

CASES ADJUDGED
IN THE
SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
AT OCTOBER TERM, 1919.

JETT BROS. DISTILLING COMPANY v. CITY OF CARROLLTON.

ERROR TO THE COURT OF APPEALS OF THE STATE OF KENTUCKY.

No. 108. Argued December 19, 1919.—Decided March 1, 1920.

An objection that a tax is void under the Fourteenth Amendment because of systematic discrimination by officials in making assessments, but which does not draw in question before the state court the validity of the statute or authority under which they acted, will not support a writ of error from this court under Jud. Code, § 237, as amended. P. 5.

A petition for rehearing, merely overruled by the state court without opinion, is not a basis for a writ of error. P. 6.

Writ of error to review 178 Kentucky, 561, dismissed.

THE case is stated in the opinion.

Mr. Helm Bruce, with whom Mr. Geo. B. Winslow was on the briefs, for plaintiff in error, argued, inter alia, that the point that the tax was void and without authority because assessed in violation of due process of law after the whiskey had ceased to be the property of the Distilling Company, was sufficiently raised and was necessarily decided by the state court, because, while on this point the Constitution was not invoked eo nomine in the complaint, the facts from which the deduction of unconstitutionality must follow were specifically set forth and the constitutional claim was specifically made in a petition for rehearing.

The reason for holding that a federal question made for the first time in a petition for a rehearing is not generally sufficient, is that, as a general rule, new grounds for decisions will not be allowed to be presented in a petition for a rehearing; and therefore if the state court in overruling such a petition is silent on the subject of a federal question, it will not be presumed that it passed on the federal question. Texas & Pacific Ry. Co. v. Southern Pacific Co., 137 U. S. 48, 53. In view, however, of the practice of the Kentucky court, which allows new grounds of decision to be presented by petition for a rehearing, the basis being in the record, Elsey v. People's Bank of Bardwell, 168 Kentucky, 701, the denial of the petition here necessarily imports an adverse decision of the constitutional claim.

It has often been held that where a federal question is distinctly made in the court of original jurisdiction, and where the court of last resort in the State must necessarily have decided the question in order to make the decision it did make, this is sufficient to give this court jurisdiction, even though the state court was silent on the subject. Steines v. Franklin County, 14 Wall. 15, 21. In like manner, where it is evident from the record and the practice of a state court, that a federal question made in a petition for a rehearing must have been decided in passing upon the petition, that should be sufficient to give this court jurisdiction.

1. Opinion of the Court.

Mr. A. E. Strickle, with whom Mr. J. A. Donaldson, Mr. G. A. Donaldson and Mr. J. L. Donaldson were on the briefs, for defendant in error.

MR. JUSTICE DAY delivered the opinion of the court.

The City of Carrollton brought suit against Jett Bros. Distilling Company to recover balances alleged to be due as taxes upon distilled spirits belonging to the company held in a bonded warehouse in that city. The taxes sued for were those for the years 1907 to 1916, inclusive. It appears that during those years the City Assessor undertook to assess for taxation the distilled spirits in the bonded warehouse and the city taxes were paid as thus assessed. This suit was brought to recover taxes for the above mentioned years upon the theory that during that period the spirits should have been valued by the State Board of Valuation and Assessment as provided by the statutes of Kentucky. (Kentucky Stats., §§ 4105, 4114.) It was alleged that the valuation by the City Assessor was without authority of law, by mistake and for a much less sum than that fixed for each of said years by the State Board. It was also alleged that the company had notice of the valuation fixed by the State Board; that the City Assessor was without authority to assess spirits in bonded warehouses; that the value fixed by him was an inconsiderable sum and much less than that fixed by the State Board in accordance with the Kentucky statutes. The Distilling Company took issue upon the petition. It pleaded the original levies for the years in question and the payment of the taxes for each and all of the said years. It pleaded that the whiskey which it was sought to tax under the new levy of 1915-1916 had been removed from the bonded warehouse of the company, and was no longer its property, and that it could no longer protect itself as it could have done had the tax been levied while the spirits were in its possession.

In the nineteenth paragraph of the answer a defense was set up upon a ground of federal right under the Constitution. It was averred that during all the years covered by the amended petition it had been the rule, custom, habit, practice and system in the City of Carrollton to assess and cause to be assessed the real estate therein at an average of not more than forty per cent. of its fair cash value, and to assess and cause to be assessed personal property in that city at an average of not more than thirty per cent. of its fair cash value; that the assessment made by the State Board upon which taxes were sought to be recovered was made at 100 per cent. of the fair cash value of the whiskey, and that the attempt of the plaintiff to collect the same was in violation of the defendant's right under the constitution of the State of Kentucky and the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

