HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Monday, February 22, 1982

The House met at 12 o'clock noon and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. WRIGHT).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, D.C.,
February 10, 1982.

I hereby designate the Honorable JIM WRIGHT to act as Speaker pro tempore on Monday, February 22, 1982.

THOMAS P. O'NEILL, Jr.,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of George Washington's birthday:

In the words of George Washington, let us pray:

"Almighty God: We make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection; that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large. And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind, which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation. Grant our supplication, we beseech Thee." Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE ACHIEVEMENTS BY HOUSE PAGES

(Mr. MOAKLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to place in the RECORD a list of House pages who have distinguished themselves academically during the first semester of the current school year:

FIRST HONORS (SENIORS)

Sandra Horrigan, Brian Wesol, and Nancy Young.

SECOND HONORS (SENIORS)

Lawrence Bodkin, James Erskine, John Garrett, Andrew Glick, Collen Gomla, Karen Hansen, Margery Kaye, Cydney Bea Mack, and Pollyanna Padden.

SECOND HONORS (JUNIORS)

Kelly Carter, Megan Connelly, Linda Fowells, Sally Holland, Patrick McNamara, Mona Thomason, and Anna Vaslo.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues join me in congratulating these young people on maintaining a high caliber of performance in school while handling their duties in the Congress in a diligent and responsible manner. All of our pages work very hard beginning school at sunrise and then putting in a full workday during House sessions. Those who manage these responsibilities and still win academic honors deserve to have this accomplishment saluted.

UNEASINESS MUST GIVE WAY TO ACTION

(Mr. RATCHFORD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks).

Mr. RATCHFORD. Mr. Speaker, there is an uneasiness in the land. You do not have to read about it in the papers—you can hear it, you can see it, you can feel it.

Workers worried about their jobs; unemployment up weekly in many of our key industries; home mortgage rates headed back up—denying access to decent housing for couples young and old; business loan rates so high that many companies are shaky, and others are closing their doors; old people not making it on fixed incomes; young people denied the opportunity to go to college because of ever-mounting costs, and ever-shrinking student assistance.

Yes, there is uneasiness in the land. And it had better lead this Congress and this administration to a new approach to the economy—an approach that cuts the mammoth deficit; that strips the special-interest sweeteners from the 1981 tax bill; that sets fair priorities in this year's budget, including a tough but honest look at defense spending.

It is time for uneasiness to give way to action.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON S. 1503, STANDBY PETROLEUM ALLOCATION ACT OF 1982

Mr. SHARP submitted the following conference report and statement on the Senate bill (S. 1503) to authorize the President to allocate supplies of crude oil, residual fuel oil, and refined petroleum products during a severe petroleum supply shortage, and for other purposes:

AMENDMENT TO THE ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT

SEC. 2. (a) Title II of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, relating to standby energy authorities, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"PART C—STANDBY PETROLEUM ALLOCATION

"CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS

"SEC. 271. The Congress finds that—

"(1) shortages of petroleum products caused by reductions in imports of petroleum products may occur at any time;

"(2) such shortages could be sufficiently large to cause severe economic dislocations and hardships within various segments of the economy, both regional and national, and constitute a threat to the public health, safety, and welfare; and

"(3) the national security and economic well-being of the United States require that the President have authority, during a severe petroleum supply shortage, to allocate petroleum products so as to minimize adverse effects on the public health, safety, and welfare.

"PURPOSES

"SEC. 272. The purposes of this part are—

"(1) to grant to the President limited and temporary authority to allocate petroleum products, in his discretion, in the event of a severe petroleum supply shortage; and

"(2) to minimize the adverse impacts of such a shortage on the American people and the domestic economy.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 273. For purposes of this part—

"(1) the term 'severe petroleum supply shortage' means a national or regional petroleum supply shortage which the President determines—

"(A) results, or is likely to result, from an interruption in petroleum product imports or from sabotage, accidents, or an act of God;

"(B) is, or is likely to be, of significant scope and duration;

"(C) may (i) cause a major adverse impact on the national security, the national economy, or the economy of any region of the United States, or (ii) threaten the public health, safety, and welfare; and

"(D) may not be reasonably manageable under other authorities available to the President or by reliance on free market pricing and allocation;

"(2) the term 'region' means any geographic area or areas within the United States comprising one or more States or political subdivisions thereof; and

"(3) in applying the definitions of 'State' and 'United States' in paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 3 of this Act, the term 'territory or possession' includes the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

"PROMULGATION OF REGULATION

"SEC. 274. (a)(1) Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this part, the President shall promulgate and transmit to the Congress a standby regulation which provides for the mandatory allocation (if implemented pursuant to this part) of petroleum products under this part.

"(2) In promulgating the standby regulation required under paragraph (1), the President shall, in addition to any other requirement of law—

"(A) provide for notice and opportunity for public hearings in various regions of the United States; and

"(B) provide for opportunity for participation by Executive departments of the Federal Government in the formulation of the standby regulation and in the hearings provided under subparagraph (A), in a manner prescribed by the President.

"(3) Until the regulation required under paragraph (1) is transmitted to the Congress, the President shall prepare and transmit to the Congress a bimonthly status report indicating the progress taken towards the promulgation of the regulation.

"(b) Subject to the following requirements of this section, any regulation under this section may be amended by the President at any time after it is promulgated.

"(c)(1) The standby regulation required under subsection (a)(1), and any other regulation under the authority granted by this part, may include limitations on the price of any petroleum product only if the President finds that such limitations are necessary to ensure effective implementation of such regulation. Such limitations may include provisions restricting discriminatory pricing.

"(2) Any finding by the President under paragraph (1) shall not be subject to judicial review.

"(d) Subject to the implementation requirements of section 275, the standby regulation promulgated under subsection (a), and any amendment to such regulation (other than a technical or clerical amendment)—

"(1) shall be transmitted to the Congress; and

"(2) a period of 30 calendar days shall be permitted to elapse after such transmittal.

The 30-calendar-day requirement of paragraph (2) shall not apply while there is in effect a determination by the President of a severe petroleum supply shortage.

"IMPLEMENTATION OF REGULATION

"SEC. 275. (a)(1) If—

"(A) there is in effect a determination by the President of a severe petroleum supply shortage, and

"(B) notice of such determination, and of the President's intent to implement the regulation promulgated under section 274, and a copy of such regulation (including any amendment thereof), have been transmitted to the Congress in accordance with section 551, and neither House of Congress, in accordance with the procedures specified in section 551, has disapproved (or both Houses have approved) implementation of such regulation, the President may implement such regulation, providing for the allocation of any petroleum product throughout the United States or in any region of the United States. Such regulation may apply to any petroleum product produced in or imported into the United States.

"(2) The Congressional review requirement of paragraph (1)(B) shall apply to any amendment to a regulation authorized to be implemented under paragraph (1) only if—

"(A) the amendment is promulgated during the implementation period permitted under subsection (b)(1),

"(B) the amendment is not a technical or clerical amendment, and

"(C) the amendment would expand the scope of the President's authority under such regulation by extending the application of the regulation (i) to one or more additional regions or categories of petroleum products, (ii) from only end-user allocation to inclusion of a crude-sharing program, or (iii) from only a crude-sharing program to inclusion of end-user allocation.

"(b)(1) Any regulation implemented under this section may not remain in effect after the 90-day period which begins on the date on which the authority to implement any such regulation first becomes effective, except that the implementation authority for any such regulation may be extended by the President for up to 60 additional days, upon his express finding that—

"(A) the severe petroleum supply shortage continues in effect, and

"(B) such authority must be continued to meet the purposes of this part.

"(2) Thereafter, the authority of the President to implement any regulation under section 274 shall terminate, unless pursuant to subsection (a) the President makes a new determination and new transmittal to Congress which are not disapproved by the Congress under subsection (a)(1).

"(c) Should the President implement a program under section 274 for the allocation of residual fuel oil or any refined petroleum product, such program shall provide for a State set-aside of residual fuel oil or any refined petroleum product if such residual fuel oil or refined petroleum product is allocated in such State pursuant to the Federal program.

"ADMINISTRATION OF REGULATION

"SEC. 276. Administration of any regulation promulgated under section 274 shall, to the maximum extent practicable, provide for—

"(A) protection of public health (including the production of pharmaceuticals), safety and welfare (including maintenance of residential heating, such as individual homes, apartments and similar occupied dwelling units), and the national defense;

"(B) maintenance of all public services (including facilities and services provided by municipally, cooperatively, or investor owned utilities or by any State or local government or authority, and including transportation facilities and services which serve the public at large);

"(C) maintenance of agricultural operations, including farming, ranching, dairy, and fishing activities, and services directly related thereto;

"(D) preservation of an economically sound and competitive petroleum industry; including the priority needs to restore and foster competition in the producing, refining, distribution, marketing, and petrochemical sectors of such industry, and to preserve the competitive viability of independent refiners, small refiners, nonbranded independent marketers, and branded independent marketers;

"(E) the allocation of suitable types, grades, and quality of crude oil to refineries in the United States to permit such refineries to operate at full capacity;

"(F) equitable distribution of crude oil, residual fuel oil, and refined petroleum products at equitable prices among all regions and areas of the United States and sectors of the petroleum industry, including independent refiners, small refiners, nonbranded independent marketers, branded independent marketers, and among all users;

"(G) allocation of residual fuel oil and refined petroleum products in such amounts and in such manner as may be necessary for the maintenance of, exploration for, and production or extraction of—

"(i) fuels, and

"(ii) minerals essential to the requirements of the United States, and for required transportation related thereto;

"(H) economic efficiency; and

"(I) minimization of economic distortion, inflexibility, and unnecessary interference with market mechanisms.

"CRUDE-SHARING PROGRAM

"SEC. 277. (a)(1) The standby regulation under section 274 shall include an optional standby crude oil sharing program promulgated in accordance with this section. Should the President decide to implement a program under this part requiring the sharing of crude oil among refiners, that program shall comply with the provisions of this section.

"(2) Any notice of intent to implement a crude-sharing program under this section shall be accompanied by a declaration by the President that such program is likely to result in a significant reduction in anticipated adverse impacts of a severe petroleum supply shortage and thereby benefit consumers as a whole.

"(b) When implemented, any program under this section shall, to the maximum extent practicable—

"(1) minimize the rate of increase in the price of petroleum products during a severe petroleum supply shortage by providing reasonable access to crude oil by specified refiners;

"(2) fairly distribute the burdens of a severe petroleum supply shortage, including such a shortage resulting from an international allocation of petroleum by the United States to foreign countries under the international energy program;

"(3) minimize adverse impacts on consumers served by refiners whose supplies of crude oil have been disproportionately reduced during a severe petroleum supply shortage;

"(4) aid in the equitable distribution of crude oil, at equitable prices, among domestic refiners to the extent determined necessary by the President to effectively deliver needed refined petroleum products to consumers;

"(5) encourage the maintenance by refiners of petroleum product inventories and the acquisition by refiners of secure supplies of crude oil;

"(6) result in the availability of needed refined petroleum products to consumers; and

"(7) achieve the purposes of this part with minimum interference with market mechanisms.

"(c) The program under this section shall provide a mechanism to—

"(1) identify those refiners which will be required to sell, and those refiners which will be offered an opportunity to buy, crude oil;

"(2) determine the extent to which the program will offset the disproportionate impact of reduced supplies of crude oil on the ability of a refiner to provide needed refined petroleum products;

"(3) specify the amount of, and terms and conditions and an equitable price for, crude oil sold under the program;

"(4) decide whether any requirement that a refiner sell crude oil under the program should be reduced because such requirement is likely to create an unreasonable burden on such refiner or be otherwise inconsistent with the purposes of this part; and

"(5) assure, by certification or otherwise, that, to the maximum extent practicable, any benefits or burdens of the program for any refiner are passed on to that refiner's customers on a nondiscriminatory basis.

"GENERAL LIMITATIONS ON AUTHORITY

"SEC. 278. The President shall have no authority under this part to—

"(1) impose or implement any tax, tariff, or user fee;

"(2) prescribe minimum prices for any petroleum product; or

"(3) establish or implement a program for the assignment of rights for end-user purchases of gasoline or diesel fuel, as described in section 203(a)(1) (A) and (B) of this Act.

"LIMITATION ON AUTHORITY OVER CERTAIN INVENTORIES

"SEC. 279. (a) The President shall have no authority under this part to—

"(1) provide for the allocation of consumer petroleum inventories,

"(2) impose restrictions on the consumption of such inventories, or

"(3) consider or take into account the existence or size of such inventories in determining the amount of petroleum products to be allocated to any such consumer.

"(b) For purposes of this section—

"(1) The term 'consumer petroleum inventory' means an inventory of residual fuel oil and refined petroleum products which is—

"(A) held by and in the custody of a consumer (other than a refiner, except to the extent provided in paragraph (3)) for such consumer's own end-use consumption,

"(B) held by and in the custody of such consumer on the day before the date the President determines pursuant to section 275(a)(1)(A) that a severe petroleum supply shortage exists, and

"(C) not thereafter sold by such consumer, but only to the extent that such inventory does not exceed the inventory of residual fuel oil and refined petroleum products held by and in the custody of that consumer for its own end-use consumption on the 30th day prior to the date of that determination.

"(2) The term 'held by and in the custody of', when used with respect to an inventory, means—

"(A) any such inventory owned by the consumer and in the direct possession of the consumer, such as on the consumer's site, and

"(B) at the discretion of the President, any other inventory owned by a consumer.

"(3) The term 'end-use consumption', in the case of an inventory of residual fuel oil and refined petroleum products of any consumer which is a refiner, means—

"(A) the use by the refiner of such residual fuel oil and refined petroleum products to meet normal fuel requirements necessary for operating refinery equipment and facilities for the duration of a severe petroleum supply shortage, including an extension of 60 days under section 275(b)(1), and

"(B) at the discretion of the President, any other use by the refiner.

