

Opinion of the Court.

SAMPSELL, TRUSTEE IN BANKRUPTCY, v. IMPERIAL PAPER & COLOR CORP.

CERTIORARI TO THE CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT.

No. 601. Argued March 31, 1941.—Decided April 28, 1941.

1. A court of bankruptcy has jurisdiction, by summary proceedings, to cover into the estate of the bankrupt, property of a corporation, the only stockholders and officers of which were the bankrupt, his wife and son, and to which the bankrupt had made a transfer, not in good faith, of his property; and an order to that effect, entered after notice to the corporation and its stockholders, is binding on the corporation, and may not be collaterally attacked in proceedings wherein a creditor of the corporation sought priority against its assets. P. 218.
2. In such case, an unsecured creditor of the corporation, who had some knowledge of the fraudulent character of the transfer by the bankrupt to the corporation, held entitled only to pari passu participation with individual creditors of the bankrupt. P. 219.
114 F. 2d 49, reversed.

CERTIORARI, 312 U. S. 669, to review a judgment reversing an order denying priority to a claim in bankruptcy.

Mr. Thomas S. Tobin for petitioner.

Mr. Hiram E. Casey for respondent.

MR. JUSTICE DOUGLAS delivered the opinion of the Court.

One Downey was adjudged a voluntary bankrupt in November, 1938. Prior to June, 1936, Downey had been engaged in business, unincorporated, and had incurred a debt to the predecessor of Standard Coated Products Corporation of approximately $104,000. In that month he formed a corporation, Downey Wallpaper & Paint Co., under the laws of California. Downey, his wife and his son were the sole stockholders, directors and officers.

Opinion of the Court.

Downey's stock of goods was transferred to the corporation<sup>1</sup> on credit, which was extended from time to time. He leased space in the store building occupied by him to the corporation, which continued business at the old stand. Except for qualifying shares,<sup>2</sup> neither he nor the other members of his family paid cash for the stock which was issued to them<sup>3</sup> but received most of those shares a few months prior to bankruptcy in satisfaction of the balance of the obligation owed to him by the corporation.<sup>4</sup> Respondent extended credit to the corporation. At the time of Downey's bankruptcy respondent's claim amounted to about $5,400 and was unsecured.

On petition of the trustee in bankruptcy, the referee issued an order to show cause directed to the corporation, Downey, his wife and son why the assets of the corporation should not be marshalled for the benefit of the creditors of the bankrupt estate and administered by the trustee.<sup>5</sup> Downey answered. There was a hearing. The referee found, inter alia, that the transfer of the property to the corporation was not in good faith but was made for the purpose of placing the property beyond the reach of Downey's creditors and of retaining for

<sup>2</sup> The shares had a par value of $100. Downey apparently paid $500 in cash for the qualifying shares.

<sup>3</sup> There were 99 shares issued. On July 1, 1938, Downey caused 49 shares to be transferred to his wife and 25 shares to his son. Those transfers, according to the referee, were "entirely without consideration" to Downey.

<sup>4</sup> There is some dispute as to the amount of this obligation. Petitioner insists, and the findings of the referee lend some support to his view, that the stock of goods was transferred to the corporation at the inventory price—about $14,000. The court below said that it was transferred at $7,500. The corporation apparently had paid $5,000 on that obligation.

<sup>5</sup> Shortly after the adjudication the receiver, pursuant to a stipulation, took possession of the property of the corporation.

Downey and his family all of the beneficial interest therein; that the stock was issued in satisfaction of Downey's claim against the corporation, when Downey was hopelessly insolvent, to prevent Downey's creditors from reaching the assets so transferred; that the corporation was "nothing but a sham and a cloak" devised by Downey "for the purpose of preserving and conserving his assets" for the benefit of himself and his family; and that the corporation was formed for the purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding his creditors. The referee accordingly ordered that the property of the corporation was property of the bankrupt estate and that it be administered for the benefit of the creditors of the estate. That order was entered on April 7, 1939. No appeal from that order was taken.

