

Congressional Record

SEVENTY-FIFTH CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

SENATE

TUESDAY, JANUARY 5, 1937

Under authority of the twentieth amendment to the Constitution of the United States the 5th of January having been appointed by law (Public Res. 120, 74th Cong., 2d sess.) for the annual meeting of Congress, the first session of the Seventy-fifth Congress commenced this day.

The Senate assembled in its Chamber at the Capitol.

JOHN N. GARNER, of Texas, Vice President of the United States, called the Senate to order at 12 o'clock meridian.

The Chaplain, Rev. Z. Barney T. Phillips, D. D., of the city of Washington, offered the following

PRAYER

Master of all things and Lord of love, in whom we live and move and have our being: fill our souls with a sense of Thy sheltering care and quicken our energies into newness of life as again we respond to Thy call.

Grant, we beseech Thee, to our President, Vice President, the Members of the Congress and all who hold office in our land, wisdom and strength to know and to do Thy will, and whatsoever else of Thy bounty shall be needful for the fulfillment of their duty as leaders of men and exemplars of the nobler virtues.

Let this be a day of rededication on the part of every Member and officer of the Senate to the highest and holiest things of life, to the love of God and country and to the service of our fellow men.

Give to our Nation the will to peace, that, scorning all lesser aims, we may, in the spirit of utter selflessness, share with each other not only what we have but what we are through the enabling of Thy love. We ask it in the name of Him who is the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Almighty God, our Father in Heaven and on earth, Thou who hast measured the waters in the hollow of His hand and comprehended the dust of earth, be mercifully near us and make us conscious of Thy presence. Thou who hast endowed us with marvelous faculties of mind and soul, let in a flood of light upon the deeper meaning of our high calling. Crown us with courage, zeal, and fidelity that we may be of the company of those immortals who live in lives made better. Forgive, O Lord, our selfish joys and our selfish sorrows and inspire us to consecrate our best selves to all that is worthy. We most fervently pray that our President may be attended by Thy grace, mercy, and truth. Let Thy spirit come mightily and with rich blessings upon our Speaker and every Member of Congress that they may be guided by the highest conceptions of right and duty. Be pleased to regard in divine favor all officials and employees. Lord God of Hosts, speak Thou to the nations in Thy wrath and vex them with Thy sore displeasure. Stay Thou the blows and the flames that fill the cup of the world's sufferings. O come richly and abundantly to our own beloved homeland with a new voice and with a much-needed accent, and let there be a tremendous surging of peace and brotherhood in the very soul of the Republic. Make it rich in happy homes, wise statesmanship, and a boundless faith in an infinite God and in His Son, Jesus Christ, our Savior. Amen.

ANSWERED "PRESENT"

Bankhead Schneider, Wis. Snell

The CLERK. The tellers agree in their tally. The total number of votes cast is 421, of which Hon. WILLIAM B. BANKHEAD has received 324 votes and Hon. BERTRAND H. SNELL has received 83 votes; Hon. GEORGE J. SCHNEIDER has received 10 votes and Hon. FRED L. CRAWFORD 2 votes. Three Members vote "present." Therefore, Hon. WILLIAM B. BANKHEAD, a Representative-elect from the State of Alabama, having received a majority of all of the votes cast, is duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives for the Seventy-fifth Congress.

The gentleman from New York, Mr. SNELL; the gentleman from Wisconsin, Mr. SCHNEIDER; the gentleman from New York, Mr. O'CONNOR; and the gentleman from Alabama, Mr. STEAGALL, will please conduct the Speaker-elect to the chair.

PRESENTATION OF THE SPEAKER-ELECT

The committee appointed by the Clerk escorted Mr. BANKHEAD to the chair.

Mr. SNELL. Members of the Seventy-fifth Congress, it is my high privilege and honor at this time to present your newly elected Speaker. In my judgment, there is no higher legislative position in the gift of the American people. No man ever rises to this position by mere chance and accident. It is the result of long, hard work and experience in the House of Representatives. He must also prove to his colleagues that he has the ability, character, and sound judgment to well administer the tedious, exacting duties of Speaker of this House.