"(c) Notwithstanding subsection (a), the President may consider or take into account the existence or size of the consumer petroleum inventories held by a consumer in determining whether or not to increase the otherwise applicable allocation under this part to that consumer if the consumer petitions for such increase.

"(d) If any inventory which qualifies as a consumer petroleum inventory is subsequently sold by the consumer, such inventory shall be subject to the authority of the President under this part, effective as of the time of such sale.

"PREEMPTION

"SEC. 280. (a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c), the enactment of this part supersedes and preempts any provision of any law or regulation adopted or promulgated by a State or any political subdivision thereof to the extent that such law or regulation provides for the pricing or allocation of any petroleum product.

"(b) The President may, by rule, exempt from the operation of subsection (a) classes or categories of laws or regulations which would otherwise be preempted under subsection (a), to the extent that the President determines that such laws or regulations would—

"(1) preserve a significant State or local interest;

"(2) not unduly burden interstate commerce; and

"(3) not significantly conflict with or impede operation of this part, achievement of the purposes of this part, or achievement of the objectives of any regulation under section 274.

"(c)(1) The Governor of any State may notify the President of the Governor's intent to implement, under State law and in accordance with the requirements of this subsection, a State set-aside program for residual fuel oil or any refined petroleum product.

"(2) For purposes of this subsection, the term 'State set-aside program' means, with respect to residual fuel oil or any refined petroleum product, a program administered by the State under State law during a period in which no State set-aside program is provided for under section 275(c) with respect to that petroleum product in that State and which—

"(A) is implemented only upon a determination by the Governor that the program is required to meet a petroleum supply shortage within the State which will significantly impair essential public services or essential economic activity;

"(B) continues in effect for no more than 90 days;

"(C) authorizes the Governor to require a prime supplier of residual fuel oil or any refined petroleum product subject to the program to set aside in any month a volume of such petroleum product for distribution under the program which volume does not exceed 5 percent of the total supply, as estimated by such supplier, of such petroleum product which will be sold by the supplier in the State for consumption within the State in that month;

"(D) defines a prime supplier as a supplier which makes the first sale of that petroleum product subject to the State set-aside into the State distribution system for consumption within the State; and

"(E) does not unduly burden interstate commerce.

"(3)(A) The Governor shall provide the President with notice under paragraph (1), accompanied by a request for approval of the State set-aside program the Governor intends to implement, at least 10 days prior to the date on which the Governor intends to implement the program.

"(B) Within 10 days after receipt of such notice and request transmitted by the Governor, the President shall, in his discretion, either approve or disapprove such request and notify the Governor of the President's action.

"(C) To the extent that the President approves the request within such 10-day period, the program shall then be exempt from the operation of subsection (a).

"(D) If the President does not approve such request within such 10-day period, the request shall be considered disapproved and the program shall not be exempt under this subsection from the operation of subsection (a).

"(E) The President's approval of any program under this subsection may be in whole or in part; but only so much of any State set-aside program as the President approves under this paragraph may be implemented.

"(4) Notwithstanding the 90-day limitation in paragraph (2)(B), an exemption under this subsection allowing implementation of any State set-aside program may be extended if the Governor transmits a notice and request therefor to the President. For such purposes, the preceding provisions of this subsection shall apply with respect to any notice and request for such an extension as if it were for exemption for initial implementation.

"(5) Any approval or disapproval by the President of a request under paragraph (3) shall not be subject to judicial review.

"CONTRACT LIABILITY

"SEC. 281. There shall be available as a defense to any action brought for breach of contract in any Federal or State court arising out of delay or failure to provide, sell, or offer for sale or exchange any petroleum product, that such delay or failure was caused solely by compliance with the provisions of any regulation or order issued pursuant to authority granted under sections 274 and 275.

"EFFECT OF PRIOR LAW

"SEC. 282. Nothing in this part shall be construed to require that any action taken under the authority of this part, including allocation of, or the imposition of price controls on, petroleum products, be taken in a manner which would have been required under the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973 had that Act not expired.

"ENFORCEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

"SEC. 283. (a) Whoever violates the requirements of the standby regulation or any regulation or order issued pursuant to authority granted by this part shall be subject to a civil penalty not to exceed $40,000 for each violation.

"(b)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2)—

"(A) sections 205 (other than 205(b)), 206, 209, and 210 of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 (12 U.S.C. 1904, note) shall apply to any regulation promulgated under section 274, to any order under this part, and to any action taken by the President (or his delegate) under this part, as if such regulation had been promulgated, such order had been issued, or such action had been taken under the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970; and

"(B) sections 212 (other than 212(b)) and 213 of such Act shall apply to functions under this part to the same extent such sections would apply to functions under the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970.

"(2) The expiration of authority to issue and enforce orders and regulations under section 218 of such Act shall not affect any authority to amend and enforce the regulation or to issue and enforce any order under this part, and shall not affect any authority under sections 212 and 213 insofar as such authority is made applicable to functions under this part.

"(c) Any penalty under subsection (a) may be assessed by the court in any action brought in any appropriate United States district court. Any such penalty collected shall be deposited into the general fund of the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

"INFORMATION

"SEC. 284. For purposes of this part, the President or his delegate shall, pursuant to authority otherwise available to the President or his delegate under any other provision of law, collect information on the pricing, supply, and distribution of petroleum products at the wholesale and retail levels, on a State-by-State basis. Such information shall be substantially of the same type as was collected during September 1981 by the Energy Information Administration in connection with the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973.

"COORDINATION WITH OTHER AUTHORITIES

"SEC. 285. Nothing in this part affects any authority under any other provision of Federal law to provide for the allocation or pricing of any petroleum product.

"DELEGATION OF PRESIDENTIAL AUTHORITIES

"SEC. 286. (a) The President may delegate all or any portion of his authority to administer any regulation promulgated under section 274 to any State (or officer thereof), as he deems appropriate.

"(b) The President may not delegate any of his authority under this part to any Federal officer or agency of the United States except to officers or agencies of the Department of Energy or of any successor thereof.

"(c) The President may not delegate authority—

"(1) to determine any severe petroleum supply shortage under section 275;

"(2) to make any declaration under section 277(a)(2) respecting a crude-sharing program; or

"(3) to approve or disapprove any request under section 280(c) regarding preemption of State set-aside programs.

"EXPIRATION

"SEC. 287. (a) All authority under this part, and any regulation or order issued pursuant to such authority, shall expire at the end of December 31, 1984.

"(b) The expiration of authority under this part, or any regulation issued pursuant to such authority, shall not affect any action or pending proceeding, administrative or judicial, not finally determined at the time of such expiration, or any action or proceeding based upon any act committed or liability incurred prior to such expiration.".

(b)(1) Section 522(a)(1) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6392(a)(1)) is amended by inserting after the term "This Act" the following: "(other than part C of title II)".

(2) Section 523(a)(2)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6393(a)(2)(B)) is amended by striking out "or II of this Act or this title" and all that follows down through "shall" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "or II (except part C thereof) of this Act or this title (other than any provision of such titles which amend another law) shall".

(3) Section 525 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6395) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(f) This section shall not apply with respect to any violation of section 524 based on a violation of part C of title II or any rule, regulation, or order issued under authority granted by such part.".

(4) Section 526 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 6396) is amended by striking out "(other than any provision of" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "(other than part C of title II or any provision of".

(c) The table of contents for such Act is amended by inserting after the items relating to part B of title II the following new items:

IMPACT STUDY

SEC. 3. (a)(1) The President shall analyze the impact on the domestic economy and on consumers in the United States of reliance—

(B) on the standby program pursuant to part C of title II of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act, as amended by section 2 of this Act.

(2) Such analysis shall—

(A) examine the equity and efficiency of such reliance,

(B) distinguish between the impacts of such reliance on various categories of business (including small business) and on households of different income levels, and

(C) specify the nature and administration of monetary and fiscal policies that would be followed including emergency tax cuts, emergency block grants, and emergency supplements to income maintenance programs.

Projections must be made of the effect of the disruption on Federal tax revenues, Federal royalty payments, and State and local tax revenues.

(b) Within one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit a full and detailed report to the Congress containing the analysis required by subsection (a) along with such recommendations as the President deems appropriate.

OIL STORAGE TAX INCENTIVES STUDY

SEC. 4. Within six months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit a full and detailed report to the Congress on the advisability and alternative means of—

(1) reducing the tax liability of persons who draw down oil reserves during oil supply disruptions, and

(2) providing tax or other incentives for the construction of private-sector oil storage facilities and the maintenance of increased private-sector oil reserves.

INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION STUDY

SEC. 5. Within six months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit a full and detailed report to the Congress on the manner in which oil stockpile and demand restraint measures have been and may be coordinated among some or all allies and trading partners of the United States.

Managers on the Part of the Senate.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 1503) to authorize the President to allocate supplies of crude oil, residual fuel oil, and refined petroleum products during a severe petroleum supply shortage, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The House amendment to the text of the bill struck out all of the Senate bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute text.

The Senate recedes from its disagreement to the amendment of the House with an amendment which is a substitute for the Senate bill and the House amendment. The differences between the Senate bill, the House amendment, and the substitute agreed to in conference are noted below, except for clerical corrections, conforming changes made necessary by agreements reached by the conferees, and minor drafting and clarifying changes.

SECTION 1—SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS

The conferees agreed to adopt the short title of the Senate bill. Thus, the Act may be cited as the "Standby Petroleum Allocation Act of 1982".

The conferees decided to include a Table of Contents in the Act.

SECTION 2—AMENDMENT TO THE ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT

Section 271—Congressional findings

The Statement of Findings in the Senate bill was adopted by the conferees. Modifications were made to reflect the conferees' decision to rely on the definition of "petroleum product" in section 3 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

Section 272—Purposes

The conferees agreed essentially to adopt the language in the Senate bill. The purposes are to grant the President limited and temporary authority to allocate petroleum products, in his discretion, in the event of a severe petroleum supply shortage, and to minimize the adverse impacts of such a shortage on the American people and the domestic economy. The use of the term "in his discretion" is intended to indicate the breadth of discretion and range of options available to the President in allocating petroleum products, but his discretion is of course subject to the limiting provisions in this Part, such as section 275 (Implementation of Regulation), which provides for congressional review, and section 276 (Administration of Regulation).

The reference in the Senate bill to the international energy program was deleted because the conferees do not intend that this Act displace any of the President's existing authority under section 251 of EPCA to meet the obligations of the United States under the international energy program.

Section 273—Definitions

Severe Petroleum Supply Shortage (Sec. 273(1)).—The conferees decided to use the term "severe petroleum supply shortage" to describe the trigger for the Federal program. In defining that term, the conferees agreed to merge the definitions contained in the Senate and House bills. Because a severe petroleum supply shortage could arise in a variety of ways, many of which may be unpredictable, the term has been defined with flexibility rather than specificity. The definition thus provides the President with broad discretion to seek the imposition of allocation controls when, in his judgment, a petroleum supply shortage is sufficiently severe to meet the general criteria specified in the definition, and may not be reasonably manageable by reliance on free market pricing and allocation or under other authorities available to the President. The President's determination of a severe petroleum supply shortage may be made on the basis of circumstances in a specific region, and is not restricted to conditions which are national in scope.

Region (Sec. 273(2)).—The term "region" means any geographic area or areas within the United States comprising one or more States or political subdivisions thereof.

Territories (Sec. 273(3)).—The conference agreement includes the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands within the definition of "United States" due to the responsibility of the United States as administering authority for the residents of the Trust Territory. The Committee notes that the Northern Mariana Islands will continue to be included within the coverage of the Act during the post-trusteeship period due to the resolution of its status, but Palau, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Marshall Islands are not included since their future status has not as yet been resolved. The definition of "State" in EPCA applies to Puerto Rico and Guam.

Petroleum Product.—Because the Standby Petroleum Allocation Act is an amendment to title II of EPCA, the definitions in section 3 of EPCA fully apply, including the definition of "petroleum product", which includes "crude oil, residual fuel oil, or any refined petroleum product (including any natural liquid and any natural gas liquid product)."

Section 274—Promulgation of Regulation

Sec. 274(a): The conferees agreed to require the President to promulgate a regulation on a standby basis within 180 days of enactment, subject then to a layover before the Senate and House of 30 calendar days. The 180-day period is meant as a deadline and the President could, of course, promulgate and transmit the standby regulation within a shorter period of time, if, for example, the President determines a severe petroleum supply shortage under section 275.

In promulgating the regulation, the President is required to provide an opportunity for public hearings in various regions of the United States and for participation by Executive departments of the Federal Government in the formulation of the standby regulation and in the hearings. The conferees also expect interested State and local governments to comment during this period. Bimonthly status reports to the Congress on progress taken towards the promulgation of the regulation are also required.

The conferees merged the Senate and House provisions regarding the scope of this part to make clear that the standby regulation may apply to any petroleum product produced in or imported into the United States. In addition, the President's determination of a severe petroleum supply shortage is not restricted to conditions which are national in scope; the determination may also be made on the basis of circumstances in a specific "region", which may include one or more States or political subdivisions thereof.

The authority delegated to the President under this Act is intended to provide the President with maximum flexibility to implement an allocation program which is consistent with the provisions of this Act and, in his judgment, is best suited to the particular shortage at hand. Thus, subject to the provisions of this Act, the President, in his discretion, may, for example, choose to limit allocations to a single category of petroleum product, to certain classes of end-users, or to allocations of crude oil among refiners, and may choose to implement the program throughout the United States or in any region of the United States.

Sec. 274(c): The conferees adopted the Senate provision to make clear that the standby regulations may include limitations on the price of allocated supplies only to the extent that the President finds that such limitations are necessary to ensure effective implementation of such regulations. Such limitations may include, among other types of price controls, margin controls or restrictions against discriminatory pricing.

This section contains no limitation on the kind of price controls the President could utilize with his allocation controls, provided that the President finds that any price limitations "are necessary to ensure the effective implementation of such regulation". The conferees intend that this phrase should not be read narrowly. "Effective implementation" could include achieving the purposes of the Act, the purposes of the regulation itself, or the objectives of any of the provisions of this Part.

