ADOPTION ASSISTANCE AND CHILD WELFARE ACT OF 1980.

Private right enforceable under 42 U. S. C. §1983—Implied cause of action.—Beneficiaries of Act have neither a private right enforceable under 42 U. S. C. §1983 nor an implied cause of action under Act itself to enforce Act's provision that conditions federal funding for state child welfare, foster care, and adoption programs upon, inter alia, a State's express commitment to make reasonable efforts to prevent removal of children from homes and to facilitate reunification of families where removal has occurred. Suter v. Artist M., p. 347.

1. Chapter 11—Trustee's tax obligations.—A trustee appointed to liquidate and distribute property as part of a Chapter 11 bankruptcy plan must file federal income tax returns and pay tax on income attributable to debtors' property. Holywell Corp. v. Smith, p. 47.

2. Exempt property—Untimely contest of exemption's validity.—A trustee may not contest a claimed exemption's validity after expiration of 30-day period to object allowed by Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, even if debtor has no colorable basis for claiming such an exemption. Taylor v. Freeland & Kronz, p. 638.

3. Federal Government's immunity from suit—Monetary recovery.—Section 106(c) of Bankruptcy Code does not waive United States' sovereign immunity in an action seeking monetary recovery in bankruptcy. United States v. Nordic Village, Inc., p. 30.

4. Preferential transfer—Date of transfer made by check.—For purposes of 11 U.S.C. § 547b—which permits a trustee to avoid a property transfer made within 90 days of a bankruptcy filing—a transfer made by check is deemed to occur on date a check is honored, not on date it is presented to recipient. Barnhill v. Johnson, p. 393.

BATSON CLAIMS. See Constitutional Law, V.BIVENS ACTIONS. See Constitutional Law, III, 1.BOUNDARIES.

Federal-state offshore boundary—Artificial addition to Alaskan coastline.—Secretary of Army acted within his discretion in conditioning approval of Nome port facilities—which would result in an artificial addition to coastline—on a disclaimer by Alaska that construction would be deemed not to alter location of federal-state boundary. United States v. Alaska, p. 569.

Municipal employees—Availability of remedy—Failure to warn of workplace hazards.—Title 42 U. S. C. § 1983 did not provide a remedy for municipal employees who were fatally injured in course of their employment, since city's customary failure to train or warn its employees about known workplace hazards did not violate Due Process Clause. Collins v. Harker Heights, p. 115.

CLEAN WATER ACT. See also Environmental Laws.

Water quality standards—Discharge permit—Protection of downstream State's interests.—Where Environmental Protection Agency issued a discharge permit to a new point source in Arkansas, near Oklahoma state line, EPA's finding that discharges from new source would not cause a detectable violation of Oklahoma's water quality standards satisfied EPA's duty under Act to protect interests of downstream State. Arkansas v. Oklahoma, p. 91.

I. Apportionment.

Hill Method—Application to 1990 census.—Congress exercised its apportionment authority within limits dictated by Constitution when it applied Hill Method—method of equal proportions—to 1990 census to determine number of Representatives to which each State is entitled. Department of Commerce v. Montana, p. 442.

II. Contracts Clause.

Workers' compensation benefits—Retroactive payments.—1987 Michigan law requiring, in effect, that petitioners repay workers' compensation benefits they had withheld in reliance on a 1981 workers' compensation statute did not violate Contracts Clause or Due Process Clause. General Motors Corp. v. Romein, p. 181.

III. Cruel and Unusual Punishment.

1. Claim for money damages—Exhaustion of administrative procedures.—Exhaustion of Bureau of Prisons' administrative grievance proce-ture is not required before a federal prisoner can initiate an action solely for money damages under Bivens v. Six Unknown Fed. Narcotics Agents, 403 U. S. 388. McCarthy v. Madigan, p. 140.

2. Excessive physical force—Seriousness of injury.—Use of excessive physical force against a prisoner may constitute cruel and unusual punishment even though inmate does not suffer serious injury. Hudson v. McMillian, p. 1.

IV. Double Jeopardy.

Drug offenses and conspiracy charge.—Where defendant was convicted on federal drug offenses in Missouri using evidence that he had manufactured drugs in Oklahoma, Double Jeopardy Clause did not bar his subsequent federal trial in Oklahoma on substantive drug charges, since those offenses were different from offense for which he was prosecuted in Missouri and since mere overlap in proof does not establish a double jeopardy violation; nor did Clause bar his prosecution on conspiracy to make, possess, and distribute drugs in Oklahoma, since a substantive crime and conspiracy to commit that crime are not same offense for double jeopardy purposes. United States v. Felix, p. 378.

