

are going to have funds for space and VA care in the future. In 1996 we will spend $270 billion in interest payments on the debt. Imagine the good we could do today if previous Congressmen had the will to make the tough decisions and act responsibly.

MEDICARE

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert my Washington Report for Wednesday, August 2, 1995 into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

MEDICARE: PAST SUCCESSES, FUTURE CHALLENGES

July 30th marked the thirtieth anniversary of Medicare. Although many in 1965 predicted dire consequences as a result of Medicare's enactment, it is today without question one of the most widely supported federal government programs. And for good reason: Medicare has contributed to enormous improvements in the well-being and quality of life of older Americans. Americans of all ages agree that the assurance of access to medical care for the elderly must be preserved.

But Medicare also faces many challenges. Health care costs that have significantly outpaced inflation and growing numbers of older Americans have made it difficult to adequately finance the program. Congress has made numerous changes to Medicare over several years, cutting payments to health care providers and placing stricter limits on benefits. But financing problems remain, and will lead to hardships for the 37 million Medicare beneficiaries who depend on the program if the problems are not addressed soon.

SUCCESSES

The Medicare program consists of two parts: Hospital Insurance (HI), primarily funded through tax receipts; and Supplementary Medical Insurance (SMI) for physician costs, largely funded through general revenues with premiums for enrollees covering the remainder.

Before Medicare was enacted, less than half of Americans under 65 had health insurance, and 30% lived below the poverty line. Many older persons had to choose between medical care and other necessities because they could not afford both. Financial pressures forced some to forego treatment until it was too late. Today, almost all older Americans—97%—have health care coverage, and the percentage of them living in poverty has been cut by more than half. Life expectancy for an American born today is over five years higher than it is for those born in 1960.

While Medicare is not perfect, its administrative costs are just over 2% of program spending, considerably lower than the administrative costs of the average large private insurer. And while all Medicare enrollees receive coverage regardless of their incomes most Medicare benefits go to those who need them most—older persons with incomes of $25,000 or less.

CHALLENGES

Medicare's impending financing problems are of great concern to seniors receiving Medicare benefits, as well as future beneficiaries who question its availability during their retirement. Medicare expenditures, which were less than $5 billion in 1967, now total over $181 billion. The trustees of the Medicare trust fund project that HI will become insolvent in 2002, just 7 years away. This funding shortfall reflects the high rate of inflation in the health care sector, an aging population, and growth in the quantity of services provided. Since SMI is financed with premiums and general revenues, it does not have the same financing problems as HI.

REFORM PROPOSALS

Long-range deficits have been projected for HI since the early 1970s. In the early 1980s Congress took action to protect Medicare's solvency by increasing tax revenues and reforming how hospitals are reimbursed. These reforms, along with an expanding economy, improved Medicare's financial outlook in the near-term.

Currently, there are numerous proposals to reform the Medicare system. I believe that Congress should consider these reform proposals with a critical eye. Several proposals have already crated much interest, but long-term funding problems remain.

One proposal would mean annual limits on spending in the program by giving older people a choice of private health insurance plans as alternatives to a standard federal program. The idea would be to make an expanded choice of plan options available to Medicare beneficiaries at the time of initial eligibility and during subsequent annual open enrollment periods.

Another idea would require the government to give beneficiaries vouchers to buy private insurance. The Medicare system would cease to be a system of defined benefits and become instead a program providing a defined contribution toward the cost of health care.

Other proposals would offer options like medical savings accounts or managed care, such as Health Maintenance Organizations and Preferred Provider Organizations. Some would basically keep the current system but increase premiums for new SMI beneficiaries, increase the Medicare deductible, and charge copayments on home health services.

MY VIEW

Over the past three decades, Medicare has proven itself an effective and essential element in raising the standard of living of older Americans. Medicare is a commitment to the American people that when health care is most likely to be needed, it will be available. I believe that this core commitment must be preserved. Reforms in the Medicare system must be considered; however, wholesale immediate cuts are not the answer. Reforms cannot be considered without focusing on our inflationary health care system.

The budget resolution supported by the congressional leadership calls for a huge target of $270 billion reduction in Medicare spending; that's about 30% of the money that the resolution needs to balance the federal budget over the next 7 years. I voted against this budget resolution because these cuts simply cannot be made without doing harm to the beneficiaries and the health care system. But it is also true that there is no way to balance the federal budget or even achieve significant deficit reduction over the long haul without reducing the growth of Medicare.