Respondent, who was not a party to that proceeding, later filed its claim stating that as a creditor of the corporation it had a prior right to distribution of the funds in the hands of the trustee received from the liquidation of the assets of the corporation. It secured an order to show cause why the trustee should not so apply such funds. The trustee objected to the allowance of the claim as a prior claim and contended that it should be allowed only as a general unsecured claim. There was a hearing. The referee found that respondent, with knowledge of Downey's indebtedness, was instrumental in getting him to form the corporation and had full knowledge of its fraudulent character. He disallowed respondent's claim as a prior claim but allowed it as a general unsecured claim. That order was confirmed. On appeal, the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed, holding that respondent's claim should be accorded priority against the funds realized from the liquidation of the corporation's property. 114 F. 2d 49. We granted the petition for certiorari because of the importance in administration of the Bankruptcy Act of the questions raised.

Opinion of the Court.

313 U. S.

We think the Circuit Court of Appeals was in error.

1. The order entered in the summary proceedings against Downey, his wife, his son and his family corporation was a final order binding as between the parties. There can be no question but that the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court was properly exercised by summary proceedings. The circumstances are many and varied where an affiliated corporation does not have, as against the trustee of the dominant stockholder, the status of a substantial adverse claimant within the rule of Taubel-Scott-Kitzmiller Co. v. Fox, 264 U. S. 426. The legal existence of the affiliated corporation does not per se give it standing to insist on a plenary suit. In re Muncie Pulp Co., 139 F. 546; W. A. Liller Bldg. Co. v. Reynolds, 247 F. 90; In re Rieger, Kapner & Altmark, 157 F. 609; In re Eilers Music House, 270 F. 915; Central Republic Bank & Trust Co. v. Caldwell, 58 F. 2d 721; Commerce Trust Co. v. Woodbury, 77 F. 2d 478; Fish v. East, 114 F. 2d 177. Mere legal paraphernalia will not suffice to transform into a substantial adverse claimant a corporation whose affairs are so closely assimilated to the affairs of the dominant stockholder that in substance it is little more than his corporate pocket. Whatever the full reach of that rule may be, it is clear that a family corporation's adverse claim is merely colorable where, as in this case, the corporation is formed in order to continue the bankrupt's business, where the bankrupt remains in control, and where the effect of the transfer is to hinder, delay or defraud his creditors. In re Schoenberg, 70 F. 2d 321; In re Berkowitz, 173 F. 1013. And see Glenn, Liquidation, §§ 30-32. Cf. Shapiro v. Wilgus, 287 U. S. 348. Hence, Downey's corporation was in no position to assert against Downey's trustee that it was so separate and insulated from Downey's other business affairs as to stand in an independent and adverse position. Furthermore, there was no appeal from the order entered in the summary proceedings. It therefore could not be collaterally attacked in the proceedings by which respondent sought priority for its claim.

2. That conclusion, of course, does not mean that the order consolidating the estates did, or in the absence of the respondent as a party could, determine what priority, if any, it had to the corporate assets. In re Foley, 4 F. 2d 154. All questions of fraudulent conveyance aside, creditors of the corporation normally would be entitled to satisfy their claims out of corporate assets prior to any participation by the creditors of the stockholder. In re Smith, 36 F. 2d 697. Such priority, however, would be denied if the corporation's creditors were parties to a fraudulent transfer of the stockholder's assets to the corporation. Furthermore, where the transfer was fraudulent or where the relationship between the stockholder and the corporation was such as to justify the use of summary proceedings to absorb the corporate assets into the bankruptcy estate of the stockholder, the corporation's unsecured creditors would have the burden of showing that their equity was paramount in order to obtain priority as respects the corporate assets. Cf. New York Trust Co. v. Island Oil & Transport Corp., 56 F. 2d 580. The power of the bankruptcy court to subordinate claims or to adjudicate equities arising out of the relationship between the several creditors is complete. Taylor v. Standard Gas & Electric Co., 306 U. S. 307; Pepper v. Litton, 308 U. S. 295; Bird & Sons Sales Corp. v. Tobin, 78 F. 2d 371. But the theme of the Bankruptcy Act is equality of distribution. § 65-a; Moore v. Bay, 284 U. S. 4. To bring himself outside of that rule an unsecured creditor carries a burden of showing by clear and convincing evidence that its application to his case so as to deny him priority would work an injustice. Such burden has been sustained by creditors of the affiliated corporation and their paramount equity has been established where there was no fraud in the transfer, where the transferor remained solvent, and where the creditors had extended credit to the transferee. Commerce Trust Co. v. Woodbury, supra.