Hence, any type of price controls, including but not limited to margin restrictions and prohibitions of discriminatory pricing (except for those types of price controls barred by section 278) is permitted if the President finds that such limitations "are necessary to ensure the effective implementation of such regulation."

While the Conference Agreement provides that there shall be no judicial review of the President's finding regarding limitations on the price of petroleum products in subsection (c), the conferees do not intend to deny judicial review in those instances in which the Constitution, despite the statutory provision implying the contrary, would provide for judicial review.

Sec. 274(d): The standby regulation and any amendment thereto (other than a technical or clerical amendment) shall not be effective until such regulation or amendment is transmitted to the Congress and lays over for 30 calendar days. However, if a severe petroleum supply shortage is determined to be in effect, then the 30-day layover is not required.

Section 275—Implementation of the Regulations

The Senate receded to the House with respect to limiting the use of the authorities in this part to severe petroleum supply shortages. Accordingly, section 251 of the EPCA is not affected by the adoption of this part and will continue to provide the President authority to implement the obligations of the United States under the international energy program.

Sec. 275(a): The conferees merged the language in the Senate bill and the House bill regarding the procedure for implementing the regulation and the scope of the regulation. The intent of the conferees is to reconcile the Congress' desire to know what it is approving, with the President's need for flexibility in a crisis. Thus if the President expressly provides, in his standby regulations submitted to and approved by Congress at the start of a crisis, that the scope of his authority in the allocation program is limited only to two refiners, and no more than that, then subsequent amendments to the allocation program to include end-user allocation throughout the nation would require new congressional review.

Conversely, if the President's standby regulations submitted to and approved by the Congress at the start of the crisis specified that the scope of his authority in the allocation program is limited to two refiners, but also authorized the President subsequently to take such further action as he deemed necessary, including end-user allocation throughout the nation, then further congressional review of any amendments actually expanding the program in that manner would not be required.

The conferees also intend that the President have authority to carry out the congressionally-approved regulation by rule or by order.

Sec. 275(a)(2) provides the procedure for congressional review of certain substantive amendments during a severe petroleum supply shortage subsequent to implementation of the standby regulation. The conferees adopted a new provision to make clear that the congressional review requirement in subsection (a)(1)(B) shall apply to any amendment to a regulation authorized to be implemented only if the amendment (i) is promulgated subsequent to such authorization, (ii) is not technical or clerical, and (iii) would expand the scope of the President's authority under such regulation by extending the application of the regulation to one or more additional regions or categories of petroleum products, from only end-user allocation to inclusion of a crude sharing program or from only a crude sharing program to inclusion of end-user allocation.

Sec. 275(b): The conferees agreed to merge the language in the Senate and House bills.

Sec. 275(c): The conferees agreed essentially to adopt the language in the Senate bill.

Section 276—Administration of Regulation

The conferees adopted the Senate provision. The considerations set forth in this provision are general objectives which reflect competing and conflicting interests. These general terms could be applied by the President in a variety of specific ways to meet and manage a particular crisis. The conferees fully recognize that, in some instances, it may be impossible to satisfy one objective without sacrificing the accomplishment of another since they are inherently contradictory. The objectives, therefore, can be implemented only to the extent practicable.

The inclusion by the conferees of Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act (EPAA) language in this provision must be interpreted in the context of the basic philosophy of this legislation: broad administrative flexibility and minimum Government intervention in the market. Hence this provision does not mandate the adoption of any particular regulatory program, much less the comprehensive regulatory scheme developed under the EPAA.

Rather, this provision represents a workable set of objectives which the President should seek to satisfy, recognizing that these objectives are inherently contradictory. The President would have the administrative flexibility to determine the most practical approach, after considering the particular circumstances surrounding the shortage, and recognizing his responsibility to minimize Federal intervention in the marketplace.

Section 277—Crude-sharing

The conferees adopted a provision on crude-sharing that generally combined the provisions of the House and Senate bills regarding crude-sharing which provided for the allocation of crude oil among refiners. The President is required to promulgate the crude-sharing program authorized by section 277 as a part of the standby program under section 274 and subject to the requirements of section 275.

The intent of the conferees is that the President will include a crude-sharing program in the standby regulation under section 274 and in the event of a severe petroleum supply shortage the President, at his option, could use this program to require limited sales of crude oil among refiners. For example, in accordance with this section, the President, if he deems it appropriate, could choose to allocate crude only between two refiners in the implementation of the crude-sharing program. Use of the crude-sharing program as an intermediate step might provide the President with an effective means for coping with a petroleum shortage with a minimum of government intervention, and, in particular, without the necessity of resorting to the general price and allocation authority under this Act.

It is the intent of the conferees that prior to implementing any crude-sharing plan the President shall make a declaration that the program is likely to result in a significant reduction in anticipated adverse impacts of a severe petroleum supply shortage and thereby benefits consumers as a whole. Under section 286(c), the President may not delegate the authority to make this declaration.

In paragraph (c)(5) the use of the phrase "by certification or otherwise" describes the methods or mechanisms by which the crude-sharing program will assure that "to the maximum extent practicable, any benefits or burdens of the program for any refiner are passed on to that refiner's customers on a nondiscriminatory basis." If a refiner participating in the program were to falsely certify under this paragraph or to refuse to certify—or if the refiner did not comply with methods chosen other than certification—then the refiner would be made ineligible to purchase crude oil under this crude-sharing program. In addition, civil or criminal penalties under other law (for example, 18 U.S.C. 1001) would apply for false certification.

The methods could include certification by refiners, or any other method the President chose to accomplish the requirement of this paragraph, including the imposition of price and allocation controls within the context of the crude-sharing program.

Section 278—General limitations on authority

This section, which incorporates limitations from both Senate and House provisions, is self-explanatory.

Section 279—Limitations on authority over certain inventories

The conferees adopted a modified version of the House provision which limited the authority of the President under this part with respect to certain inventories of petroleum products held by consumers. The bill passed by the Senate contained no comparable language.

Section 279(a) lists the limitations on the President's authority. These limitations are intended to create a statutory right of protection from regulation for some consumer inventories. Section 279(b) defines terms used in section 279(a) and provides the President broad discretion to extend this protection to other consumer inventories, as well.

A consumer petroleum inventory which is afforded a statutory right of protection from regulation under subsection (a) is one that is owned and in the direct possession of a consumer on the day before the date the President determines a severe petroleum supply shortage exists. In addition, the inventory must be for such consumers' own end-use consumption, and not thereafter sold or exchanged by the consumer. In any event the amount of inventory which is protected by this section cannot exceed the amount of inventory held by and in the custody of that consumer on the 30th day prior to the date of the President's determination.

A refiner's inventories are protected in this section only to the extent they meet the definition in section 279(b)(3) which provides statutory protection for residual fuel oil or refined petroleum products which are used by the refiner to meet fuel requirements necessary for operating refiner equipment and facilities for the duration of a severe petroleum supply shortage, including an extension of 60 days.

For purposes of this section, the term "end-use consumption" when used with respect to consumers is intended to mean use (such as boiler fuel use, process use, or feedstock use) in the manufacture or processing of goods other than "petroleum products", which are defined in section 3(3) of EPCA as "crude oil, residual fuel oil, or any refined petroleum product (including any natural liquid and any natural gas liquid product)." Thus, persons that manufacture or produce "petroleum products" within the meaning of EPCA are "refiners", not "end-use consumers". As intermediaries in the petroleum product processing chain, these middlemen (including refiners, processors, or separators) are not protected by this section, except to the extent of their "necessary" fuel requirements, as defined in section 279(b)(3).

The conferees encourage the President to exercise his discretion under section 279(b)(2)(B) and section 279(b)(3)(B) to define in the standby regulation those additional inventories which shall be given protection from regulation so as to encourage the building of stocks.

Section 280—Preemption

The conferees agreed to adopt the House provision on preemption with Statement of Managers language as follows:

The Senate bill and the House amendment each provided that upon enactment of the Federal law, any provision of a State law or regulation would be superseded to the extent that such law or regulation provides for allocation or pricing of petroleum products. In both cases, the President would be authorized to prescribe by rule classes or categories or exceptions to this preemption. In the case of the Senate bill the President's authority in this regard was narrower than that provided in the House amendment.

The conference substitute generally follows the House amendment. The conferees take favorable note of those expressions of intent in the legislative history in each House to the effect that the provision enacted is to be construed to create a limited preemption of State or local laws or regulations. The limits of this preemption are discussed in the following comments:

In determining whether a particular State law or regulation is encompassed by the terms "pricing" or "allocation," and is thereby preempted, it will be necessary to consider both the purpose and actual effect of the State law or regulation as well as the purposes of the preempting Federal legislation. Another consideration is whether a State law would significantly impede the operation of the Federal allocation program if implemented. Although certain laws will not be preempted upon enactment of the Act (see following discussion), some of those laws ultimately may actually conflict with implementation of the Federal program during a severe petroleum supply shortage. In that event the conferees anticipate that such conflicts will be resolved by the courts in favor of the Federal requirements superseding those of the States.

The conferees agree that a State law which imposes price and allocation schemes similar to the Federal regulations implemented under the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act on all or some types of petroleum product sellers within the State would be a type of "pricing or allocation" law preempted on enactment. State laws establishing set-aside programs also will be preempted under section 280(a) as a type of "pricing or allocation" law preempted on enactment. However, certain State set-aside laws may be subsequently exempted from preemption pursuant to subsections (b) and (c).

The conferees accordingly do not intend that the preemption test consist solely of applying the literal meanings of the terms "pricing" and "allocation". A particular State law may not necessarily be preempted, even though in a strictly technical sense it affects, whether directly or indirectly, the prices or volumes of petroleum products available within a State.

For example, recognizing that the regulations implementing the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act included odd-even laws, the conferees nevertheless anticipate that if a court examines a State odd-even law using the criteria already discussed, the court would not be compelled to conclude that such a law is a "pricing or allocation" law within the meaning of this Part. Although in a strictly technical sense State authorized odd-even programs are allocation systems, they are expressly intended not to be preempted.

Conversely, although a State law may be characterized (for example, in its title or statement of purpose) in a manner that would appear to place it among the laws not intended to be preempted under this section, a court may nevertheless conclude, after close examination of its actual effect and after applying the criteria set forth in the foregoing discussion, that the law is a "pricing or allocation" law and should therefore be preempted.

Thus, there are many types of petroleum-related State laws that would not be preempted by section 275(a) provided that such laws satisfy the criteria in the foregoing discussion so as to escape preemption. Such laws can be grouped in three categories: (1) those providing the Governor with emergency powers to respond to natural and physical disasters affecting public health and safety; (2) laws that promote energy conservation, or restrain demand for petroleum products at the retail level, but would not significantly impede the operation of the federal allocation program; and (3) laws designed to accomplish regulatory goals unrelated to emergency preparedness.

The first category would include those State laws providing for emergency allocation of petroleum products to alleviate a shortage within the State caused by damage to or destruction of facilities located within the United States and resulting from sabotage, accidents, or an act of God.

Examples of laws in the second category are those that promote the conservation of petroleum products, such as laws creating State conservation programs pursuant to the Energy Emergency Conservation Act of 1979, provided such programs do not include allocation and price controls. Also included in the second category are State laws that restrain retail demand for petroleum products, such as odd-even management programs, minimum purchase requirements, car-less day and parking restrictions, fuel switching requirements, car pooling programs, and speed limits.

The third category would include laws that, in general, were not enacted in response to the oil emergencies of the 1970's. Examples of such laws are the following types of petroleum related laws: antitrust, anti-merger, and other State laws barring monopoly pricing or price-fixing; franchising laws; leasing laws; marketing withdrawal laws; trademark laws; licensing laws; intrastate oil pipeline regulation; data collection or reporting requirements; maximum efficient recovery, pro-rationing, well spacing and similar oil production requirements; and tax laws, including income and severance tax laws. The conferees note these laws in general were not enacted in response to the oil emergencies of the 1970's and serve legitimate and longstanding State interests.

While there may be types or categories of laws that are determined not to be preempted by this preemption provision, no law automatically escapes preemption by virtue of the type or category of law in which it falls. It is intended that for any State or local law to escape preemption under this section it must meet all the criteria enumerated in the statute and in the foregoing discussion.

In general, it is the intent of the conferees that the decision as to when and to what extent to replace market mechanisms with mandatory price and allocation program in the petroleum industry is a Federal decision, and State laws that would usurp this Federal role are hereby preempted.

The conferees do not intend to interfere with the ongoing litigation with respect to State laws nor in any way to pre-judge the validity of laws such as State taxation laws containing anti-passthrough provisions, as in the case of Mobil v. Tully, which is currently under review regarding a New York State law.

State Set-Aside (Sec. 280(c)).—While both the House and the Senate bills contained provisions on State set-asides, the conferees agreed to a new provision that retained certain elements of the House and the Senate versions. The agreement of the conferees is that State set-aside programs are preempted at the date of enactment of this Act; however the President may, in his discretion and upon notice from a State Governor of the Governor's intent to implement a State set-aside, affirmatively exempt certain programs from preemption. The burden is, therefore, on the State to seek and to make the case to the President for exemption from the Federal preemption. The conference agreement includes certain criteria which must also be met to qualify for exemption from preemption, including the requirement that the State set-aside may not unduly burden interstate commerce. It is important to note that the Governor's authority to impose a State set-aside program must be derived from State law, not Federal law.

If a Federal program for residual fuel oil or a refined petroleum product under this part is implemented in a State, then section 275(c) would control rather than this section. Section 275(c) mandates that the implemented Federal program provide for a State set-aside program.

In establishing the 5-percent limitation on State set-asides, the conferees do not intend to indicate any preference for that particular percentage. The Governor might request a lower percentage State set-aside. The President could, in his discretion, approve or disapprove the State's request in whole or in part, but he must respond within 10 days. If he approved the proposed set-aside at an earlier time than that, it could go into effect before that 10-day period elapsed.

