5 SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

- 6 Congress finds as follows:
- 7 (1) American Latinos are an ethnically and ra-8 cially diverse population. Still, whether known by the term "Hispanic" or "Latino," or by the various na-9 10 tional identities from which they obtain their eth-11 nicity, American Latinos share a common heritage 12 rooted in the mixture of the cultures of the indige-13 nous peoples of the American continent, of the Euro-14 pean colonizers from Spain, and of Africans who 15 were brought to those colonies as slaves.
 - (2) While the history of the United States formally dates from 1776, American civilization was already centuries old by then. Latinos were present on the continent for more than 200 years prior to the Declaration of Independence. Spanish colonists founded the first permanent settlement on future United States territory in St. Augustine, Florida in 1565. Indigenous nations that had thrived for centuries prior to the landing of Columbus would later mix with colonists of various ethnicities from Spain to create a third culture, one that continues to thrive in various forms throughout the Americas today.

- (3) Since before our Nation's founding, Latinos have come to this land searching for opportunity, prosperity, and chance. In this regard, not much has changed in over 3 centuries. Through every era of our Nation's history, whether in the fields of plenty or on the field of battle, a Latino presence was felt. Since before the early colonization of the west, Latinos have labored under the harsh sun to put food on America's tables. From the earliest days of American industry, Latinos have worked in our factories. Through every war and conflict, Latinos have served honorably and proudly next to their fellow Americans to defend the ideals of freedom, democliberty worldwide, earning countless and racy, awards for valor and sacrifice.
- (4) The history, art, politics, economy, and culture of the United States have been enriched since the Nation's founding by the influence of American Latinos and their traditions and innovations. Both native and foreign-born Latinos in the United States continue to make significant contributions to the arts and humanities, academia, and the popular culture that have benefited all Americans.

- (5) According to the Bureau of the Census, the population of American Latinos recently grew to become the largest demographic minority group in the country. As of July 2002, there were an estimated 38.8 million Latinos in the United States. One out of every three of these is under the age of 18, and four out of every 10 is under the age of 25. The youthfulness and rapid growth of this population ensure that American Latinos will have a substantial role in American life ranging from public policy to popular entertainment. Greater understanding of this role will benefit all of American society.
 - (6) The American Latino population historically has been concentrated in certain regions of the United States. In the last several decades, however, there has been more dispersed growth of the community throughout the entire country. In the southern states other than Texas, most have seen the population of Latinos, primarily immigrants, double between the years 1990 and 2000, adding to the mixture of cultures already there as these individuals adapt to Southern life.
 - (7) Despite the history and demography as well as the ongoing contributions that American Latinos make to the cultural life of the United States, there remains a great gap in the level and quality of awareness that other Americans possess about the rich and diverse character of Latino culture and history. Sometimes the lack of awareness manifests itself in the development of stereotypes or misconceptions about Latinos. Greater effort is needed at a national level to educate other Americans about Latinos, and to celebrate and disseminate information about Latino arts and history. Americans of all backgrounds benefit from greater understanding of the diversity that exists in the United States.

- (8) The Smithsonian Institution is the world's largest museum and research complex, with 16 museums in the District of Columbia and New York City. The Smithsonian Institution museums, especially those on the National Mall, play a unique and important role in educating visitors to the Nation's capital about our history, arts, and culture. The American people and international visitors recognize the Smithsonian Institution as the premier American museum, representing the vast diversity of cultural history of the United States.
- (9) After extensive dialogue, conferences, and collaboration among educators, scholars, and community leaders, as well as museums, universities, cultural, and public institutions, a task force appointed to examine the Smithsonian Institution's representation of American Latinos in its permanent exhibits and other public programs published "Willful Neglect: The Smithsonian Institution and U.S. Latinos" (May 1994) and "Toward a Shared Vision: U.S. Latinos and the Smithsonian Institution" (October 1997). The reports indicate that the Smithsonian historically had a poor record of representing Latinos. This criticism led to the creation of the Smithsonian's Center for Latino Initiatives in 1998.

(10) The Center for Latino Initiatives has increased the profile of Latino arts and culture and should be commended for promoting diversity and understanding of American Latino culture by the Smithsonian's patrons. The Center's short history has shown that American Latino exhibits and programs are well received by the public and by the Latino community, which benefits from having some representation at the Smithsonian. Still, the level of representation at the Smithsonian of the Latino community is far from where it should be given American Latino history, demography, and contributions to the American cultural landscape.

1 (11) For these reasons, it is necessary to estab-2 lish a commission to draft a plan of action for cre-3 ating a National Museum of the American Latino within the Smithsonian Institution, on or near the 5 National Mall in Washington, D.C. 6 SEC. 3. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION. 7 (a) IN GENERAL.—There is established the Commis-8 sion to Establish the National Museum of the American Latino (hereafter in this Act referred to as the "Commis-10 sion"). 11 (b) Membership.—The Commission shall consist of 23 members appointed not later than 6 months after the 12 13 date of the enactment of this Act as follows: 14 (1) The President shall appoint 7 voting mem-15 bers. 16 (2) The Speaker of the House of Representa-17 tives, the minority leader of the House of Represent-18 atives, the Majority Leader of the Senate, and the 19 Minority Leader of the Senate shall each appoint 3 20 voting members. 21 (3) In addition to the members appointed under 22 paragraph (2), the Speaker of the House of Rep-23 resentatives, the minority leader of the House of
