

SUMMARY STATEMENT OF BUSINESS OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR OCTOBER TERM, 1923.

Original Docket.

Cases pending at beginning of term.....	24
New cases docketed during term.....	6
Cases finally disposed of.....	6
Cases not finally disposed of.....	24

Appellate Docket.

Cases pending at beginning of term.....	368
New cases docketed during term.....	725
Cases finally disposed of.....	655
Cases not finally disposed of.....	438

The number of pending cases, original and appellate, was thus increased by 70.

Interlocutory decisions, and adverse decisions upon applications for leave to file, as in mandamus, prohibition, etc., are not here included.

CHAPTER I. THE EARLY PERIOD.

The first part of the history of the United States is the history of the early period, from the discovery of the continent by Columbus in 1492 to the establishment of the first permanent settlements in 1607. This period is characterized by the discovery of the continent, the establishment of the first permanent settlements, and the growth of the colonies.

The second part of the history of the United States is the history of the middle period, from 1607 to 1776. This period is characterized by the growth of the colonies, the struggle for independence, and the establishment of the new nation.

The third part of the history of the United States is the history of the late period, from 1776 to the present. This period is characterized by the growth of the new nation, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the modern United States.

The fourth part of the history of the United States is the history of the present period, from the present to the future. This period is characterized by the development of the modern United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the future.

The fifth part of the history of the United States is the history of the future period, from the future to the end of time. This period is characterized by the development of the future United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the end of time.

The sixth part of the history of the United States is the history of the end of time period, from the end of time to the beginning of time. This period is characterized by the development of the end of time United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the beginning of time.

The seventh part of the history of the United States is the history of the beginning of time period, from the beginning of time to the present. This period is characterized by the development of the beginning of time United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the present.

The eighth part of the history of the United States is the history of the present period, from the present to the future. This period is characterized by the development of the present United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the future.

The ninth part of the history of the United States is the history of the future period, from the future to the end of time. This period is characterized by the development of the future United States, the struggle for civil rights, and the development of the end of time.