Mr. Speaker BANKHEAD, your long service on the Committee on Rules, your successful majority leadership, together with your fine mental attainments, richly endow you with all the qualifications necessary to well and successfully perform the duties of this great office. We know that you will be just and fair to all of us. We also believe that during your service you will add not only respect and honor to yourself but to the great party you represent. And at this time I want to present to you my warm personal congratulations; and in behalf of the membership of the House of Representatives, your colleagues on each side of the aisle, we wish you every success and happiness in the performance of the duties of this office.

To the Members of the House I now have the honor of presenting your Speaker, the Honorable WILLIAM B. BANKHEAD, a Representative from the State of Alabama. [Applause.]

The SPEAKER-ELECT. Mr. Minority Leader and Members of the Seventy-fifth Congress, I am, of course, very deeply and very profoundly grateful to my good and beloved friend the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. SNELL], the able minority leader of the last Congress and of this Congress, for the very cordial and complimentary fashion in which he has presented me to you as Speaker of the Seventy-fifth Congress.

I have been associated with Mr. SNELL in the House of Representatives for a fifth of a century, and although it is not my practice ever to engage in fulsome flattery or praise of any kind, I think that all Members who have been associated here with him for a number of years will bear testimony to the fact that he is a man of the highest character, of the greatest probity, of fine intellectual capacity, and, above all other things, whenever BERT SNELL makes a verbal agreement with reference to any parliamentary procedure, it is not necessary to reduce it to writing. [Applause.]

If I may speak a little in a vein of reminiscence upon this occasion, I feel very profoundly indebted to him with reference to a certain species of parliamentary education which he taught me. [Laughter.]

A number of years ago, and it has not been so very long ago, the Republican Party was in charge of the House of Representatives, and the distinguished gentleman from New York was the chairman of the so-called powerful Committee on Rules. Some of you may have noticed in the public press or heard upon the floor of this House something about a thing called "gag rule." [Laughter.] When Mr. SNELL was chairman of that Republican Rules Committee and brought upon the floor of this House so-called gag rules which, it appeared to me, stripped minority Members of every vestige of constitutional and parliamentary power [laughter], I was one of the foremost to pour out upon him and his associates the vials of my wrath, and almost felt justified not only in criticizing the rule but holding him up to the execration of mankind.

Then the tide of political fortunes changed, as they have a habit of doing sometimes in this country, especially in the past few years, and I became chairman of the Committee on Rules. In order to expedite what we conceived to be some legitimate party programs, I occasionally brought in here, as chairman of that committee, some innocent little rules [laughter] of the same nature. Thereupon the distinguished gentleman from New York, in an almost apoplec-tic frame of mind, would absolutely tear to pieces that rapine of every parliamentary decency. [Laughter.]

So I am reminded of the old Latin maxim, "Tempora mutantur, et nos mutamur in illis"—"Times change and we change with them." [Applause and laughter.]

I am in the position here this afternoon which I undertook to express in the Democratic caucus yesterday afternoon, after my party associates had so generously bestowed upon me the unanimous nomination for this position. I think I shall repeat that, because it expresses my feelings here.

No man who has been in public life, when some particular kindness has been bestowed upon him, when he has been made the mark of some particular manifestation of regard and esteem upon the part of his associates, has not felt absolutely incapable, in mere words, to express genuinely and truly the emotions of gratitude and appreciation that well up in his heart. I find myself in that situation now.

I cannot forget, my friends, the very tragical and distressing circumstances under which I succeeded to this place, and I do not think that it will be amiss upon this occasion—although later adequate memorial services will be held to his memory—to say that out of devotion to his friendship and in admiration for the invaluable public service of my predecessor, the late lamented and beloved Joseph W. Byrns [applause], I cannot but feel that somehow and in some way his spiritual presence and his solicitude still abide within this Chamber.

