109TH CONGRESS 1ST SESSION

10

S. 1931

To state the policy of the United States on the intercontinental ballistic missile force.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER 27, 2005

Mr. Conrad (for himself, Mr. Baucus, Mr. Burns, Mr. Dorgan, Mr. Enzi, Mr. Salazar, and Mr. Thomas) introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Armed Services

A BILL

To state the policy of the United States on the intercontinental ballistic missile force.

1	Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2	tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
3	SECTION 1. POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES ON THE
4	INTERCONTINENTAL BALLISTIC MISSILE
5	FORCE.
6	(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following find-
7	ings:
8	(1) Consistent with warhead levels agreed to in
9	the Moscow Treaty, the United States is permanently modifying the capacity of the Minuteman III

- intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) from its prior capability to carry up to three independent reentry vehicles to a single reentry vehicle system, a process known as downloading.
 - (2) Through the downloading process and the elimination of the Peacekeeper (MX) intercontinental ballistic missile, the United States is now transitioning to a land-based intercontinental ballistic missile force of 500 Minuteman III missiles, each equipped with a single nuclear warhead.
 - (3) A series of Department of Defense studies of United States strategic forces has confirmed the need for 500 Minuteman III missiles with a single warhead, including the 1993 Nuclear Posture Review, the 2001 Nuclear Posture Review, and an ongoing assessment by retired General Larry Welch.
 - (4) In a potential nuclear crisis it is important that the nuclear weapons systems of the United States be configured so as to discourage other nations from making a first strike, and downloading Minuteman III missiles further reduces the likelihood of any country preemptively attacking the intercontinental ballistic missile force of the United States.

- 1 (5) The intercontinental ballistic missile force is
- 2 currently being considered as part of the delibera-
- 3 tions of the Department of Defense for the Quadren-
- 4 nial Defense Review.
- 5 (b) STATEMENT OF UNITED STATES POLICY.—It is
- 6 the policy of the United States to continue to transition
- 7 to an intercontinental ballistic missile force with 500 mis-
- 8 siles each equipped with a single nuclear warhead.
- 9 (c) Moscow Treaty Defined.—In this section, the
- 10 term "Moscow Treaty" means the Treaty Between the
- 11 United States of America and the Russian Federation on
- 12 Strategic Offensive Reductions, done at Moscow on May
- 13 24, 2002.