The conferees intend that the Governor of a State will have no authority under this section to divert petroleum product destined for sale and consumption in another State. Of course, the Governor might under State law conduct audits of prime suppliers in his State to determine if his State were obtaining the amounts of residual fuel oil or refined petroleum products which the prime suppliers had intended the State to receive. In addition, comparison of current consumption and recent historical consumption would be an appropriate factor for a court to consider in determining whether the set-aside in fact encompassed only 5 percent, at most, of the product "destined for consumption" in that State—as opposed, for example, to 5 percent of all products en route through that State.

Section 281—Contract liability

The conferees adopted the provision in the Senate bill providing for a defense to breach of contract actions.

Section 282—Effect on prior law

The conferees agreed to the Senate provision stating that nothing in this Act shall be construed to require that any action taken under this Act be taken in a manner which would have been required under the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act.

The President's allocation authority under this Act is discretionary, not mandatory as it was under the EPAA. The fundamental concept behind the conference agreement is recognition that the nature and scope of a severe petroleum supply shortage is inherently unpredictable, and therefore, the President needs the capability and flexibility to tailor his response to the particular circumstances facing him. The basic philosophy behind this Act is broad flexibility and minimum government involvement in the marketplace.

The conferees do not intend by this provision to nullify the specific procedures specified in this Part, such as the time and manner of judicial review; Federal court jurisdiction and venue; injunction procedures; limitations on and requirements for subpoenas and civil penalties; the manner in which informal rule makings will be conducted, and data collected; the manner of congressional review; and other specific enforcement, administrative, information-gathering, and procedural matters.

Section 283—Enforcement and administration

The conferees agreed to adopt the enforcement provisions in section 7 of the Senate bill. Section 7 incorporated by reference certain provisions of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 relating to both enforcement and administration. Those provisions were retained, with the exception of section 205(b) (reporting requirements under the regulations of the Cost of Living Council) and section 207 (administrative procedure). With those exceptions, section 283 incorporates by reference the same provisions of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 that were made applicable to the EPAA.

Section 284—Information

The conferees adopted the provision in the House bill with a clarification. It was agreed that the President would be required to collect the information pursuant to existing authority.

Section 285—Coordination with other authorities

This provision provides that nothing in this part affects any authority under any other provision of Federal law to provide for the allocation or pricing of any petroleum product.

Section 286—Delegation of Presidential authorities

The conferees agreed the President may delegate all or any portion of his authority under this Act except as provided under this section.

Section 287—Expiration

The conferees selected the expiration date in the House bill, December 31, 1984. With minor modifications, the savings provision in the House bill was also adopted.

SECTION 2(b)—AMENDMENTS TO GENERAL PROVISIONS OF ENERGY POLICY AND CONSERVATION ACT

The conferees agreed to incorporate by reference certain general provisions in title V of EPCA, with the express understanding that the remaining provisions of title V will not apply to this Act. The applicable provisions are sections 521, 524 and 551, and portions of section 523. The conferees decided that with respect to section 523, subparagraph B of paragraph (a)(2) of that section would not apply.

The applicable portions of section 523 include the administrative procedures to be used in implementing the Act, and the provisons for judicial review. Section 523(b) provides for judicial review in accordance with section 211 of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970.

SECTIONS 3, 4, AND 5—STUDIES

The conferees agreed to merge the Senate and House provisions requiring the President to conduct certain studies and submit reports to the Congress. Added to the Senate provisions was the requirement in the House bill that the President analyze the impacts on the economy and consumers of reliance on the standby program during a severe petroleum supply shortage.

SECTION 6—INTERNATIONAL ENERGY PROGRAM AUTHORITIES

The conferees agreed to retain the provision in the House bill extending the expiration date of section 252 of EPCA; however, the extension period was reduced from June 20, 1985 to July 1, 1983. The conferees reached this agreement with the understanding that the Congress, prior to the new expiration date, will review the international energy program and United States participation in that program. Included in that review will be an analysis of the evolution of the International Energy Agency (IEA); a review of the agreements and commitments currently encompassed within the international energy program; an updated assessment of the size of, and rate of increase in, the strategic petroleum reserves held by each participating country; and an analysis of how such reserves would be used in the event the international energy program is activated.

Moreover, it is the intent of the Senate conferees that the Senate will maintain close and continuing oversight over all activities of the IEA, particularly those that raise issues concerning its authority and the scope of its responsibilities. Other subjects to be included in the ongoing review will be the limited antitrust defense provided to U.S. oil companies participating in the international energy program, and IEA policies concerning responses to "sub-trigger" supply problems.

STRATEGIC PETROLEUM RESERVE

The House bill contained a provision regarding preparation of a distribution plan for use during a drawdown of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and procedures for congressional review of that plan and of any decision by the President to draw down the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Although the conferees did not adopt the House provision, they agreed that this provision addressed issues that deserve the prompt attention of, and further study by, the respective Committees of the House and Senate. Indeed, both Houses have subcommittee hearings already scheduled on the SPR program.

At its current level of approximately 250 million barrels the SPR is unquestionably the world's largest stockpile of oil, now worth approximately $8.5 billion on the market but far more than that to the economic security of the United States in the event of a major petroleum supply disruption. The conferees are concerned that neither this nor prior Administrations have formulated a clear set of policies as to how the SPR oil would be drawn down and distributed in a petroleum supply disruption and, moreover, under what circumstances the President likely would exercise his authority to draw down the SPR. Clarification of these issues would enable business and government to better assess the extent to which the SPR oil would be available to them in a variety of situations, so as to facilitate emergency response planning by individual firms, States and localities.

Because of the importance of the SPR to our national and economic security the conferees firmly believe that the Congress should be involved in this process of generally defining the use of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Another issue raised by the conferees is what, if any, is the relationship between the SPR and the potential obligations of the United States under the International Energy Agency agreements? To what extent do the other IEA member nations have oil-stock building policies? And how are those policies related to the agreements among IEA member nations?

These issues must be addressed and resolved as a prerequisite to defining the availability of oil from the SPR to the domestic economy.

Certainly the physical limitations of the SPR storage facilities themselves must be considered as well. For example, the conferees understand that there are physical limitations as to how many times certain SPR storage caverns can be drawn down and refilled. Future plans for the use of the SPR must incorporate realistic estimates of how frequently the Nation could expect to turn to the SPR for oil.

The conferees consider the SPR to be a national security asset, a strategic asset that is vital to the economic security of the United States in light of our substantial dependence on foreign sources of petroleum. The use of SPR oil for nonstrategic purposes, such as a source of revenue or as a market normalizing mechanism in the absence of a crisis, is an issue of grave concern to the conferees.

The absence of clear policies on the use of this national resource might result in its misuse if drawdown and distribution policies remain largely undefined. It is with this concern in mind that the conferees raise the issues outlined herein and urge prompt congressional involvement in their resolution.

TRIBUTE TO RANDY THOMAS, IMPERIAL POTENTATE OF THE SHRINE, AND A TRIBUTE TO THE SHRINERS

(Mr. BENNETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, Randolph R. Thomas, of Jacksonville, Fla., the area of my representation in Congress, is imperial potentate of the Shrine of North America. He is a graduate of Jacksonville University, president of McDuff Appliances Stores, which he founded. He is a director in other businesses, including the Bank of Green Cove Springs and Sav-A-Stop, Inc. Under his leadership the Shrine headquarters has been established in Tampa, Fla., and favorable consideration is being given by that fine organization to the establishment of a hospital for crippled children in the Tampa Bay area. It is a pleasure for me to pay tribute to him and to the wonderful organization of the Shrine for their great leadership for good things in our country and for their many accomplishments.

Randy Thomas is a member of Florida's Council of 100 and serves on the boards of the Big Brothers of America, Leukemia Society, on the national level; and other local-level philanthropic boards. Certainly he and his wife, Olene, have made a tremendous impact for the betterment of mankind, not only in Florida, but widely throughout the country.

The Shrine of North America also deserves great credit. It was founded in 1872 as a fraternity dedicated to good fellowship and has grown into an international organization that supports a network of 21 hospitals specializing in care of crippled children. Their hospitals are open to all children, regardless of race, religion, or relationship to a Shriner; and care is free and financial need is a prerequisite for admission. The hospital in Tampa is scheduled to open by 1984. Certainly the Shriners, and Randy Thomas in particular, do a great work and deserve every congratulation.

HIGH INTEREST RATES MAY CALL FOR LEGISLATIVE ACTION

(Mr. REUSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. REUSS. Mr. Speaker, earlier this morning the distinguished majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. WRIGHT), announced an innovative use of tax policy to bring down interest rates. I commend the majority leader for his leadership in combating what is certainly America's No. 1 problem, the major cause of our recession, the major cause of our 10 million unemployed—the greatest number since 1937—and the major cause of the unprecedented wave of business bankruptcies.

Something must be done, and a legislative approach is one that should surely seriously be considered. But what we should bear in mind is that interest rates are high because President Reagan and the Federal Reserve Board have gotten into bed together and are squeezing the money supply even more and tightening money even more in the face of the very discouraging recession that now confronts us. The majority leader's innovative action shows that a legislative approach may be necessary.

Mr. Speaker, I hope and pray that there will be a change of heart so that that approach is not necessary.

ECONOMIC RECOVERY THWARTED BY HIGH INTEREST RATES

(Mr. ALEXANDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous matter.)

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. Speaker, in the President's news conference last week he publicly supported the high interest rate policy of the Federal Reserve.

Our Nation is in the midst of one of the worst recessions since the Great Depression. Yet, last week the interest rates jumped upward again at the same time that private sector and Government economists were voicing concern that rises in the interest rates would choke off our Nation's chances for economic recovery.

Some economists believe that the recovery effect of the 1981 Reagan tax cut has been lost to high interest rates.

Since the President has joined with the Federal Reserve to sustain the high interest rate policy which is breaking the back of the American economy, it is clearly time for Congress to take action to remove this unnecessary and counterproductive burden from the backs of the American people.

Farmers cannot make a crop and stay in farming paying 18- and 19-percent interest rates.

The housing industry cannot make a sustained recovery from its current deep depression with homebuyers pushed away from the market by rising interest rates and economic uncertainty.

These are two or our most basic industries. On the economic health of farming and housing rests the job futures of hundreds of thousands of our workers in manufacturing, business, and service industries. If farming and housing cannot make a recovery because of high interest rates our economy as a whole will not be able to do so either.

The experts are telling us that the share of farm production costs in 1981 represented by interest on credit was 13 percent—up from 7.5 percent a decade ago. For the past 2 years the real purchasing power of farmers has decreased—and agriculture experts are telling us that the same thing could happen in 1982. If that prediction comes to reality, it would be the first time since the 1931-33 period that farmer purchasing power has dropped for 3 straight years.

We have just received news of a Brookings Institute study which indicates that our savings and loan industry—the traditional financial backbone of the housing industry—is in its worst crisis since World War II. The cause—high interest rates.

Attached is an article by Caroline Atkinson of the Washington Post of Sunday, February 21, 1982:

(By Caroline Atkinson)

President Reagan blamed the Federal Reserve. Fed officials blamed the administration. And meanwhile, interest rates climbed still higher, with major banks pushing their key prime lending rate to 17 percent last Wednesday.

The President changed tactics on Thursday, and embraced the Fed's monetary policy at a televised press conference. But words alone are unlikely to bring interest rates down.

Few analysts are willing to bet on what will. The cost of money is now extraordinarily high both in relation to inflation and to the state of the business cycle. This year's combination of rising interest rates, exploding money growth, and deepening recession has baffled economists and policy makers.

Interest rates generally fall during recession as private credit demands fall off. The drop in inflation over the past year also should have pushed nominal interest rates down by cutting that portion of interest rates that merely compensates lenders for rising prices. Instead, rates are rising, and no one is quite sure why.

For a while last fall, all the economic indicators moved in step and signaled recession. Unemployment rose, production fell and interest rates began to come down, while the money supply stayed flat. But in November, money growth accelerated sharply, and in early December interest rates stopped falling and began to climb.

Such unexpected strength in the financial indicators could have been an early signal that the economy was recovering. In 1980, a rise in the money supply was the first indication that the short, sharp recession of the second quarter was over.

But just as the banks moved the prime up again last week, the Federal Reserve published statistics showing that the current recession worsened at the turn of the year. Industrial output dropped by 3 percent in January, and capacity utilization fell to its lowest level for seven years. Bad weather contributed to the January slump, but it did not account for it all.

While there may be confusion about just why interest rates are rising in midst of recession, there is little doubt among economists that if the rise is not halted, this year's promised economic recovery will not materialize.

Interest rates on short-term Treasury debt are already back up close to their prerecession peaks. Long-term bond rates and mortgage interest rates fell only slightly from their 1981 highs and are fast approaching them again. It was these high rates that precipitated the recession.

Some economists have already revised their economic forecasts downward to show a decline in gross national product in the current quarter that matches the 5 percent annual-rate fall at the end of last year. In his news conference, the president backed off from earlier administration predictions that the economy would pick up briskly this spring.

He commented that "high interest rates present the greatest single threat today to healthy, lasting recovery," and held out hope of more cooperation between the administration's fiscal policy and the Fed's tight money policy. "The administration and the Federal Reserve can help bring inflation and interest rates down faster by working together than by working at cross-purposes. . . . I am sensitive to the need for a responsible fiscal policy to complete a firm, anti-inflationary monetary policy."

Explanations for the upset in financial markets—and therefore recommendations about how to correct it—have centered around the conflict between the administration's growth-oriented fiscal policy and the Fed's tight monetary targets. Some analysts, and Fed Chairman Paul Volcker, stress the role of the large projected budget deficits. These raise long-term interest rates, they argue, by adding to financial market fears of future inflation, and so adding to the "inflation premium" included in the long rates. A huge and growing federal presence in financial markets also contributes directly to raising interest rates by increasing the demand for credit, they argue.

