SEC. 786. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to appoint or compensate more than 35 individuals in the Department of Defense in positions in the Executive Schedule (as provided in sections 5312-5316 of title 5, United States Code).

SEC. 787. Congress remains concerned about the rapidly escalating cost of the chemical and biological warfare programs that have not yet been adequately justified by the Administration.

Congress directed the Administration as part of the Conference Report to the fiscal year 1981 supplemental appropriations bill (H. Rept. No. 97-124) to provide studies of:

- the long-range costs of the modernization program;
- a country-by-country report from our NATO allies with respect to their official views on that long-range program;
- an overview of the mission-oriented requirements for the various binary weapons; and
- an arms control impact study of the mission-oriented requirements.

This information has yet to be supplied to Congress. The Congress reaffirms the language of the Supplemental Conference Report as adopted earlier this year by Congress. Funding for binary weapons in this year's appropriation is not production or construction-oriented, but rather limited strictly to research and development. Therefore, these requirements do not apply to funding provided in this Act. The Congress views such requirements with the utmost concern and seriousness, and fully expects them to be fulfilled prior to any future request for production or construction-oriented binary weapons funding.

Congress also urges the Administration to resume as rapidly as possible negotiations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to prohibit the development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons. These negotiations are vital to enhance United States national security and achieve budgetary stability.

SEC. 788. After the date of enactment of this Act no sale of silver from the National Defense Stockpile under the authority of Public Law 97-35, or any other Act, shall occur until the President, not later than July 1, 1982, redetermines that the silver authorized for disposal is excess to the requirements of the stockpile, taking into consideration such factors as the President considers relevant, including the following factors:

- (1) The findings and recommendations of the report by the General Accounting Office on the sale of silver from the National Defense Stockpile to be completed on or before January 1, 1982.

(2) The demand for silver to meet defense, essential civilian, basic industrial, and monetary requirements, taking into account the most recent "Defense Guidance" used by the Department of Defense in programming general purpose conventional forces as well as historical monetary uses of silver as a medium of payment to foreign workers and troops during times of national emergency.

(3) The projected magnitude of the increase in production as well as the accuracy and reliability of the data used in projecting increases in both domestic and reliable foreign production capacity, taking into account the lead times associated with expanding capacity and obtaining such requirements as the necessary labor, equipment, transportation and energy.

(4) The current reliability of supplies from foreign sources and the economic and security implications resulting from our dependence on these sources of supply in times of national emergency taking into account the probability of a supply disruption or sharp price increase and its impact on the United States economy or a national priority such as defense.

(5) The need for silver in the stockpile during the next ten year period taking into account long-term supply and demand projections of the Bureau of Mines, United States Department of the Interior.

Should the President taking into consideration the factors described above find the silver to be in excess to stockpile needs, he shall report to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and House of Representatives that he has made such a determination, and shall include a detailed discussion and analysis of the factors set forth above, and other relevant factors, including alternative methods of disposal for such silver, together with his recommended method of disposal. No action shall be taken to dispose of silver from the National Defense Stockpile, prior to the approval by Congress of the recommended method of disposal.

(1) A larger and stronger American Navy is needed as an essential ingredient of our Armed Forces, in order to fulfill its basic missions of (A) protecting the sea lanes to preserve the safety of the free world's commerce, (B) assuring continued access to raw materials essential to the well-being of the free world, (C) enhancing our capacity to project effective American forces into regions of the world where the vital interests of the United States must be protected, (D) engaging the Navy of the Soviet Union or any other potential adversary successfully, (E) continuing to serve as a viable leg of our strategic triad, and (F) providing visible evidence of American diplomatic, economic and military commitments throughout the world.
