CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Expressing the sense of Congress that the United States has a moral responsibility to meet the needs of those persons, groups, and communities that are impoverished, disadvantaged, or otherwise in poverty.

Whereas poverty can be seen as a deep, structural problem that implicates our value system and our educational and economic institutions;

Whereas poverty may be defined as the lack of basic necessities of life such as food, shelter, clothing, health care, education, security, and opportunity;

Whereas policy initiatives addressing poverty have not kept pace with the growing needs of millions of Americans;

Whereas many experts believe that the lack of an equitable distribution of housing choices across the country leads to isolation and concentrated poverty;

Whereas there were 37,300,000 people living in poverty in 2007;

Whereas experts estimate that between 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 people in the United States will fall below the Federal poverty line as a result of the current recession;

Whereas even during a period of economic growth between 2001 and 2007, an additional 4,000,000 people in the United States fell into poverty;

Whereas in 2007, 13,300,000 children under the age of 18 lived in poverty;

Whereas in 2007, 15,600,000 persons lived in extreme poverty, defined as people with incomes lower than one-half of the established Federal poverty guideline;

Whereas 45,700,000 Americans were living without health insurance in 2007; and

Whereas in 2009, a family of 4 was considered poor under the United States Census Bureau's official measure if the family's income was below $21,834: Now, therefore, be it

1       Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate
 2   concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that the
 3   United States should set a national goal of cutting poverty
 4   in half over the next 10 years.