The Circuit Court gave judgment in favor of the city for the amounts claimed under the new levy of 1916, giving credit for the amounts paid under the original levies for the preceding years. The company appealed to the Court of Appeals of Kentucky, where the judgment of the Circuit Court was affirmed. 178 Kentucky, 561. There was no other reference to the Federal Constitution than that contained in the answer, so far as we have been able to discover, and the Court of Appeals dealt with the federal question, deemed to be before it, as follows (178 Kentucky, 566):

"It is further asserted that the recent cases of Greene v. Louisville & Interurban Railroad Co. and Greene v. Louisville Railway Co., decided by the Supreme Court of the United States and reported by 37 Supreme Court Reports, 673, uproot the contention that the act is constitutional, and hold that the State Board of Valuation, and the city assessor and Board of Supervisors, acting independently of each other, and fixing different valuations of the same property, work a discrimination, inimical both to the federal and state constitutions. In this, however, appellant is in error. It must be borne in mind that complaint is only made of the assessment. The warehouseman had his remedy, in case of an excessive or unfair valuation, by appearing before the Board of Valuation and Assessment at the time he received notice of the valuation fixed, and there make complaint as provided in section 4107, Kentucky Statutes. This appellant failed to do but acquiesced in the assessment by paying taxes both to the county and state on the valuation fixed by the State Board. This being true, it cannot be heard to complain now."

1. Opinion of the Court.

The case is brought here by the allowance of a writ of error. As the judgment was rendered after the Act of September 6, 1916, c. 448, 39 Stat. 726, Judicial Code, § 237, became effective, that act must determine the right to have a review in this court.

If the case can come here by writ of error, it is because there was drawn in question the validity of a statute, or authority, exercised under the State on the ground of their being repugnant to the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States. Before the petition for rehearing the contentions based upon constitutional grounds, by the plaintiff in error, were those embraced in the nineteenth paragraph of the answer, to which we have referred, and such as were deemed to be before the Court of Appeals of Kentucky in the portion of the opinion from which we have quoted. Neither the answer nor the opinion of the Court of Appeals shows that any claim under the Federal Constitution was made assailing the validity of a statute of the State, or of an authority exercised under the State, on the ground of repugnancy to the Federal Constitution. The answer, in the nineteenth paragraph, set up discrimination because of different valuations of the property of others, claimed to violate rights secured by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The opinion of the Court of Appeals likewise discussed the discriminatory action alleged by the plaintiff in error.

Drawing in question the validity of a statute or authority as the basis of appellate review has long been a subject of regulation in statutes of the United States, as we had occasion to point out in Champion Lumber Co. v. Fisher, 227 U. S. 445, 450, 451. What is meant by the validity of a statute or authority was discussed by this court in Baltimore & Potomac R. R. Co. v. Hopkins, 130 U. S. 210, in which this court, speaking by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller, said: "Whenever the power to enact a statute as it is by its terms, or is made to read by construction, is fairly open to denial and denied, the validity of such statute is drawn in question, but not otherwise." And the Chief Justice added upon the authority of Millingar v. Hartupee, 6 Wall. 258, 261, 262, that the word "authority" stands upon the same footing.

In order to give this court jurisdiction by writ of error under amended § 237, Judicial Code, it is the validity of the statute or authority which must be drawn in question. The mere objection to an exercise of authority under a statute, whose validity is not attacked, cannot be made the basis of a writ of error from this court. There must be a substantial challenge of the validity of the statute or authority upon a claim that it is repugnant to the Federal Constitution, treaties, or laws so as to require the state court to decide the question of validity in disposing of the contention. Champion Lumber Co. v. Fisher, supra, and cases cited.

In the present case no such claim of the invalidity of a state statute or authority was raised in a manner requiring the court below to pass upon the question in disposing of the rights asserted. As we have said, whatever the effect of a petition for rehearing, it came too late to make the overruling of it, in the absence of an opinion, the basis of review by writ of error. It follows that the allowance of the writ of error in the present case did not rest upon a decision in which was drawn in question the validity of a statute of the State or any authority exercised under it because of repugnancy to the Federal Constitution, and the writ of error must be dismissed, and it is so ordered.

1. Counsel for Parties.

Dismissed.

FARNCOMB ET AL. v. CITY AND COUNTY OF DENVER ET AL.

ERROR TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF COLORADO.

No. 110. Argued January 14, 1920.—Decided March 1, 1920.

As construed by the Supreme Court of Colorado, §§ 300 and 328 of the charter of the City and County of Denver gave property owners an opportunity to be heard before the Board of Supervisors respecting the justice and validity of local assessments for public improvements proposed by the Park Commission, and empowered the board itself to determine such complaints before the assessments were made. P. 9.

Parties who did not avail themselves of such opportunity can not be heard to complain of such assessments as unconstitutional. P. 11.
64 Colorado, 3, affirmed.

THE case is stated in the opinion.

Mr. T. J. O'Donnell, with whom Mr. J. W. Graham was on the briefs, for plaintiffs in error.

Mr. James A. Marsh, with whom Mr. Norton Montgomery was on the briefs, for defendants in error.