But in this case there was a fraudulent transfer. The saving clause in 13 Eliz. which protected innocent purchasers for value<sup>6</sup> was not broad enough to protect mere unsecured creditors of the fraudulent transferee. Clark's Administrator v. Rucker, 7 B. Mon. (Ky.) 583; Mullanphy Savings Bank v. Lyle, 75 Tenn. 431; Powell v. Ivey, 88 N. C. 256; Lockren v. Rustan, 9 N. D. 43, 45; 81 N. W. 60. To be sure, creditors of a fraudulent transferee have at times been accorded priority over the creditors of the transferor where they have "taken the property into their own custody." 1 Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences (1940) § 238. Cf. O'Gasapian v. Danielson, 284 Mass. 27; 187 N. E. 107. The same result obtains in case of bona fide lien creditors of the fraudulent transferee. W. T. Rawleigh Co. v. Groseclose, 174 Okl. 193; 49 P. 2d 1085; Plauche v. Streater Investment Corp., 189 La. 785; 180 So. 637. Cf. Haskell v. Phelps, 191 Wash. 567; 71 P. 2d 550. And estoppel or other equitable considerations might well result in the award of priority even to unsecured creditors of the transferee, the conveyance being good between the parties.<sup>7</sup> Cf. Kennedy v. Georgia State

<sup>6</sup>See Clements v. Moore, 6 Wall. 299; Harrell v. Beall, 17 Wall. 590. That the same result follows in absence of the saving clause, see Astor v. Wells, 4 Wheat. 466, interpreting L. Ohio, 1809-10, ch. LVII, § 2. And see 1 Glenn, Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences (1940) § 237.

<sup>7</sup>All question of the rights of creditors of the grantor aside, creditors of the transferee have at times been allowed to reach the property after its reconveyance to the grantor. Chapin v. Pease, 10 Conn. 69; Budd v. Atkinson, 30 N. J. Eq. 530; Hegstad v. Wysiecki, 178 App. Div. 733; 165 N. Y. S. 898. But see Farmers' Bank v. Gould, 48 W. Va. 99; 35 S. E. 878; Westervelt v. Hagge, 61 Neb. 647; 85 N. W. 852; Bicocchi v. Casey-Swasey Co., 91 Tex. 259; 42 S. W. 963.

Bank, 8 How. 586, 613. Yet none of these considerations is applicable here. The facts do not justify the invocation of estoppel against Downey's individual creditors. Respondent is neither a lien creditor nor an innocent grantee for value. At best it is in no more favorable position than a judgment creditor who has not levied execution. Furthermore, respondent had at least some knowledge as to the fraudulent character of Downey's corporation. Cf. Goodwin v. Hammond, 13 Cal. 168; Bull v. Ford, 66 Cal. 176; 4 P. 1175. And title to the property fraudulently conveyed has vested in the bankruptcy trustee of the grantor. We have not been referred to any state law or any equitable considerations which under these circumstances would accord respondent the priority which it seeks. It therefore is entitled only to pari passu participation with Downey's individual creditors. Buffum v. Barceloux Co., 289 U. S. 227.

The judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals is reversed and that of the District Court affirmed.

Reversed.

GELFERT, EXECUTOR, v. NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK.

CERTIORARI TO THE SUPREME COURT OF NEW YORK.

No. 740. Argued April 3, 4, 1941.—Decided April 28, 1941.

1. A state statute (N. Y. Laws, 1938, c. 510, amending § 1083 Civil Prac. Act), directing that the amount of a deficiency judgment after foreclosure sale of mortgaged property shall be ascertained by deducting from the amount of the debt the fair and reasonable market value of the property (to be determined by the court upon affidavits or otherwise) or the sale price of the property, whichever is higher, is not invalid under the Contract Clause of the Federal Constitution as applied to the case of a mortgagee who bought in the property at the foreclosure sale for much less than the debt, and who, under the law as it existed when the mortgage was made, would have been entitled to a deficiency judgment for