The cuts proposed in this budget resolution are much greater than what is needed to maintain Medicare's solvency. Instead, I believe we should enact more modest short-term savings that would still extend the life of the trust fund and give us more time to examine the best policy options for longer-term reform. I believe we must be cognizant of certain principles when considering Medicare reform: affordability, universality, quality, cost containment, fairness to seniors and providers. It is not my preference to reduce payments to beneficiaries under Medicare. We must act decisively yet carefully to preserve the promise of Medicare for the next thirty years and beyond.

TRIBUTE TO TED LEIPPRANDT

HON. DAVE CAMP

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to recognize Ted Leipprandt of Pigeon, MI, as he celebrates his retirement. For the past 36 years, Ted Leipprandt has devoted his time and energy to the advancement of Michigan's dry bean industry. On August 7, 1995, Ted will be honored for his role in Michigan's agricultural sector during the Michigan Bean Shippers Association summer conference.

Ted has worked tirelessly for the advancement of agricultural issues since his introduction to the industry in 1959 as an agronomist for the Cooperative Elevator Co. Over the course of the next two decades, his dedication was awarded with several promotions, culminating in his ascendancy to general manager in 1974.

In his capacity as the cooperative's general manager, Ted led the company through a period of rapid growth and industrialization. He devoted countless hours to ensure the company's significant expansion was a success. Under his leadership, the cooperative was carried into the latter half of the 20th century.

Ted's dedication to the agricultural industry is paralleled only by his devotion to the community. Currently, Ted sits on the board of the Detroit Edison Co. and of the East Central Farm Credit System. In the past, he spent 2 years as the president of the Michigan 4-H Foundation. Ted is also a member of the Salem United Methodist Church. Through his active role in organizations like the Michigan Bean Shippers Association and the Rotary Organization, he has continually made significant contributions to his community, and to the entire State of Michigan.

Mr. Speaker, Ted Leipprandt is an outstanding individual who has instilled his sense of honesty and trust into all that he comes in contact with. He has dedicated his life to improving Michigan's dry bean industry. I know you will join me in recognizing Ted for all that he has done as he celebrates his retirement from the Cooperative Elevator Co.

TRIBUTE TO LEUKEMIA SOCIETY VOLUNTEERS

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to thank DialAmerica Marketing Inc., for its dedicated work on behalf of those suffering from leukemia. Based in my congressional district in Mahwah, NJ, DialAmerica is a company with a heart, a company that uses its resources to go to the aid of those in need.

This Friday, August 4, DialAmerica will officially hand over a $5 million check to the Leukemia Society of America. This is money that has been raised through a magazine subscription program in which 12.5 percent of the company's proceeds is contributed to the Leukemia Society for research, patient assistance, and patient information.

DialAmerica joined forces with the Leukemia Society in 1988 in the CURE 2000 fight against leukemia and other related diseases. The initial contribution to the society was $40,000 and the company now contributes an average $1.8 million annually. I quote Dwayne Howell, president and chief executive officer of the Leukemia Society:

DialAmerica is our largest corporate sponsor. Not only do we receive "no cost" dollars but we benefit from increased public awareness of the society. DialAmerica has proven to be an invaluable source of support for our research program.

I know personally the tragedy of leukemia: My husband and I lost our son, Todd, to leukemia in 1976 at the age of 17. At that time, bone marrow transplants and other techniques that offered hope were only in their experimental stages. Since then, many advances have been made that have spared thousands of other parents the heartbreak we faced. It is thanks to the dedicated, selfless people of the Leukemia Society—through their fundraising, their research, the goodwill, and the awareness they promote—that hope can be maintained. The people of the Leukemia Society are a shining example of how the kindness and caring of volunteers can support direct research as it races to a cure.

Today, we are within grasp of a cure but research costs money. I thank God for those who are willing to contribute to this cause and pray that with their help a cure can be found and that no child will ever again have to suffer from this terrible disease.

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA SELF-DEFENSE ACT OF 1995

SPEECH OF

HON. PETER G. TORKILDSEN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, August 1, 1995

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (S. 21) to terminate the United States arms embargo applicable to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina:

Mr. TORKILDSEN. Mr. Chairman, just last week here in Washington we dedicated a new memorial—albeit some decades late—to the veterans of the Korean war. This new monument sits directly across the Reflecting Pool from another great monument, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. Both monuments offer moving testimony to the sacrifice of American service men and women who fought in those far away foreign lands.

