have constantly urged upon the world, the establishment of a tribunal for the settlement of controversies of a justiciable kind. The Permanent Court of International Justice in its major purpose is thus peculiarly identified with the American ideals and aspirations of America. No more potent instrumentalities for this purpose has ever been conceived and no other is practicable of establishment. The reservations placed upon our adherence should not be merely formal. They should not be made by treaty or by special agreements with any nations no special privilege or advantage but only to clarify our relation to advisory opinions and other matters which are subsidiary to the major purpose of the Court. The very antithesis of all this we shall be found by which we may take our proper place in a movement so fundamental to the progress of peace.

We have determined that we should make no political engagements, such as membership in the League of Nations, which may commit us in advance as a Nation to become involved in the settlements of controversies between other countries. They adhere to the belief that the independence of America is so close and dear to us, and that it is our duty to contribute as long as our strength will permit, to the promotion of the cause of peace. We are holding to the faith of the men in our mighty Republic of the Western Hemisphere. I have lately returned from a journey among our sister Republics of the Western Hemisphere. I have received from many of them much of the genius of our institutions. From one of them we derive our very language and our system of government. From another, we have learned to accept the stimulation of initiative and individuality, absolute self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness.

We covet for this administration a record of having further contributed to the advancement of the cause of peace.

The paramount necessities of the time make it imperative that in our conduct of international relations we be guided by the principles upon which our domestic administration is based. Peace can be promoted only by respect for our ability in defense; only by the promotion of order and peace that is fostered by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies. But it will become a reality only through self-restraint and active effort in friendliness and helpfulness.

In our form of democracy the expression of the popular will can be effected only through the instrumentality of political parties. We maintain party government not to promote intolerance and strife, but because of the opportunity for expression of the popular will, and organization provided for the execution of its mandates and for accountability of government to the people. It follows that the Government, both at home and abroad, is the expression of the people, and that in good faith the platforms upon which the party was inscribed with power. But the Government is that of the whole people; the party is the instrument through which policies are determined and placed into practice. Hence the mandates of the people of the United States, by the creation of the instrumentalities for peaceful settlement of controversies, by the promotion of the cause of peace...

It appears to me that the more important further mandates from the recent election were the maintenance of the integrity of the Constitution, the vigorous enforcement of the laws, the continuance of economy in public expenditure, the continued repression of the domination of business by the Government, the penalization of ownership or operation of business by the Government in competition with its citizens, the avoidance of policies which would involve us in the controversies of foreign nations, the more effective reorganization of the departments of the Federal Government, the expansion of public works, and the promotion of welfare activities affecting education and the home.

These were the more tangible determinations of the election, but beyond them was the confidence and belief of the people that we would not neglect the support of the embedded ideals and aspirations of America. These ideals and aspirations are the touchstones upon which the day-to-day administration and legislative acts of government must be tested. More than this, the Government must, so far as lies within its proper powers, give leadership to the realization of these ideals and to the fruition of these aspirations. No one can adequately reduce these things of the spirit to phrases or to a catalogue of definitions. We do know what the attainments of these ideals should be. The preservation of self-government and its full foundations in local government; the perfection of justice whether in economic or in social fields; the maintenance of ordered liberty; the denial of domination by any group or class, the building up and maintenance of equality of opportunity; the stimulation of initiative and individuality; absolute integrity in public affairs; the choice of officials for fitness to office; the direction of economic progress toward prosperity and the further lessening of poverty; the freedom of public opinion; the sustaining of education and of the advancement of knowledge; the growth of religious spirit and the tolerance of all faiths; the strengthening of the home; the advancement of peace.

There is no short road to the realization of these aspirations. Ours is a progressive people, but with a determination that progress must be based upon the foundation of experience. Ill-considered remedies for our faults bring only penalties after them. But if we hold the faith of the men in our mighty past who created these ideals, we shall leave them heightened and strengthened for our children.

CONCLUSION

This is not the time and place for extended discussion. The questions before our country are problems of progress to higher standards; they are not the problems of degeneration. They demand thought and they serve to quicken the conscience and enlist our sense of responsibility for their settlement. And that responsibility rests upon you, my countrymen, as much as upon those of us who have been so far off.

Ours is a land rich in resources; stimulating in its glorious beauty; filled with millions of happy homes; blessed with comfort and opportunity. In no nation are the institutions of peace more advanced than in the United States; in no nation is the peace more shrewdly planned; in no nation is the government more worthy of respect. No country is more loved by its people. I

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I ask permission to have printed in the Record an article appearing in the New York Times written by the Senator from Virginia [Mr. Glass].

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered. The article is as follows:

NEW LIGHT ON WILSON AND PROHIBITION—IN A CHALLENGE TO WES'S SENATOR GLASS BY HEBRALD INN HISTORY OF THE LATE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE AND SUB-HIS REPEAL, THE DUEL OF ENFORCEMENT POLICY FOR THE STATES AND THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

(Barney T. Phillips, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O God, Author of the world’s joy, Bearer of its pain, make us glad to share in the privileges of Thy bestowal and to make full use of our opportunities for service. Grant that in the deliberations of this day, by venturing out into the open spaces of Thy love, we may become less conscious of effort, more conscious of power. Transform into Thy likeness every thought and purpose; make perfect Thy strength in our weakness, that what we do here may redound to the honor of our country and to the spread of Thy kingdom among men. Through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The Chief Clerk (John C. Crockett) proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday’s proceedings, when, on request of Mr. Watson and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal was approved.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. NORRIS. I desire to announce that my colleague [Mr. HOWARD] is detained from the Senate on account of illness.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Eighty-five Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present. The Senate will receive a message from the President of the United States.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was transmitted to the Senate by Mr. Latilla, one of his secretaries.

PRINTING OF THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS (S. DOC. NO. 1)

Mr. MOSES submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 1), which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That the inaugural address of the President of the United States be printed as a Senate document.
