A BILL

To establish a commission to study employment and economic insecurity in the United States workforce.

1       Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2       tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3       SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

4       This Act may be cited as the “National Commission
5       on Employment and Economic Security Act”.

6       SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

7       Congress finds the following:

8           (1) Americans’ commitment to economic par-
9           ticipation has been a defining feature of the cultural 10          fabric of the United States, helping individuals feel

1 positive about themselves, develop independence, and 2 maintain hope for the future.

3 (2) During the recession that began in Decem-
4 ber 2007, more than 8.7 million jobs were lost. The 5 scope of the economic downturn was so large that its 6 impact was felt almost everywhere along the eco-
7 nomic spectrum, and continues to be felt in many 8 communities across the Nation.

9 (3) As Americans lose their jobs and their in-10 comes shrink, too often, they also face the loss of 11 their family's health insurance and, subsequent to 12 the loss of income, even their housing.

13 (4) Research has shown that people who have 14 experienced home foreclosure are at risk for severe 15 depressive symptoms and increased risk for mental 16 illness. In a 2009 study from the American Journal
17 of Public Health, more than 37 percent of people
18 going through foreclosure met criteria for "major 19 depression".

20 (5) The loss of a job and the subsequent loss
21 of income, insurance, and other benefits from that 22 job have been proven to not only lead to increased 23 stress but also be substantial triggers for mental 24 health disorders including depression and anxiety.

1                     (6) Calls to the National Suicide Prevention
2                     Lifeline increased by more than 72 percent from 3                     2007 to 2010.

4                     (7) According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics,
5                     the unemployment rate hovered between 8.9
6                     and 10 percent from April 2009 to October 2011,
7                     peaking at 10.0 percent in October 2009. By Octo-8                     ber 2009, the number of unemployed persons had 9                     reached nearly 15.4 million, and has yet to fall below
10                    11 million.

11                    (8) The number of long-term unemployed work-
12                    ers (those jobless for 27 weeks or more) was 6.2 mil-
13                    lion in September 2011, an increase of 426 percent
14                    since the beginning of the recession in 2007. In Au-15                    gust 2013, 4.3 million Americans were classified as 16                    long-term unemployed.

17                    (9) According to an American Psychological As-18                    sociation September 2010 report, money (76 per-19                    cent), work (70 percent) and the economy (65 per-20                    cent) remained the most frequently cited sources of 21                    stress for Americans at the height of the recession.
22                    A recent report from February 2013 found that even 23                    as the economy improves, these factors are relatively 24                    unchanged. Money (69 percent), work (65 percent),

1 and the economy (61 percent) remain high sources
2 of stress for Americans.

3 (10) According to the same 2010 American
4 Psychological Association report, job stability rose as 5 a source of stress. Nearly half (49 percent) of adults
6 reported that job stability was a source of stress in 7 2010, compared to 44 percent in 2009. During the 8 same time period, fewer Americans were satisfied
9 with the ways their employer helped them balance 10 work and non-work demands (36 percent compared 11 to 42 percent in 2009).

12 (11) Research shows that time flexible work
13 policies are associated with less stress, fewer ab-
14 sences from work, and more employer loyalty.

15 (12) Between March 2010 and October 2013,
16 there were 45 months of consistent job growth, with 17 7.8 million jobs created. During the same time pe-
18 riod, the unemployment rate has fallen from 9.9 per-19 cent to 7.2 percent. The Congressional Budget Of-20 fice projects that the unemployment rate will not fall
21 below 6 percent until the end of 2016, and will re-
22 main above 5 percent through 2023.

1   SEC. 3. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.

2       There is established a commission to be known as the 3     “National Commission on Employment and Economic Se-4     curity”.

11     psychological stress caused by employment insecurity
12     and economic insecurity, the increase in mental 13     health disorders including clinical depression and 14     anxiety in the United States, and increased violence
15     by employees and former employees in the workplace
16     and in their private lives;

17          (3) analyze the psychological impact of in-
18     creased workplace responsibilities and stress on cur-
19     rent workers due to downsizing, and the role of 20     workplace flexibility policies in alleviating stress on 21     these remaining workers;

22          (4) examine the economic and psychological ef-
23     fects of the decreasing number of well-paid jobs on 24     members of the United States workforce and their 25     families;

1                         (5) analyze whether measures may be taken to 2                         reduce said economic and psychological effects; and 3                         (6) recommend potential solutions, including 4                         recommendations for legislative and administrative 5                         action, to alleviate the problems of economic and 6                         psychological insecurity of members of the United 7                         States workforce.
