REPORTER'S NOTE

The next page is purposely numbered 901. The numbers between 791 and 901 were intentionally omitted, in order to make it possible to publish the orders with permanent page numbers, thus making the official citations available upon publication of the preliminary prints of the United States Reports.

The first step in preparing a report is to determine the purpose of the report. This is usually done by the person who is to use the report. The purpose of the report may be to inform, to persuade, or to recommend. Once the purpose is determined, the next step is to gather the information needed to write the report. This information may be obtained from books, articles, interviews, or other sources. After the information has been gathered, the next step is to organize it into a logical sequence. This is usually done by writing a rough draft of the report. The rough draft is then revised and rewritten as many times as necessary to produce a final draft of the report. The final draft is then typed and proofread before being submitted to the person who is to use the report.