Others put more emphasis on the Fed's tight monetary policy. The present targets for money growth simply do not leave enough room for the economy to grow satisfactorily, economists James Tobin and Lawrence Klein told a congressional committee recently. When recovery starts it will run into this "monetary lid," interest rates will climb automatically as credit demands rise, and the economy will stall, they and others say.

Those who attribute more weight to monetary policy believe that the economy will grow only sluggishly with present Fed policies, almost irrespective of what happens to fiscal policy and the budget deficit. The present run-up in interest rates—even before the economy has begun to recover—illustrates just how effectively present money policies work to hold down the economy and squeeze out inflation, according to one top Wall Street economist.

Tight money will work to hold down growth by keeping interest rates relatively high, he says, and can override the attempts of Congress and the administration to boost the economy though fiscal policy.

If the administration and Congress try to raise growth through running a big deficit, interest rates will rise all the more and offset the additional demand from the deficit. It may be possible to bring interest rates down through reducing the deficit substantially and easing credit market pressures. But the tax increases or spending cuts that reduce the deficit will themselves dampen the economy, the same analyst argues, by reducing the spending power of taxpayers in the one case or beneficiaries of government programs in the other.

In this view, the Fed is the real culprit for high interest rates and the economy's poor growth performance, as well as the hero of the anti-inflation battle. If more growth rather than less inflation is the objective, then the Fed should raise its money targets, accept somewhat more inflation than otherwise, and give the economy room to recover.

But Volcker argues, financial market concerns about inflation are now so great that it is no longer possible to bring down interest rates and stimulate recovery by increasing the money supply. When money growth accelerates, interest rates rise because of market fears of future inflation, rather than falling in response to easier credit. In recent weeks rising money supply has indeed coincided with higher interest rates.

Conversely, the drop in money announced on Friday could lead to a decline in rates.

However, this does not suggest that all the Fed needs to do to bring down interest rates is tighten the monetary screws. An alternative explanation for the market's apparent perversity is that financiers view an unexpected rise in the money supply as a signal for the Fed to tighten up. Market participants expect the central bank to move swiftly to choke off any sudden increase in the money supply—by rationing credit and raising rates—so they push rates up themselves as soon as the increased money numbers are announced.

While an announced drop in the money supply could work in the opposite direction, the underlying tension between a constricted money supply and an economy that is trying to grow will put a limit on how far rates can drop, the Wall Street economist said.

A longer, deeper recession will bring rates down. But higher money targets could also do the trick, and without the cost in terms of lost output and employment. Such a policy would risk more inflation, however, and the Fed is unlikely to embark on such a path, especially while the administration's fiscal policy is also going for more growth rather than less inflation.

HIGH DEFICITS SIGNAL NEW APPROACH ON TAX CUTS

(Mr. NELSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NELSON. Mr. Speaker, last year in confronting the Nation's economic future, we decided in this House in a bipartisan fashion to adopt the economic plan as prescribed for us by our President. In looking back on those activities of 1981, now in light of the President's budget that has just been submitted—the budget which proposes not one large deficit near $100 billion for fiscal year 1983 but continuing those large deficits each year over several years—I feel that we simply must reduce that proposed deficit.

There is only so much we can cut in spending in defense and is only so much that can be cut from social programs. To lower the President's deficit significantly there is only one other place we can turn, and that is to delay or reduce the huge tax cut package that we enacted last July.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, as one who supported the President's tax cut, I want to explain that I think we in the Congress, myself included, made a mistake. We overdid it. We ought to partially undo it and bring down this near $100 billion proposed deficit that will continue to partially sustain high interest rates.

LATCHKEY CHILDREN

(Mrs. HOLT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, a sixth-grade teacher in Glen Burnie, a middle-class community in my district, was shocked to find out that 24 of her 28 pupils were latchkey children, so-called because of the house keys they wear on strings around their necks. It is time that we focus our attention on the millions of latchkey children in this country. Today close to 60 percent of all mothers are working outside the home. Their children return from school to empty homes where they spend lonely, fearful hours until their parents return. Unsupervised for lengthy periods every day, some of them turn to vandalism and other crimes. For others, television is the babysitter. During vacations and holidays, these children are even more isolated.

Professors Thomas and Lynette Long were quoted in a U.S. News & World Report article last September, outlining this problem. They make a lot of sense.

We have to help parents find ways to use neighborhood resources, such as senior citizens, volunteer organizations, high school students, and the schools, to meet the problem. The few programs that exist now are primarily designed to work within the school system. I am looking for ways to set up a small pilot program in my district and I urge my colleagues to work with me to find ways to solve this comparatively recent and very troubling situation. The latchkey child needs a new version of the extended family.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM REFORM LEGISLATION

(Mr. ROTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROTH. Mr. Speaker, though our agenda for this session is set for budget battles, I urge my colleagues to bring effective criminal justice system reform legislation to the floor.

Support for mandatory sentencing is growing. My own bill to impose a mandatory sentence of 2 years without possibility of parole on persons convicted of using a handgun in the commission of a crime has 37 cosponsors.

However, mandatory sentencing will not of itself bring integrity back to criminal justice. We need strict parole and probation standards, plea bargaining and bail reform, new prison construction, sensible habeus corpus limitations, and revision of the insanity defense.

Enacting all of these reforms would make the criminal justice system responsive to society's right to swift and certain punishment of convicted offenders.

While we in the House of Representatives delay action on criminal justice reform, countless of our constituents—law-abiding Americans who look to this body for leadership—will be the victims of repeat offenders who commit large numbers of serious crimes.

Again, I urge my colleagues to bring effective criminal justice reform legislation to the floor. Crime has reached epidemic proportions—now is preeminently the time for us to act.

MEN AND WOMEN OF DEA COMMENDED

(Mr. COUGHLIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COUGHLIN. Mr. Speaker, shortly after the House adjourned for the February district work period, I was disturbed to learn that two agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration, Kelly McCullough and Charles Martinez, had been brutally attacked and wounded while on assignment near Cartagena, Colombia. Both men were shot after a band of men broke into their hotel room. According to news reports, McCullough was wounded in the throat while Martinez, was shot in the shoulder and leg. I am pleased to report that both agents are now out of the hospital and are making good recoveries at home.

McCullough and Martinez, both pilots, were in Colombia in connection with Operation Tiburon, a 14-month joint United States-Colombian campaign to shut off the flow of marihuana from Colombia into the United States. Colombia is the source of as much as 80 percent of marihuana available in the United States.

Operation Tiburon has been a major DEA success. Attorney General William French Smith has called it the most successful international antimarihuana campaign in history. The operation resulted in 495 arrests in the United States and 40 in Colombia; 95 boats were impounded. U.S. officials seized 1.7 million pounds of marihuana and Colombian officials seized 4.7 million pounds, figures which total about 20 percent of the estimated flow of Colombian marihuana into the United States during the operation.

This kind of success does not happen by accident. It is the result of careful planning, long hours, and personal dedication and hardship by hundreds of individuals working under extremely dangerous conditions. They are the unsung heroes of a unique kind of very real combat and their service to the Nation all too often goes unheralded.

Unfortunately, it takes an incident such as the wounding of agents McCullough and Martinez to remind us just how perilous but essential the work of DEA is. I commend the men and women of the Drug Enforcement Administration for their courage, commitment, and personal sacrifice in the frontlines of the war on illegal drug traffic. I congratulate Acting DEA Administrator Francis M. Mullen, Jr., on the success of Operation Tiburon and all DEA personnel who made it possible. And I especially want to extend my personal wishes for a full and speedy recovery to agents Kelly McCullough and Charles Martinez and to express my gratitude for their bravery and service to the Nation.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BENNETT) is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. Speaker, we celebrate today George Washington's 250th birthday. Even to this day there is no American in history who can be considered to be a more significant American leader.

Born in Westmoreland County, Va., and reared on his father's farm on the Rappahannock River opposite Fredericksburg, George Washington, in his early teenage years obtained there good training in husbandry and in leadership responsibilities. After the death of his father, George Washington became the ward of, and lived in the home of, his half brother Lawrence, who was married to Anne Fairfax, relative of Sir Thomas Fairfax, who owned 5 million acres in northern Virginia and in the Shenandoah Valley.

The bachelor Lord Fairfax came, in 1746, to America to live with his cousin George William Fairfax at Belvoir, near Mount Vernon; and 2 years later he employed the 16-year-old George Washington to survey his land holdings.

Washington went on to be the official surveyor of Culpeper County, Va. In 1752 he inherited Mount Vernon and became one of the principal farmers in the American colonies. He practiced scientific methods in his farming and thought of himself as a professional farmer. He said of farming: "It is honorable, it is amusing and, with superior judgment, it is profitable."

He had a strong ambition to serve his fellow man in military pursuits, something that was stimulated by the martial exploits of his father and his brother Lawrence. In November of 1752 he was appointed adjutant for the southern district of Virginia and the next year he was sent to tell the French soldiers in the border forts that these were English lands and they must be evacuated by the French. He brought back the reply from the French that "It was their absolute design to take possession of the Ohio, and by God they would do it." Upon bringing this news back to Williamsburg, the capital of Virginia, he was appointed lieutenant colonel and sent out to recruit troops to fight the French. Washington's attack on the French, May 28, 1754, began the last French and Indian War but by July 3 he was forced to surrender, being outnumbered more than 2 to 1 by the French troops.

General Edwin Braddock came over from England then, with an army, in February of 1755, making Washington his full colonel assistant; and waging an unsuccessful attack on Fort Duquesne where the French were solidly lodged. Washington served with heroism in the encounter with the enemy troops, had two horses shot from under him, and miraculously escaped death himself. In August of 1755, while still only 23 years of age, he was made commander of the Virginia troops. Braddock having been killed in the effort to route the French, was succeeded by Gen. John Fores, who, with the aid of Washington, took Fort Duquesne in 1758. Then Washington, recently elected to the house of burgesses, resigned his military rank of brigadier general and assumed his civilian duties.

He married the widow Martha Custis in 1759 and pursued his farming activities on his and her plantations with an enthusiastic vigor. The marriage had greatly extended his already substantial plantations. He was indeed an enthusiastic farmer and wrote "middling land under a man's own eyes is more profitable than rich land at a distance." He enjoyed the bucolic and the sophisticated pleasures of his times and at Mount Vernon in the 7 years prior to 1775 entertained more than 2,000 guests at his home, many of them for overnight or more extended visits.

He was a leading member of the first revolutionary Virginia Legislature in 1774 and stated, "I will raise a thousand men, subsist them at my own expense and march myself at their head for the relief of Boston." He was promptly elected one of the seven Virginia delegates to the First Continental Congress; and when he attended it in 1774, he came in his full military uniform. Already head of the forces of Virginia, he was chosen to be Commander in Chief of all the Continental Armies in 1775.

Without detailing here the events of the Revolution, it may be said in summary of his military leadership and success that the heart of it lay in his keeping a viable army in the field until the patience of the British had been exhausted and there was no stomach in England for the continuation of the war. The successful battle of Yorktown, the 200th anniversary of which we celebrated last year, virtually ended the war and gained for the United States their independence.

After the war Washington returned to Mount Vernon and took up again his agricultural interests. There was a chaotic political condition in the United States in those early years and Washington was a prompt exponent of a constitutional convention to provide as he stated: "a radical cure." He presided over the convention when it met in Philadelphia in 1787; and although he seldom entered into the formal debates, his weight of character did more than any other single force to bring the convention into agreement and to obtain ratification afterward.

In 1789 he was unanimously elected as our first President. His leadership as President was marked by the caution, methodical precision, and sober judgment that always were typical of him.

The clash between Jefferson, the Secretary of State, and Alexander Hamilton, his Secretary of Treasury, was a deep one and he came to rely more and more on Hamilton. When war broke out between France and England in 1793, Washington took Hamilton's view that the United States should disregard the treaty of alliance with France and preserve a strict neutrality, saying, "In a word, I want an American character, that the powers of Europe may be convinced that we act for ourselves and not for others."

Jefferson, who had given some hope to the efforts of France in this conflict resigned at the close of 1793 as Secretary of State. The congressional district which I represent in Florida had flying over it in the years 1793–95 the French republican flag as a result of a rebellion among inhabitants of Florida who sought to gain independence with the help of France, then at war with Spain as well as with England. Jefferson had encouraged their efforts and Washington had discouraged them and sent troops to the St. Mary's River to dissuade more American citizens from assisting in the rebellion. Washington's Farewell Address, his most often quoted statement in the years that followed, stressed the need to evade entangling alliances. His judgment that we wought to stay out of the quarrels of other peoples is as sound today as when he uttered it.

In his two terms of the Presidency, Washington set many precedents. He insisted on the secrecy of the Presidential papers when Congress asked for the correspondence that had led to the Jay Treaty, which the President had controversially signed in 1794. More important, perhaps, he insisted on the dignity of the Presidency in all matters, while utilizing the advice and deliberations of an able Cabinet. Upon retirement at the end of his second term, he went back to farming at Mount Vernon, again accepting the position of Commander in Chief in 1798, when a prospect of war with France occurred and then quickly dissolved in that year.

The greatness of this man has tended to make him obscured in myth and therefore some human comments might be appropriate. For instance a Virginia officer observed of him "his head is well shaped though not large but is gracefully poised on a superb neck; a large and straight rather than a prominent nose, blue-gray penetrating eyes, which are widely separated and overhung by heavy brows, a pleasing benevolent though a commanding countenance, dark brown hair which he wears in a cue, his features are regular and placid with all the muscles of his face under perfect control, though flexible and expressive of deep feeling when moved by emotions. In conversations he looks you full in the face deliberate, deferential, and engaging." Although he was such a commanding person, 6 feet 2, 209 pounds, and very dignified, many people felt him distant. It is recorded that at the tavern in New York when he said goodby to his generals in 1783, he wept and threw his arms around Henry Knox, his youngest general, and kissed him on the cheek. There are many instances of his refusal to condemn quickly those who had been accused. I am presently engaged on weekends in writing a biography of Gen. Robert Howe, a Continental general who served under George Washington who was accused of disloyalty and whom Washington quickly upheld saying that the enemy would often try to demean the character of our officers as a method of stirring up trouble and dissension. This is but one of many examples of Washington's cool and deliberate attention to preserving the rights of all presuming innocence in every appropriate occasion.