I thank you, my friends, for this generous manifestation of your confidence and your esteem. I think that it may be properly said that the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States is certainly one of the greatest deliberative bodies upon the face of this earth. I fully realize, after long observation of the post, the exactions that fall upon the proper execution of the labors of the Speaker, the kind of diligence that he must exercise, the prudence that he must always observe in his decisions, the industry that he must apply to the complicated problems of legislation with which in large measure he is confronted, and at the same time to be fair, courteous, and equitable not only to every segment of public opinion in the House, but particularly meticulous and scrupulous in observing the rights of every individual Member, particularly those upon the minority side.

I realize that some great men have been my predecessors in this position, and I fully realize my inadequacy to measure up to their fine abilities and to the noble traditions they have handed down to those who shall stand in this place. I think it unwise and improper for any incumbent upon taking office to make too many promises, and I shall withhold making any this morning, save to say to you that I shall, in the performance of this duty and responsibility which you have entrusted to me, at all times endeavor to be just and fair and equitable, and to attempt to the very utmost of my limited ability, with the help of God, my Creator, to try to measure up to the illustrious traditions that have been handed down to me by those great predecessors whose portraits hang in the outer corridor. To this end I ask, and I know that I shall receive, your generous cooperation upon both sides of the aisle. [Applause.]

I am now prepared to take the oath of office, and I request that the dean of the House, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SABATH], administer the oath. [Applause.]

Mr. SABATH then administered the oath of office to the Speaker.

SWEARING IN OF THE MEMBERS

The SPEAKER. Some years ago a precedent which had theretofore existed of having the oath administered to Members by States was discontinued and a precedent set whereby all Members took the oath of office at one and the same time, in order to avoid confusion the Chair thinks it best to follow the latter precedent, and the Chair asks each Member of the House and each Delegate to rise in his place while the Chair administers the oath of office.

Mr. O'CONNOR of New York. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from New York rise?

Mr. O'CONNOR of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the gentleman from New Hampshire [Mr. JENKS] stand aside.

Despite the fact that a certificate of his election has been filed with the Speaker, it may be impeached by certain facts which tend to show that he has not received a plurality of the votes duly cast in that congressional district.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Hampshire will stand aside momentarily.

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to the gentleman from New Hampshire standing aside at this time, but it is with the definite understanding that in doing this he yields none of his rights or privileges as a Member of this House or the right of taking the oath of office at this time.

The rules and precedents of the House provide that every man who is duly qualified shall take the oath of office at the beginning of the Congress. Our rules provide that qualification is shown by a duly authenticated certificate from the Governor of the State. The gentleman from New Hampshire, Mr. JENKS, has such a certificate and it has been filed with the Clerk of the House.

The laws of the State of New Hampshire provide that a ballot commission is the final adjudicator in regard to these matters.

Mr. O'CONNOR of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SNELL. Just a moment. I do not yield.

Mr. O'CONNOR of New York. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that at this particular time the matter is not debatable.

Mr. SNELL. I know the gentleman from New York wants to be fair and right in this matter. He has asked that the gentleman from New Hampshire stand aside, and I have a perfect right to make a statement.

Mr. O'CONNOR of New York. Not at this time. The gentleman may make his statement later.

Mr. SNELL. I think I have the right to make this statement now and under the circumstances should be allowed to make it.

The SPEAKER. The request made by the gentleman from New York was that the gentleman holding certificate of election from the State of New Hampshire stand aside momentarily.

The Chair is of the opinion that he waives no rights and just as soon as the other Members take the oath the matter can be settled.

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, I thought it proper for me to make a reasonable statement at this time. It has always been so considered by the House. But if the Speaker and the gentleman from New York [Mr. O'CONNOR] decide I should not do so, I relinquish the floor because I know what I do now must be by unanimous consent and will present a resolution later.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize the gentleman later if he desires to extend his argument.

The Members-elect and the Delegates arose and the Speaker administered the oath of office.
