H. RES. 864

Condemning Saudi Arabia for sentencing a gang-rape victim to 200 lashes and 6 months in prison and calling for King Abdullah to overturn the verdict.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

DECEMBER 11, 2007

Ms. CASTOR (for herself, Ms. DELAURO, and Mrs. LOWEY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs

RESOLUTION

Condemning Saudi Arabia for sentencing a gang-rape victim to 200 lashes and 6 months in prison and calling for King Abdullah to overturn the verdict.

Whereas in 2006, a teenage woman known as the “Girl from Qatif” and her male friend were abducted and she was later gang raped by 7 men in Saudi Arabia;

Whereas in November 2006, after she had suffered this terrible violence against her, she was sentenced to 90 lashes by the General Court of Qatif because, immediately prior to becoming victim of this violent assault, she was alone with a man not related to her;

Whereas in November 2007, after a review of the verdict by the Supreme Council of the Judiciary, Saudi Arabia’s highest court, the Qatif Court increased her sentence to 200 lashes and 6 months in prison for publicly speaking out against the verdict;

Whereas the victim remains under house arrest until her sentence is enforced;

Whereas the sentence has prompted international outrage;

Whereas rape is a barbaric act and an attempt to exert power, it is a human rights violation and in any culture women should be afforded the basic right to be in society without the threat of violence;

Whereas these actions on the part of Saudi Arabia will prevent victims of rape in Saudi Arabia from reporting these crimes and shield the perpetrators of such acts from prosecution;

Whereas United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Louise Arbour, said in a statement ahead of the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women “A woman will not report rape if we continue to stigmatize the victims of violence rather than the perpetrators”;

Whereas many human rights groups have called on Saudi Arabia’s King Abdullah to invalidate the verdict and have all charges dropped against the victim; and

Whereas Saudi King Abdullah decreed in October 2007 for judicial reforms including establishing a Supreme Court: Now, therefore, be it