He dearly loved his wife, Martha, called my dearest in his letters, and during the war rode long distances to visit her whenever it was at all possible for him to do so.

He was riding the hounds on his plantation when he caught quinsy on a chilly December 12, 1799, day and died in 2 days at the age of 67.

The news of his death placed the entire Nation in mourning and the sentiment of the country thoroughly endorsed the famous words of Henry Lee embodied in the John Marshall resolution introduced in the House of Representatives that he was "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BENNETT. I yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

THE 10TH ANNIVERSARY FOR PROJECT HAPPY, A SUCCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. TAUKE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

● Mr. TAUKE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the offices and individuals who participated in last year's Project Happy. Project Happy is the annual charity drive on the Hill in which we ask offices to "adopt a family" for the holidays. This was the 10th anniversary for Project Happy, and it was marked by the most successful year to date. I have had the honor and pleasure of coordinating Project Happy for the past 3 years, so you can understand my excitement over 1981's success. Since its initiation in 1971 when only a handful of offices participated, the program has grown to include more than half the congressional offices on the Hill as well as clubs, committees, agencies, and departments. We cannot expect to solve all the problems that confront these families and individuals on a daily basis, but we have brought a small token of Christmas cheer into what would normally have been a bleak and dismal holiday season.

I would like to also extend my thanks to Congressman FINDLEY and his staff for their added support again this year, and the Congressional Staff Club, the Army Liaison, and the Library of Congress for their support in Project Happy. A list of all the congressional offices that helped will follow my remarks. I would also ask, Mr. Speaker, for unanimous consent to include in the RECORD a thank you letter from Catholic Charities, which I feel is really a thank you to every office that participated.

We hope that in years to come we will be able to say that every office contributed in this unique Christmas spirit. I wish to extend my deepest heartfelt thanks once again to those of you who participated in Project Happy.

ASSOCIATED CATHOLIC CHARITIES,
ARCHDIOCESE OF WASHINGTON,
Washington, D.C., January 19, 1982.

Hon. TOM TAUKE,
Congress of the United States, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN TAUKE: The experience of working with you and your staff on Project Happy this past Christmas has been an exciting and most rewarding one. I wish to take this opportunity to thank you and express the deep appreciation of Associated Catholic Charities and of all those people who benefitted from this Project. I know first hand of the amount of work involved on my own part and can pretty well guess how much time and effort it must have taken for your staff to do all that they did—they were magnificent. Their enthusiasm and cheerfulness were what made the Project such a success this year!

We received a check for $50.00 from your office in yesterday's mail for Project Happy. This brings the total amount of money contributions to Catholic Charities from Project Happy to $1,968.00—think of that—almost $2,000! This money has been divided among our four branch offices and our main office and is to be used for those needs of clients which we would otherwise be unable to help them with.

We have had so many expressions of thanks for the help provided from the recipients! Enclosed is a card we received from one such family. I have also enclosed copies of two articles which appeared in the Catholic Standard about Project Happy.

In closing, let me express once again our deep appreciation and gratitude for your help and concern in spearheading Project Happy. I look forward to working with you all again next year. May God's choicest blessings be yours for your work in helping us to help His needy ones.

FATHER ARMANDO PIERINI

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. ANNUNZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

● Mr. ANNUNZIO. Mr. Speaker, on Sunday, February 21, Father Armando Pierini of the Pious Society of St. Charles Borromeo (known as the Scalabrini Fathers) was honored for 50 years of service to his church and community. Over 1,000 people assembled at The Carlisle in Lombard, Ill., in a gigantic celebration to honor this dedicated man who has given 50 years of his life to serving his fellow man.

My wife, Angie, and I have known Father Pierini for the past 30 years. He is the founder and former administrator of Villa Scalabrini, the Italian home for the aged, located in North Lake, Ill. I have had a close working relationship with him, having served as chairman of the Villa Scalabrini development fund for the past 15 years.

Villa Scalabrini today is the largest Italian old people's home in America. The land and its buildings are valued at over $25 million. Over the years we have built phase I, and phase II; and now, phase II has been completed and recently dedicated by His Eminence John Cardinal Cody.

The Scalabrini Fathers are the priests of the Italian immigrants—those people who left Italy to settle in America, Canada, Australia, Argentina, Brazil, and many other countries. Wherever the Italian immigrant went, the Scalabrini Fathers followed and established churches and schools to serve the Italian immigrants. In cities all over the United States where Italo-American communities are located, you will find the missionaries of St. Charles Borromeo, the Scalabrini Fathers.

Father Pierini is a humble priest, a giant among men, and in celebrating his 50 years of service in the priesthood, I join his legion of friends in extending to him best wishes for continued good health and many more years of service to the people of our community.

I am inserting at this point in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD an article written by Father Salvatore DeVita, C.S., former Provincial Superior of the Pious Society of St. Charles Borromeo, which appeared in the February issue of FRA NOI. The article follows:

FATHER PIERINI MARKS 50 YEARS OF SERVICE TO CHURCH, COMMUNITY

(By Father Salvatore DeVita, C.S.)

On June, 29, 1982, Rev. Father Armando Pierini, C.S. the dedicated founder of Villa Scalabrini, former rector of Sacred Heart Seminary and past Provincial Superior, will celebrate 50 years of service in the priestly and missionary ministry.

It was on June 29, 1932, that a young energetic member of the Pious Society of St. Charles Borromeo was ordained by the Bishop of Piacenza for service in the apostolate among the Italian immigrants in America.

After spending one year as acting rector of the community's house of studies in Rome, he was sent to the Chicago Province where he was assigned as Father Joseph Bernardi's assistant at Santa Maria Addolorata parish, located on May and Erie streets. For two years he administered to the spiritual needs of that immigrant community performing his duties willingly and enthusiastically.

In early 1935, the Province obtained permission to open the first minor seminary outside Italy and in September, the first aspirants were received with Father Pierini as their rector. The seminary was housed in the rectory of the old Santa Maria Addolorata Church, which burned down some years before, located on Grand Ave. near Sangamon St., on Chicago's near north side.

That first pioneer class was made up of seven students from Our Lady of Pompeii parish, two twins from Our Callistus and one from Our Lady of Pompeii parish, two twins from St. Callistus and one from Santa Maria Addolorata. The quarters were tight, the students young, the rector enthusiastic and self-giving, and the sacrifices were plenty.

Father Pierini taught Latin, beginning with the careful analysis of the grammatical parts of English to help his students understand the complexities of conjugations and declensions of the Latin. Occasionally he would utter a few well stressed words and encourage the opening of those youthful minds to appreciation of the language of Caesar and Cicero and Tacitus. He was assisted by Father Louis Bolzan who taught Italian, Mr. Guy DeFilippis who taught English, and Mr. Paul D'Arco who taught mathematics.

Notwithstanding the inconveniences of the house, both the students and faculty indeed impressed visitors with their sense of serenity and inspiration to attain their ultimate goal. This spirit imbued the second class as well which entered the following school year.

This now necessitated the first expansion: renting an old dance hall for sleeping quarters. But this situation was remedied in the spring of 1937 when the seminarians moved to their new home in Melrose Park.

Father Pierini immediately set to work not only to improve the scholastic environment but also to beautify the surrounding grounds. And so it was that Calvary Hill Shrine and the Holy Stairs with the lagoon in front and around the shrine's little island slowly came to be by dint of the labor of both rector and students, giving up much of the time free from classes and study periods. Father was never averse to operating heavy mechancial equipment needed for the job.

Beside the spiritual exhortations he delivered to the students, he was asked to assume the tasks of directing the parish groups known as the Zelatrices and Promoters of the family enthronement of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and also support and encourage the Sacred Heart Seminary Clubs that had arisen in the Scalabrini parishes.

In July of 1946, he initiated a half-hour weekly Italian radio program to which he often invited various confreres to participate. This program was quite successful, enabling Father Pierini later to enlist the assistance of all the Italian radio program directors and announcers in the drive for the erection of Villa Scalabrini. For a number of years, Father was the Thursday Italian teacher for the major seminarians at Mundelein, Illinois.

On Columbus Day, 1945, at a special dinner to which representatives and priests from each Scalabrini parish were invited, Father Pierini launched an idea to which he had given much thought: a home for the aged Italians. He was named the executive secretary of the Priests' and Laymen's committee, a responsibility he held for all these years.

Notwithstanding all the obstacles, all the unforeseen impediments which at times were indeed discouraging, Father Pierini with the help of his confreres and their parishioners and then with the assistance of many others who became deeply interested in the project, helped make Villa Scalabrini become a reality. But in every instance, it was his driving spirit that kept things going, especially during the most trying and difficult times.

To the task of executive secretary of the executive committee and director of Villa Scalabrini, in 1952 Father Pierini was given the delicate assignment as Provincial Superior of the Scalabrini Religious of the western province of the congregation.

During his administration the congregation expanded its apostolate to the recently arrived Italian immigrants in Canada. Missionaries were sent to Vancouver, British Columbia, to Atikokan, Ontario and to Edmonton, Alberta.

He also took an active part in the work of the American Committee on Italian Migration for which he was honored by the Italian government.

Through all these fifty years, Father has always tried his best to serve the spiritual needs of the people and with the Villa, the material needs of the Italian-American community. It can truly be said that his endeavors both with the Seminary and its Calvary Hill Shrine and with Villa Scalabrini, he was the instrument that gave the Italian immigrants of this area and their descendants a sense of "community" and mutual responsibility for their general well-being.●

INTERNATIONAL STRATEGIC NEED TO IMPROVE U.S. COAL EXPORTING CAPABILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

● Mr. MOAKLEY, Mr. Speaker, in a letter to the editor of the Washington Post on February 18, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BIAGGI) makes a compelling case for one of the most important legislative initiates now before Congress. The gentleman is the author of the Port Development and Navigation Improvement Act of 1981 (H.R. 4627).

The bill was ordered reported October 21, by the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries with important and constructive amendments urged by the gentleman from New York. Within the next few weeks, I am hopeful that my subcommittee can report the measure to the Committee on Rules. Some aspects of the bill are presently before the Committee on Public Works and Transportation where this measure will receive the careful scrutiny and serious attention it clearly deserves.

It seems likely, Mr. Speaker, that the House will have an opportunity in this session to address this extraordinarily important initiative toward revitalization of American harbors and shipping. In this context, the important international strategic concerns will figure prominently and I commend to the attention of my colleagues, the insightful comments of the gentleman from New York in this regard:

[From the Washington Post, Feb. 18, 1982]

CUT THE PIPELINE—AND GO TO COAL

The Post's Feb. 1 editorial "Cut the Pipeline?" and related recent articles portrayed the complex dimensions of the dilemma confronting the administration in its attempts to coordinate economic sanctions against the martial law regime in Poland and the Soviet Union without irreparably damaging the economic and political underpinnings of the Western alliance.

What is lacking in the analysis to date is the missing ingredient alluded to in the editorial—that of U.S. assurance of adequate alternative supplies of energy for our Western allies. No mention is made of the potential for U.S. steam coal exports to displace not only OPEC oil but Soviet gas as well. The critical strategic implications of the coal alternative are obvious. Rather than further rending the fabric of the Western alliance by increasing the economic and political dependence on the Soviet Union, the coal alternative provides the opportunity for revitalizing the alliance built upon a firm U.S. commitment of long-term energy supplies.

The alternative suggested in the editorial of renewing the grain embargo against the Soviet Union is not a viable option. This would only further adversely affect the U.S. agricultural community, while swelling the already ballooning federal budget deficit through the statutory requirement to indemnify farmers against embargo-related losses. Massive exports of U.S. coal, however, could pull the U.S. out of a deepening recession and lead to a reindustrialization of Western Europe as its utilities and industrial facilities convert to the cheapest long-term fossil fuel available, steam coal. U.S. technical assistance can aid in accelerating this effort.

Europeans legitimately ask "Can the U.S. deliver coal as a viable alternative to Soviet gas?" The question goes far beyond mere logistical and physical limitations impeding the rate of increase in U.S. steam coal exports. It raises the more fundamental question of European perception of the reliability of the United States as a long-term coal supplier and the strength of our political resolve to honor our international commitment to significantly expand coal exports.

The U.S. coal industry is ready to deliver. Our domestic railroads have made substantial commitments in new track and facility improvements to this end. Our port industry likewise is gearing up for a quantum increase in steam coal. What is needed is a tangible sign of U.S. commitment to substitute U.S. coal for Soviet gas.

My bill, the Port Development and Navigation Improvement Act of 1981, now pending in the House, would ensure the construction of a sufficient number of deep-draft ports to permit the rapid expansion of coal exports by increasing its overall competitiveness on the world market.

Playing the coal instead of the grain card, in conjunction with the technology embargo, might yet block the first Soviet gas pipeline. It could certainly delay or prevent construction of the other five or six pipelines currently in the planning stage by frustrating the successful negotiation of long-term supply contracts for Soviet gas by Western European nations. Support for these agreements within each country is far from universal.

MARIO BIAGGI,
U.S. Representative from New York, Vice Chairman, Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

A CONSTRUCTION SCANDAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. WEAVER) is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. WEAVER. Mr. Speaker, I am announcing today that I am introducing legislation to prohibit the Bonneville Power Administration and the Attorney General of the United States and the Secretary of the Department of Energy or any combination of them from participating in the lawsuit being brought against the State of Washington that seeks to stop the enforcement of Washington State's recently passed initiative 394.

Under this bill, should BPA or the Justice Department intervene before the passage of this bill, such involvement would be terminated upon passage.

Mr. Speaker, I want to explain what I am about here.