My colleagues, with the memories of United States intervention in both Korea and Vietnam fresh in our minds, I stand before you today in opposition to unilaterally lifting the embargo on Bosnia.

Sometimes the United States should be looking at committing armed forces to an area. More recently, the commitment of United States troops to fight in the Persian Gulf war was just such an example. But Bosnia is not the Persian Gulf, or Vietnam, or Korea.

Lifting the current embargo could ultimately drag America, and American soldiers, into a no-win situation.

The Clinton administration has already pledged to our European allies that United States troops will be committed to assist U.N. or NATO forces withdraw from the region.

If we lift the embargo now—a move which, granted, may be politically attractive—we run the risk of escalating an armed war prior to United States and allied withdrawal. This is, sadly, a very real scenario—and one I hope we avoid.

As difficult as it seems, we must return to advancing diplomatic initiatives to end the violence in Bosnia. Lifting the arms embargo will only assure an increase in violence, and sadly, may draw U.S. soldiers into that fight as well.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to oppose this measure to lift the arms embargo on Bosnia.

A TRIBUTE TO THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MUSICAL DRAMA "TEXAS"

HON. LARRY COMBEST

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to salute the musical drama, "Texas," as they celebrate their 30th anniversary. Set in the natural confines of Palo Duro Canyon State Park in the Texas panhandle, "Texas" has maintained its reputation as the best attended outdoor drama in the country, as well as the Official Play of the State of Texas. The Palo Duro Canyon State Park is located near Canyon, TX, and is administered by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Since its inception in 1966, "Texas," produced by the nonprofit Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. has contributed over $1 million from show revenues to the department.

Written by Pulitzer Prize winning author, Paul Green, "Texas" portrays the struggle and hardships, celebration and joy of early settlers living in the Texas panhandle. Well over 2½ million people from across the country and around the world have come to the Grand Canyon of Texas to watch this epic story, which captures the uniqueness of the Lone Star State.

The talented cast of over 80 singers and dancers act out the historic tale on the stage of an open-air theater with a 600-foot cliff serving as a backdrop. "Texas" uses great choreography and stirring music to tell its story. Modern technology has improved props, sound effects, and light displays to help make "Texas" nights an unforgettable experience.

The play "Texas" embodies the true values of a great musical romance. I now ask that you, Mr. Speaker, and my colleagues join me in commending "Texas" for 30 wonderful seasons. As we look forward to the next 30 seasons, I am confident this extraordinary musical drama will continue its professional depiction of early Texas history for our children and our children's children.

SALUTING THE UNITED CHIOS SOCIETIES OF AMERICA

HON. JACK FIELDS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mr. FIELDS. Mr. Speaker, I want to salute the fine work of the United Chios Societies of America on the occasion of the organization's upcoming second international convention. That second international convention will be held in Chios, Greece, from August 9 to 13.

Members of the Chios Societies of America work for the betterment of the citizens of Chios, a Greek island that played a prominent role in Greece's war for independence in 1822. But through their membership in the Chios Societies of America, individuals of Greek descent celebrate their identity while also preserving their ancient heritage.

Chian societies date back to the early 20th century, when they were founded chiefly as social groups for men with common interests and a common heritage who found themselves living in a new land thousands of miles from their native Greece. Scattered throughout the northeast, the organizations had little contact with one another until the 1930's, when Andrew Poulos, a young and dynamic Chian, established a national organization.

In the years since the national organization was founded, its members have joined together to help the men, women, and children of Chios in a variety of ways—as well as to strengthen and preserve their heritage of which they are so justifiably proud.

America is understandably proud of being the world's melting pot. But all Americans, whatever their nationality retain a special emotional tie to the lands of their ancestors—and the members of the Chios Societies of America are no different.

Mr. Speaker, please join with me in wishing the members and officers of the Chios Societies of America—especially Mr. Nick Marinakis of New York, who will serve as convention chairman, and his brother, Markos Marinakis, also of New York—well as they hold their second international convention next week.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, August 2, 1995

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I was unavoidably detained from voting on Monday evening, July 31. I was attending a child-birth class with my wife, Deborah, and I was unable to return in time to vote on the Stokes amendment to H.R. 2099, rollcall 605. Had I been here, I would have voted "yes," just as I did when the Stokes amendment passed the House on Friday, July 28, rollcall 599. I am saddened and disappointed that this provision was defeated, as I have continually fought for clean air and safe drinking water. I would like my colleagues to know that I wish I had been available to vote on this measure.
