H. R. 2547

To develop and maintain a coordinated, comprehensive, and long-range national policy with respect to ocean and coastal activities that will assist the Nation in meeting specified objectives, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

September 25, 1997

Mr. Farr of California (for himself, Mr. Saxton, Mr. Abercrombie, Mr. Miller of California, Mr. Gilchrest, Mr. Pallone, Mr. Brown of California, Mr. Goss, Mr. Kennedy of Rhode Island, and Mr. Ortiz) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Resources

A BILL

To develop and maintain a coordinated, comprehensive, and long-range national policy with respect to ocean and coastal activities that will assist the Nation in meeting specified objectives, and for other purposes.

- 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
- 2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
- 3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
- This Act may be cited as the "Oceans Act of 1997".

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS; PURPOSE AND OBJEC-TIVES.

- 3 (a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following4 findings:
 - (1) Covering more than two-thirds of the Earth's surface, the oceans and Great Lakes play a critical role in the global water cycle and in regulating climate, sustain a large part of Earth's biodiversity, provide an important source of food and a wealth of other natural products, act as a frontier to scientific exploration, are critical to national security, and provide a vital means of transportation. The coastal zone, transition between land and open ocean, is a region of remarkably high biological productivity, and is of considerable importance for commercial and recreational activities.
 - (2) Ocean and coastal resources are susceptible to change as a direct and indirect result of human activities, and such changes can significantly impact the ability of the oceans and Great Lakes to provide the benefits upon which the Nation depends. Changes in ocean and coastal processes could affect global climate patterns, marine productivity and biodiversity, environmental quality, national security, economic competitiveness, availability of energy, vul-

- nerability to natural hazards, and transportation safety and efficiency.
 - (3) Ocean and coastal resources are not infinite, and human pressure on them is increasing. One half of the Nation's population lives within 50 miles of the coast, many ocean and coastal resources once considered inexhaustible are now depleted, and if population trends continue as expected, pressure on, and conflicting demands for, ocean and coastal resources will increase further as will vulnerability to coastal hazards.
 - (4) Research has uncovered the link between oceanic and atmospheric processes and improved understanding of world climate patterns and forecasts. Important new advances, including availability of military technology, have made feasible the exploration of large areas of the ocean which were once inaccessible. In designating 1998 as "The Year of the Ocean", the United Nations highlights the value of increasing our knowledge of the oceans.
 - (5) It has been 30 years since the Commission on Marine Science, Engineering, and Resources (known as the Stratton Commission) conducted a comprehensive examination of ocean and coastal activities that led to enactment of major legislation

- and the establishment of key oceanic and atmospheric institutions.
- 3 (6) A review of existing activities and an assessment of future needs is essential to respond to the 5 changes that have occurred over the past 3 decades, 6 and to develop an effective new policy for the 21st 7 century to conserve and sustainably use ocean and 8 coastal resources, protect the marine environment, 9 explore ocean frontiers, ensure human safety, and 10 enhance marine technologies and economic opportu-11 nities.
 - (7) While a significant Federal ocean and coastal program is underway, that program would benefit from a coherent national ocean and coastal policy, improved interagency coordination, and strengthened partnerships with State, private, and international entities engaged in ocean and coastal activities.
- 18 (b) Purpose and Objectives.—The purpose of this 19 Act is to develop and implement a coordinated, com20 prehensive, and long-range national policy with respect to 21 ocean and coastal activities that will assist the Nation in 22 meeting the following objectives:
- 23 (1) The protection of life and property against 24 natural and manmade hazards.

- 1 (2) Responsible stewardship of fisheries and 2 other living and non-living ocean and coastal re-3 sources.
 - (3) The protection of the marine environment.
 - (4) The enhancement of ocean and coastal activities, and the resolution of conflicts among users of the marine environment.
 - (5) The expansion of human knowledge of the marine environment, including the role of the oceans in climate and global environmental change, and the advancement of education and training in fields related to ocean and coastal activities.
 - (6) The continued investment in, and development and improvement of, the capabilities, performance, use, and efficiency of technologies for use in ocean and coastal activities.
 - (7) Close cooperation among all government agencies and departments involved in the regulation of ocean and coastal activities, and in ensuring the availability and appropriate allocation of Federal funding, personnel, facilities, and equipment for such activities.
 - (8) The preservation of the role of the United States as a leader in ocean and coastal activities, and, when it is in the national interest, the coopera-

1	tion by the United States with other nations and
2	international organizations in ocean and coastal ac-
3	tivities.