We have in the Northwest perhaps the greatest construction scandal in the history of our Nation. The Washington public power supply system, a municipal corporation of the State of Washington, has undertaken to build five nuclear plants. These five nuclear plants, originally expected to cost around $4 billion, are now by their own figures projected to cost $25 billion.

So far they have sold $8 billion worth of bonds for which the people of the Northwest, the electric ratepayers of the Northwest, are supposedly obligated to pay back.

These nuclear plants have been riddled with corruption, with mismanagement, with just simply astronomical cost overruns, and they threaten to bankrupt many of the utilities of the Northwest.

Two of the plants—we call them WPPSS 4 and 5, are now bankrupt. They have been terminated after spending over $2 billion on them.

These plants if they were ever built, would charge for electricity wholesale rates at 15 cents a kilowatt-hour, while the Bonneville rate today is only 2 cents a kilowatt-hour.

I challenge those people who still want these plants built, who say that we could sell the plants—I challenge them to sell the plants. I challenge them to sell the electricity to somebody outside of the Northwest because I know my constituents do not want to pay the billions and billions of dollars that these payments are going to cost and most likely will get nothing, no electricity, for them.

These plants were built under contracts which are called hell-or-high-water contracts. In other words, the people pay for the plants whether they ever receive any electricity or not, and the bond salesmen and brokerage houses call their bonds hell-or-high-water bonds, because they say you people in the Northwest are going to pay for them whether or not you get anything for them, our bond-holders will get our money out of your pockets, out of the blood and sweat of the people of the Northwest, and I say this: I say that the people of the Northwest are not going to be taken for suckers. Never once did the 6 million people of the Northwest ever vote or give their consent to be obligated to pay these bonds for these nuclear plants.

Instead the arrogant, contemptuous utility barons of the Northwest obligated us without our consent to pay for these plants and they continue to sell bonds, $850 million last week, at an interest rate appoaching 15 percent and at fees paid to the bond salesmen of almost $24 million for which over the years our people in the Northwest will have to pay back $200 million in interest and principal just to cover the costs to the bond salesmen and brokerage houses for selling these bonds.

I say this is the most arrogant act I can imagine that these utility barons continue to sell these bonds and put good money after bad into these five plants.

But to get to the very essence of the legislation that I have introduced, which shows the real contempt and arrogance the officials of the Northwest have for the people—and that is that after the people of the State of Washington voted last fall overwhelmingly for initiative 394, an initiative that simply said, "Look, we don't want you to obligate us to any more of these bonds without our approval," that is a simple request.

I think every person has a right to say, "Don't you arrogant contemptuous utility officials, public officials, obligate us, the people, to pay for anything without our consent and approval."

So they passed this and it is now law in Washington State governing the Washington Public Power Supply System, and although it does not go into effect until July 1, and that is why the utility officials are hurrying to spend, to raise hundreds and hundreds and billions and billions of dollars more in bonds so they can spend this money without the consent of the people of Washington State or the people or Oregon who also are going to have to pay back this money through their electric bill. After the people of Washington State overwhelmingly passed this, this simple request they be allowed to approve any bond issue, after that has occurred the Federal Government, in the guise of the Bonneville Administration—the Bonneville Administration is an agent of the Federal Government—the Bonneville Power Administration Administrator, Peter Johnson, said that he would use Bonneville Power funds to finance a lawsuit to overthrow the law that was the vote of the people.

This is a public official supposedly working for the people and he arrogantly said, no, the people have spoken, but we Federal officials are going to try to overthrow the law that Washington State voters passed.

On top of that, when asked why he does this, he said he does this at the behest of the investment community. In other words, the utility officials and barons and public officials of the Northwest are really more concerned with the bond holders in New York City and with the nuclear industry, and their contracts, than they are with their own people, the people that they supposedly represent.

So my bill says to the Bonneville Power Administration, which has turned around and asked the Justice Department now to intervene in this lawsuit to overthrow the vote of the people of Washington State, my bill says, no, you cannot do that. No, the people have spoken and you Federal officials and you Justice Department may not try to overthrow the vote of the people of Washington State.

So I ask for speedy hearings on this legislation and bring to a head the issue in the Northwest which is the arrogance and contemptuousness of the utility barons of the Northwest in stomping on the people and making them pay whether they receive anything or not without their approval or consent.

A NEW NUCLEAR STRATEGY

(Mr. BEILENSON asked and was given permission to extend his remarks at this point in the RECORD and to include extraneous matter.)

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, the New York Times magazine on January 24 of this year published an article entitled "A New Nuclear Strategy" in which its authors, Laurence W. Beilenson and Samuel T. Cohen, propose that we stop trying to match the Russians in conventional weapons and base our security on overwhelming power in nuclear arms.

Mr. Beilenson is my cousin and is an eminent historian and scholar in the areas of foreign policy and defense and has long been an adviser to Ronald Reagan; his most recent book is "Survival and Peace in the Nuclear Age." Mr. Cohen, commonly known as the father of the neutron bomb, is a nuclear scientist and coauthor of "Checkmate on War."

The article presents a point of view different from the conventional wisdom of the day, and I commend it to my colleagues who are concerned about this most important issue.

A NEW NUCLEAR STRATEGY

(By Laurence W. Beilenson and Samuel T. Cohen)

Thirty-six years after its smashing victory in World War II, the United States, despite its high level of defense spending, finds itself in a dangerous military mess. The Atlantic alliance, the centerpiece of our strategy of containing Soviet expansionism, is overwhelmingly outmatched in military capabilities by the Communist nations of the Warsaw Pact. The American arsenal of strategic—that is, intercontinental—weapons is inferior to the Soviet Union's. The gross disparity in sacrifice and spending between ourselves and our European allies is a festering political sore. Two decades of efforts to reduce the danger of nuclear war by arms-control agreements have only added to our sense of instability and peril. Recent polls reveal that a high proportion of Americans expect nuclear war before the end of this decade.

What makes the situation all the more disconcerting is that it is the product of conventional wisdom. At every stage of our descent into the present predicament, Presidents of both parties have chosen defense policies designed to gain wide political support at home and abroad. Those policies base our security on the notion of requiring adequate strength both in conventional and nuclear forces, while seeking agreements with Moscow for placing limits on forces of both types. There are no indications that the Reagan Administration intends to depart significantly from this well-established course.

The United States, we submit, is on the wrong road. The authors of this article—one a military scholar and historian, the other a nuclear scientist and weapons analyst—have long held mounting misgivings over our national security policies. They finally have come to the painful conclusion that these policies are leading us not toward reinforcing our security but toward the threat of national extinction. While recognizing the difficulty of clearing away the misconceptions that underlie our present military programs, we are convinced that a start must be made on creating public support for a fundamentally new policy—one of entering the nuclear age.

By this we mean fully exploiting the military consequences of the nuclear revolution, as the Soviet Union has been doing for decades. Such a change would necessitate a drastic reappraisal of our global military presence and our relations with our European allies. But it offers the only realistic hope of avoiding nuclear war and insuring the survival of the United States.

Any reassessment of where we are and where we are heading must begin by reducing our thinking to basic simplicity.

First, few would deny that our paramount national objective is to survive as a free people. We have obscured this principal aim by such catchwords as containment and détente, and by such policies as the preservation of our alliances and the flow of oil from the Persian Gulf. All this has proceeded under the greatest catchword of all, "the national interest," a vague term mostly meaning something we consider essential for our prosperity rather than our safety. None of these objectives are indispensable; we can survive without them.

Second, few would deny the growing instability of the nuclear equation. With all the nuclear weapons in place and increasing in quantity, some day somebody is likely to launch some. No other conclusion is possible from the nature of nations and the human beings who compose them.

Look at the contemporary world scene: Are there no criminals among us? Ponder the history of wars through the ages—and the rule, without a single exception, that man has used every weapon he has ever devised. Consider the chance of nuclear war by accident, a chance augmented by the propensity to error on the part of humans and their machines, by procedures requiring instantaneous reactions, and by such doctrines as "launch on warning." Remember that weapons have a way of spreading across borders; there is no reason to believe that nuclear weapons will behave any differently. Note the prevalence throughout history of rulers swayed by emotion rather than reason; of rulers who were mad or in their dotage or simply fools; of rulers who were willing to gamble, or to make war to advance their own ideological prescriptions for the world. In view of all this, the fears of the American people that nuclear war may soon be upon them are more than justified.

Third, we must accept the virtual certainty that any war between the United States and the Soviet Union involving the defense of our major allies will start as—or will rapidly become—a nuclear war, in which the Russians will deliver a massive nuclear strike against the United States. In our present defenseless condition, such a strike against our military installations might kill tens of millions of Americans, an enormous calamity. If our counterstrike were against Soviet cities and the Russians responded in kind, our toll could well exceed 100 million, an unspeakable horror.

Rightly appalled by this dismal prospect, peace groups urge us to do something to preclude the catastrophe. They argue that diplomacy can save us from nuclear disaster, that reasonable men will find solutions to overcome man's unreasonable nature. A popular European movement, which appears to be spreading across the Atlantic, demands that governments renounce nuclear weapons altogether as instruments of national policy.

Diplomacy has sometimes averted war, and is not to be dismissed. At best, however, it is a patching device. The fruit of diplomacy is a treaty, and all nations, including our own have habitually broken treaties. The champion treaty breaker, the Soviet Union, believes that violating compacts for the sake of advantage is a virtue.

But why not, as many Americans urge, take a chance on the treaty process, accepting the risks involved for the sake of peace? Because reliance on that approach increases the chance of war by lowering our guard. Our arms-control agreements with Moscow have not restrained the growth of nuclear stockpiles on both sides. Yet, lulled into a false security by the treaty procedure, we have sunk from superiority to inferiority in strategic nuclear capabilities.

Then there is the problem of verification. Short-sighted indeed are those who urge us to trust our intelligence agencies to catch the Russians at cheating. Beginning with World War II, American intelligence estimates have been regularly wrong on matters of moment. Nor is American intelligence unique in this failure; the intelligence process is inherently unreliable because, at bottom, it is a guessing game.

In any event, the real question is not whether we can verify strategic-arms treaties but whether we have the means to know the Soviet Union's nuclear capabilities, so that we can determine what our own capabilities should be.

Our negotiating positions have been tailored to the ability of our spy satellites to count Soviet silos—holes in the ground where the Russians are believed to keep their strategic missiles. But our "national technical means of verification," excellent as they are, cannot determine the number of missiles mounted in those silos or stored in warehouses or elsewhere. Nor can they determine the number of warheads on each missile or the quality of the weapons as a whole. The widely published Western estimates of the missile numbers on both sides may greatly underestimate the actual Soviet strength.

In short, the diplomats and arms-control advocates who—God bless them—labor to keep the nuclear peace must work with tools whose limitations doom them to failure. It all comes down to people, and some of them are bad enough or foolish enough to jeopardize us all. In working for peace in the nuclear age, we must, like it or not, focus primarily on the two areas of armed might most arms-control advocates abhor.

Because nuclear war could come in spite of everything we do to avert it, we need to develop a strong military defense against nuclear attack and a broad civil-defense program for keeping casualties as low as possible. Because defense alone cannot deter the potential enemy, an effective offensive nuclear force is also essential. That brings up the question of cost. And that, in turn, involves the amount of money we spend on conventional forces to help defend our friends and allies, especially in Europe.

These commitments bear heavily on the amount of money available for acquiring the strategic nuclear weapons we need to insure our own survival. The basic criticism of our current military budget, which seeks a substantial increase in our conventional forces, is that it puts the bulk of the money in the wrong place. If we desisted from our well-intentioned but misconceived readiness to fight wars with conventional weapons all over the world, we could well afford the measures we must take to insure our survival.

We have spoken of the likelihood that any war pitting this country against the Soviet Union will become nuclear, probably from the outset, with a massive Soviet strike against our military forces—particularly our nuclear bombers and missiles—within the United States. This could come about because of our proclaimed commitments to our European allies. Washington's strategy for possible war in Europe has, for the last 20 years, gone roughly as follows:

The Russians attack Western Europe with conventional weapons. The Western allies defend themselves in like manner. If we hold the Russians, happy day; the war is over. If we are losing—as we probably would be, considering the Soviet preponderance in conventional strength—we resort to tactical (battlefield) nuclear weapons. If that stops the Russians, happy day; the war is over. If we are still losing, we attack the Soviet Union with strategic nuclear weapons. Every President has said we would be prepared to do so, ever since nuclear weapons were added to our arsenal.

With our nuclear intentions clearly known to the Russians, there is every reason to think that if the Soviet leaders decided to attack our European allies, they would start the war with a nuclear strike against the United States. They would do so because of the value of surprise, and in fear that if they did not make the first strike against us, we would make it against them. To assume that in any war between enemies as deeply hostile as the United States and the Soviet Union—in any war where the stakes are so high—neither would resort to the deadliest weapon in its possession defies all experience. To posit that the Soviet Union, whose military doctrine places the highest premium on a first strike, will not implement that doctrine in a war with the United States is to substitute wishing for sober appraisal.

It is against this background that we must assess our neglect of our strategic nuclear arsenal for the last 15 years, while the Russians have been improving theirs. Why has this relative deterioration taken place? Not because it is prohibitively expensive to acquire a satisfactory nuclear force, as compared with a conventional one. Exactly the opposite is true.

The bulk of our defense spending goes into increasingly expensive military manpower—pay, pensions and the like—for our conventional forces, which require large numbers of soldiers and sailors. Nuclear forces, on the other hand, require relatively little manpower. Consequently, we spend $7 on our conventional forces for every $1 we spend on our nuclear forces. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have reported that, over the last 15 years, less than 10 percent of the United States defense budget has been devoted directly to strategic nuclear forces. We shall need time—if we are granted it—to catch up in strategic nuclear weapons, but the proportionate cost will not be great.