V. Equal Protection of the Laws.

Jury selection—Preservation of Batson claim.—Trevino was entitled to review under rule announced, while his appeal was pending, in Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U. S. 79—that equal protection is violated where prosecution uses race-based peremptory challenges to exclude members of a defendant's racial group from a jury—since he presented such a claim to trial court and preserved it on appeal. Trevino v. Texas, p. 562.

VI. Freedom of Association.

Membership in racist organization—Admission at trial.—Petitioner's First and Fourteenth Amendment rights were violated by admission in his capital sentencing proceeding of fact that he was a member of Aryan Brotherhood—a white racist prison gang—since such evidence was not relevant to issues being decided in proceeding; whether its admission was harmless error was left to be decided on remand. Dawson v. Delaware, p. 159.

VII. Separation of Powers.

Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1990—Effect on ongoing litigation.—Enactment of § 318(b)(6)(a) of Act, known as Northwest Timber Compromise—which was Congress' response to two ongoing challenges to Federal Government's efforts to allow harvesting and sale of old-growth forest timber—did not violate Article III because it compelled changes in law, not results under old law, by replacing legal standards underlying those two cases with standards set forth in §§318(b)(3) and (b)(5). Robertson v. Seattle Audubon Soc., p. 429.

VIII. Taking of Property.

Rent control ordinance—Effect on mobile home park owners.—A city rent control ordinance limiting rents that could be charged for mobile homes did not authorize an unwanted physical occupation of property of petitioner mobile home park owners and thus did not constitute a per se taking; petitioners' arguments that ordinance constituted a denial of substantive due process and a regulatory taking were improperly before this Court. Yee v. Escondido, p. 519.

1. Entrapment—Receipt of child pornography through mail.—Prosecution failed as a matter of law to adduce evidence to support a jury verdict that Jacobson was predisposed, independent of Government's acts—which included 26 months of unsolicited mailings and communications—and beyond a reasonable doubt, to violate Child Protection Act of 1984 by receiving child pornography through mail. Jacobson v. United States, p. 540.

2. Juvenile Delinquency Act—Maximum term of imprisonment.—Act's provision requiring length of official detention in certain circumstances to be limited to "maximum term . . . that would be authorized if juvenile had been tried and convicted as an adult" refers to maximum sentence that could be imposed if juvenile were being sentenced after application of United States Sentencing Guidelines. United States v. R. L. C., p. 291.

3. Sentence for federal crime—Credit for time served.—It is Attorney General who computes credit that a defendant may receive for certain time spent in official detention before his sentence began after he has begun to serve his sentence on federal crime. United States v. Wilson, p. 329.

4. Stay of execution.—Application to vacate a stay of execution pending review of Harris' 42 U. S. C. § 1983 claim that his execution by lethal gas would be cruel and unusual punishment was denied because Harris' action was an obvious attempt to avoid application of McCleskey v. Zant, 499 U. S. 467, to bar his successive claim for relief. Gomez v. United States District Court, Northern District of Cal., p. 653.

School system—District court authority—Relinquishing supervision in incremental stages.—In course of supervising a school desegregation plan—such as one in effect in DeKalb County, Georgia—a district court has authority to relinquish supervision and control of a school district in incremental stages, before full compliance has been achieved in every area of school operations, and may, while retaining jurisdiction over case, determine that it will not order further remedies in areas where school district is in compliance with a decree. *Freeman v. RACKETEER INFLUENCED AND CORRUPT ORGANIZATIONS ACT.

Stock-manipulation scheme—Proximate cause.—Respondent SIPC—a private nonprofit corporation created by Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970 with power to seek judicial decrees to protect customers of its member broker-dealers—had no right to sue under §1964(c) of RICO where its allegation that petitioner conspired in a stock-manipulation scheme that disabled two broker-dealers from meeting obligations to customers, thus triggering SIPC's duty to advance funds to reimburse those customers, did not establish proximate causation of injury claimed. Holmes v. Securities Investor Protection Corporation, p. 258.

RAIL PASSENGER SERVICE ACT OF 1970.

Trackage rights—Condemnation order.—Petitioner Interstate Commerce Commission's decision to compel conveyance of respondent's track to petitioner Amtrak was based on a reasonable interpretation and application of §562(d), which permits Amtrak to ask ICC to condemn railroad property "required for intercity rail passenger service" if Amtrak cannot reach an agreement to use tracks owned and used by freight railroads. *National Railroad Passenger Corporation v. 2. Imposition of state income taxes on military retirees.—Kansas tax on benefits received from United States by military retirees, which was not imposed on benefits received by retired state and local government employees, was inconsistent with 4 U.