The Warsaw Pact nations outmatch the Western alliance in men and conventional equipment for the simple reason that the Communist governments pay their troops much less than is the rule in the West. Soviet recruits, for instance, receive $5.50 a month. This is approximately one-hundredth of the average monthly pay for a recruit in our volunteer army. The Congressional defense analyst John M. Collins estimates that only 20 percent of the Soviet military budget goes for manpower. The rest can be spent on producing weapons, which explains why the Western alliance is so badly outnumbered in tanks, artillery, tactical aircraft and so on. Any attempt on our part to catch up with the Warsaw Pact nations in this area—by raising the pay of experienced military personnel being drawn off by higher pay in the civilian sector, for instance—would be fruitless. It would only send the military budget soaring to even higher levels without closing the conventional gap.

If we had unlimited amounts of money to spend, the Reagan Administration's present effort to upgrade both our nuclear and conventional forces might succeed. As it is, however, the demands of the pocketbook will force us to choose. Either we restore our nuclear armed might so as to deter nuclear war or we keep playing catch-up in conventional arms, with no hope of reaching parity. The American people simply will not pay the cost of both the conventional defense of other countries and the nuclear defense of their own country.

Which brings us to perhaps the most nettlesome problem of all. The Norwegians and Danes will not permit us to install nuclear weapons on their soil; the Belgians and the Dutch do not want them either, but suffer their presence. The West Germans, who have grudgingly allowed them, are lukewarm, at best, about accepting the new intermediate-range nuclear missiles that are meant to offset Moscow's recent deployments (although they will not). And none of the Western European Governments have welcomed Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger's proposal for deploying the neutron bomb, a weapon that offers the best hope, according to the Secretary, of keeping tens of thousands of Soviet tanks from overrunning Western Europe, where more than 300,000 Americans are stationed.

Why this reluctance? Because, if war comes, nuclear arsenals are the logical targets for a pre-emptive Soviet nuclear strike. Let the United States be the target, not us, say our allies.

Exacerbating this disparity in readiness for sacrifice is the difference in spending levels. Our European allies spend about 3.5 percent of their gross national product on defense; we spend 5 percent. We propose to increase this proportion; our allies do not. If total American spending over the years of the alliance is compared with total European spending, the disparity becomes even greater and more irksome.

We have been told how lucky we are that our allies contribute as much as they do, especially in manpower, but the congratulations miss the point: Who is defending whom? We are in no danger of invasion; they are, by reason of their geographical proximity to the Soviet Union. Our allies have grown rich, partly on their own merits, but in no small measure on the backs of the American taxpayer. In all fairness, the Europeans, and especially the Germans, should pay not only as much as but much more, per capita, than we do.

But that is an idle dream, laugh the skeptics. Certainly it is, if we only exhort. Not so certainly, if we tell our allies that, from this day on, they will have to defend themselves because we are bringing our troops home—bringing them home gradually, if our allies show a determination to defend themselves, or at once, if they do not. The question is not whether we should tell them we will withdraw our conventional troops from European soil; the question is whether we do it with fairness to our allies, selling them certain nuclear weapons and giving them certain elements of our nuclear knowledge as the withdrawal proceeds, or whether we cut them off precipitately, without giving them a chance to acquire a nuclear deterrent of their own.

Granted, to embark on a program of providing nuclear weapons to European nations, especially Germany, would blow skyhigh all currently accepted notions of arms control. But whatever the dangers of such drastic change, they are far smaller than the danger we face by having our troops in Europe and maintaining our pledges of nuclear retaliation against Soviet attack in that theater. To remain so entangled is to invite a Soviet nuclear strike against the United States in any war that starts in Europe—to risk our national survival. We can survive without the Western alliance, even if the Europeans elect to accommodate to the Soviet Union rather than provide for their own defense. But nuclear war can kill us.

If we had not become so accustomed to the false notion that we must defend the world in our own interests, a proposition alien to our tradition, it would shock us to see our forces being scattered over the globe. If any American political leader prior to World War II had advocated our present role as the world's guardian, he would have been considered out of his mind. We tend to forget that our present posture for defending Europe was adopted when Europe was prostrate. Even though the Europeans have become prosperous and thoroughly capable of defending themselves and their own national interests, a temporary American expedient has been hardened into a permanent orthodoxy.

Europe is far more dependent than the United States on oil from the Persian Gulf. Yet who is creating a Rapid Deployment Force for the conventional defense of that region? Why, of course, the United States. The force will cost a lot, and will be worth little, because of the Soviet Union's proximity to the Gulf and Soviet willingness to use nuclear weapons.

We cannot expect to win a land war against the Russians in that part of the world. Nor does it make sense for us to conduct military operations there with the aim of preserving oil supplies. Even before their move into Afghanistan, the Russians could have stopped the flow of oil from the Persian Gulf by dropping just one bomb, whereupon the insurance rates on oil tankers would have gone out of sight.

We are told that we need the raw materials we import and must have forces in readiness to safeguard their sources. Yet it would be far cheaper to stockpile these raw materials, including oil, than to fight a conventional war for their sake—not to mention the war's cost in blood or the danger of the conflict's becoming nuclear. The only conceivable way to deter the Russians from exploiting their military advantages in regions such as the Persian Gulf is by confronting them with superior theater nuclear forces—missiles and aircraft based in the region and designed for short-range or medium-range operations.

That, however, would pose the risk of all-out nuclear war. We would be forced to hit out at nuclear weapons deployed across the Soviet border, thereby insuring nuclear reprisal against the United States. To take such a risk for the sake of maintaining oil shipments to Europe would be the height of irresponsibility, to put it as mildly as we can.

This does not mean, of course, that we must sit back and let the Russians rampage all over the world. There are certain regions contiguous to the Soviet Union where we are powerless to prevent Soviet aggression, except at risk to our own survival. But there are other regions far from Soviet borders where the advantage in military power would lie with the Western nations. By no stretch of the imagination, for example, should the United States give up the defense of the Western Hemisphere. What is alarming about our current policies is our propensity to get into conventional wars in areas far from home, for the defense of areas not vital to our security and in geopolitical circumstances that imperil our own national existence.

Without lengthening the list of these overseas military predicaments, it becomes apparent that there is no way to rectify them to any satisfactory degree by either conventional or nuclear means. With each passing day, as the Soviet nuclear arsenal continues to grow, it becomes increasingly perilous to pursue these objectives. We should instead turn our attention to devising new nuclear weapons that can best protect the United States against nuclear attack.

This will call for developing offensive weapons in great quantities, and exploiting mobility, concealment and dispersion to make them invulnerable to any conceivable nuclear strike. It will call for removing the shackles placed by the strategic arms treaty of 1972 on the development of antimissile weapons capable of protecting our population and economy. It will call for restoring our emaciated air defenses against bombers, so as to meet an impending Soviet threat in that category of weapons. And it will require a program, following the Swiss example, for providing our cities with civil-defense shelters, which can save enormous numbers of American lives.

If the Western allies continue their effort to match the Soviet empire in conventional forces designed for re-enacting World War II, they will fritter away the resources they need for developing the nuclear forces essential to their survival. To prevent nuclear war, the United States should augment its nuclear armory both for deterrence and for defense, with an ample margin of safety on both counts. With our help, Western Europe can do the same. The best hope of preventing nuclear war lies in accepting our nuclear age, instead of persisting in a hopeless effort to deny it.

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:
(i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
(ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
(b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
(i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
(ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:
1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." (b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

Year: 19.....

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER
	1st	2d	3d	4th
(Mark one square only)

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:
(i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
(ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
(b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
(i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
(ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:
1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§302(e).
(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).
(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports. ☐

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

AFFIDAVIT

NOTE ON ITEM "D."—(a) In General. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—Section 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In General. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in accordance with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multipurpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In General. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Fill in every blank. If the answer to any numbered item is "None," write "None" in the space following the number.

Receipts (other than loans)

1. $.....Dues and assessments
2. $.....Gifts of money or anything of value
3. $.....Printed or duplicated matter received as a gift
4. $.....Receipts from sale of printed or duplicated matter
5. $.....Received for services (e.g., salary, fee, etc.)

6. $.....TOTAL for this Quarter (Add items "1" through "5")
7. $.....Received during previous Quarters of calendar year

8. $.....TOTAL from Jan. 1 through this Quarter (Add "6" and "7")

Loans Received

"The term 'contribution' includes a . . . loan . . ."—Sec. 302(a).

(NOTE.—The form used for report is reproduced below. In the interest of economy in the RECORD, questions are not repeated, only the essential answers are printed, and are indicated by their respective letter and number.)

REPORT

PURSUANT TO FEDERAL REGULATION OF LOBBYING ACT

P	QUARTER
	1st	2d	3d	4th
(Mark one square only)

NOTE ON ITEM "A".—(a) IN GENERAL. This "Report" form may be used by either an organization or an individual, as follows:
(i) "Employee".—To file as an "employee", state (in Item "B") the name, address, and nature of business of the "employer". (If the "employee" is a firm [such as a law firm or public relations firm], partners and salaried staff members of such firm may join in filing a Report as an "employee".)
(ii) "Employer".—To file as an "employer", write "None" in answer to Item "B".
(b) SEPARATE REPORTS. An agent or employee should not attempt to combine his Report with the employer's Report:
(i) Employers subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their agents or employees.
(ii) Employees subject to the Act must file separate Reports and are not relieved of this requirement merely because Reports are filed by their employers.

A. ORGANIZATION OR INDIVIDUAL FILING:
1. State name, address, and nature of business.

2. If this Report is for an Employer, list names of agents or employees who will file Reports for this Quarter.

NOTE ON ITEM "B".—Reports by Agents or Employees. An employee is to file, each quarter, as many Reports as he has employers, except that: (a) If a particular undertaking is jointly financed by a group of employers, the group is to be considered as one employer, but all members of the group are to be named, and the contribution of each member is to be specified; (b) if the work is done in the interest of one person but payment therefor is made by another, a single Report—naming both persons as "employers"—is to be filed each quarter.

B. EMPLOYER.—State name, address, and nature of business. If there is no employer, write "None."

NOTE ON ITEM "C".—(a) The expression "in connection with legislative interests," as used in this Report, means "in connection with attempting, directly or indirectly, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation." "The term 'legislation' means bills, resolutions, amendments, nominations, and other matters pending or proposed in either House of Congress, and includes any other matter which may be the subject of action by either House"—§302(e).
(b) Before undertaking any activities in connection with legislative interests, organizations and individuals subject to the Lobbying Act are required to file a "Preliminary" Report (Registration).
(c) After beginning such activities, they must file a "Quarterly" Report at the end of each calendar quarter in which they have either received or expended anything of value in connection with legislative interests.

C. LEGISLATIVE INTERESTS, AND PUBLICATIONS in connection therewith:

1. State approximately how long legislative interests are to continue. If receipts and expenditures in connection with legislative interests have terminated, place an "X" in the box at the left, so that this Office will no longer expect to receive Reports. ☐

2. State the general legislative interests of the person filing and set forth the specific legislative interests by reciting: (a) Short titles of statutes and bills; (b) House and Senate numbers of bills, where known; (c) citations of statutes, where known; (d) whether for or against such statutes and bills.

3. In the case of those publications which the person filing has caused to be issued or distributed in connection with legislative interests, set forth: (a) Description, (b) quantity distributed; (c) date of distribution, (d) name of printer or publisher (if publications were paid for by person filing) or name of donor (if publications were received as a gift).

(Answer items 1, 2, and 3 in the space below. Attach additional pages if more space is needed)

4. If this is a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) rather than a "Quarterly" Report, state below what the nature and amount of anticipated expenses will be; and if for an agent or employee, state also what the daily, monthly, or annual rate of compensation is to be. If this is a "Quarterly" Report, disregard this item "C4" and fill out item "D" and "E" on the back of this page. Do not attempt to combine a "Preliminary" Report (Registration) with a "Quarterly" Report.

AFFIDAVIT

FILE ONE COPY WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE AND FILE TWO COPIES WITH THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

NOTE ON ITEM "D."—(a) In General. The term "contribution" includes anything of value. When an organization or individual uses printed or duplicated matter in a campaign attempting to influence legislation, money received by such organization or individual—for such printed or duplicated matter—is a "contribution." "The term 'contribution' includes a gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money, or anything of value, and includes a contract, promise, or agreement, whether or not legally enforceable, to make a contribution"—Section 302(a) of the Lobbying Act.

(b) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN EMPLOYER.—(i) In General. Item "D" is designed for the reporting of all receipts from which expenditures are made, or will be made, in accordance with legislative interests.

(ii) Receipts of Business Firms and Individuals.—A business firm (or individual) which is subject to the Lobbying Act by reason of expenditures which it makes in attempting to influence legislation—but which has no funds to expend except those which are available in the ordinary course of operating a business not connected in any way with the influencing of legislation—will have no receipts to report, even though it does have expenditures to report.

(iii) Receipts of Multipurpose Organizations.—Some organizations do not receive any funds which are to be expended solely for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Such organizations make such expenditures out of a general fund raised by dues, assessments, or other contributions. The percentage of the general fund which is used for such expenditures indicates the percentage of dues, assessments, or other contributions which may be considered to have been paid for that purpose. Therefore, in reporting receipts, such organizations may specify what that percentage is, and report their dues, assessments, and other contributions on that basis. However, each contributor of $500 or more is to be listed, regardless of whether the contribution was made solely for legislative purposes.

(c) IF THIS REPORT IS FOR AN AGENT OR EMPLOYEE.—(i) In General. In the case of many employees, all receipts will come under Items "D 5" (received for services) and "D 12" (expense money and reimbursements). In the absence of a clear statement to the contrary, it will be presumed that your employer is to reimburse you for all expenditures which you make in connection with legislative interests.

(ii) Employer as Contributor of $500 or More.—When your contribution from your employer (in the form of salary, fee, etc.) amounts to $500 or more, it is not necessary to report such contribution under "D 13" and "D 14," since the amount has already been reported under "D 5," and the name of the "employer" has been given under Item "B" on page 1 of this report.

D. RECEIPTS (INCLUDING CONTRIBUTIONS AND LOANS):

Prepare such tabulation in accordance with the following example:
