

Community Service Employment Program. The newspaper article spotlights the work of two senior citizens who are involved with the Green Thumb Program in West Valley City. The program clearly is helping these folks remain active and independent until they retire while at the same time making contributions to the community they live in. I would like to submit this article for inclusion in today's RECORD to pay tribute to this program, the senior citizens in West Valley City it is helping, and the city officials who take the time to be involved in the program and make it work.

Bunny Bowen works in anticipation of not having to work anymore.

She has plans for retirement: publishing her 2,000 poems, reopening a ceramics shop, getting back on the stage.

In the meantime, she answers phones for the West Valley City Police Department, logs reports, arrest information and protection orders into computers.

One of several West Valley City employees hired through the federally funded Green Thumb Senior Employment Program. Bowen, 62, praises her employer. "They go out of their way for us," she says.

West Valley City is one of five cities in the United States to receive an Outstanding Community Service Award for its Green Thumb Senior Community Service Employment Program.

Green Thumb was established in 1965 by President Johnson to hire retired farmers to work on the Nation's parks and highways. These days, the program provides job training to senior workers with household incomes less than $9,340. Workers earn minimum wage while they are trained and then have the option of working for the agency that trained them or seeking a job elsewhere. About 282 Utahans worked for Green Thumb last year.

West Valley City now employs five Green Thumb trainees and four graduates.

Ron Burris, area Green Thumb supervisor, says West Valley City does more for its elderly employees than most agencies by holding resume and interviewing workshops to help them learn the process of getting a job.

Like hundreds of Utah senior citizens, Bowen found herself in the financial gap between working and retirement. After 26 years of doing books for her husband's business, her experience was outdated and her Social Security income minimal.

"The job market's tough when you're older," Bowen says. "I was scared to death of computers."

Bowen eventually found work through Green Thumb and plans to work for two more years and then retire.

But not Claude Heiner. The 68-year-old former mining engineer has worked for the city for three years and does not see his job ending anytime soon.

Heiner started working for West Valley City after a car accident left him in a wheelchair unable to continue his consulting business. Now he manages the office at the city shops, handling complaints about road damage, snowplowing and dispatching drivers.

"This really wasn't what I wanted, but it gave me something to do besides sitting around the house," Heiner says. "I'll work as long as my health holds out."

REPUBLIC OF CHINA ON TAIWAN

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, the Republic of China on Taiwan, our firm and steady ally in the region celebrated its National Day on October 10. Its economic growth and political progress serve as the standard for other developing countries, and its commitment to human rights and democracy deserve our admiration. I ask my colleagues to join me in wishing Taiwan continued success in facing the many challenges that lie ahead.

While Taiwan has served as a role model for developing nations, it has been unable to participate in many international organizations. When President Clinton meets with President Jiang of the People's Republic of China at the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the United Nations in New York, the voices of 21 million people on Taiwan will be conspicuously unheard. Their duly elected government has been frozen out of participation in the U.N. by the PRC. We must seek to rectify this situation.

The United States should make clear to China that we respect the pursuit of reunification. But reunification through military action is totally unacceptable. The United States is bound by the Taiwan Relations Act of 1980 to seek a peaceful resolution to the Taiwan situation. Part of the solution may come from equal participation in international organizations.

When the United States moved to no longer recognize the ROC in exchange for the PRC in 1979, one of the reasons given was that the 1.2 billion people of China must have a vote. That same argument now applies to the 21 million people in Taiwan. I hope that the United States will not shy away for its responsibility to our long term ally.

STATEMENT OF MR. MCCOLLUM AND MR. GONZALEZ REGARDING H.R. 2399

HON. BILL MCCOLLUM

OF FLORIDA

HON. HENRY B. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mr. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, in response to some questions that have been raised, we want to clarify that it is, and has always been, our intent that all provisions of H.R. 2399, the Truth in Lending Act Amendments of 1995, that amend the Truth in Lending Act—including the increases in tolerance—apply solely to loans secured by real estate.

COMMEMORATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF WORLD WAR II

HON. LOUIS STOKES

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to join my colleagues, our Nation's military leaders, distinguished veterans, and the host of family and friends who have assembled with us in the House Chamber this morning. I want to pay special tribute to those veterans who have journeyed from across the country to join us for this special joint meeting of Congress. Joint meetings are special events to mark historic moments in our Nation's history. Today's ceremony marks the closing activities of the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of World War II. It is, indeed, proper and fitting that we gather for acknowledgement of this significant period in our Nation's history.

History reveals that World War II was the greatest and most destructive war in history. The war killed more people, destroyed more property, and probably had more far-reaching consequences than any other war in history. The war began on September 1, 1939, with the invasion of Poland by Germany. The United States entered the war in December of 1941, following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Mr. Speaker, as we gather today to commemorate the 50th anniversary of World War II, we pause to honor the brave Americans who answered the Nation's call to service. We also honor those who lost their lives in the conflict. We know that families lost fathers, sons, daughters, and friends. We gather today to remind these families that their losses were not in vain. The war forever changed our Nation, signaling a renewed commitment to freedom and democracy. It is with the somber reminder of the valor and determination of our fallen comrades who fought for democracy that we gather today.

I want to take this opportunity to pay special tribute to my colleagues in Congress who are veterans of World War II, including those who are highlighted on today's program—Representatives, HENRY HYDE and "SONNY" MONTGOMERY, and Senators DANIEL INOUE, STROM THURMOND, and Senate Majority Leader ROBERT DOLE. As a veteran of World War II, I take pride in being included in the ranks of these brave patriots who united in service to this country a half-century ago.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to have some of the members of my family join me for today's commemoration ceremony, including my wife, Jay, my daughter, Lori, and my granddaughter, Nicolette. My young grandson, Brett Hammond, is also here with me. As I look at Brett and Nicolette, it is my feeling that we fought a war many years ago, so that perhaps members of their generation will be able to enjoy peace. As we move forward, let us do so with the strong hope that World War II will, indeed, become known as the last world war. Let this be our commitment to our children, our grandchildren, and our brave comrades who have passed on.

TRIBUTE TO A YOUNG LEADER: MR. LARRY CHAMPAGNE III

HON. WILLIAM (BILL) CLAY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, I am sure that by now most of our colleagues have either read or heard about Mr. Larry Champagne III, the young hero who saved his schoolmates and bus driver when he brought their swerving school bus to a halt after the driver suffered a stroke at the wheel. I am proud to say that Mr. Champagne is one of my junior constituents.

More importantly, I want to call young Larry's story to the attention of our colleagues because his act of courage is one of the many wonderful and dynamic things our young people are doing today. Contrary to popular belief, Larry Champagne and his schoolmates are among the 98 percent of young Americans who are doing the right thing. They are the young leaders who are studying hard, obeying authority, and making small but positive contributions to their communities. They are the unsung heroes of the 90's.

I submit to our colleagues the October 6, 1995 St. Louis Post Dispatch article about Larry Champagne. It is my hope that his story will touch their hearts, as it did mine, and inspire some confidence in young Larry's generation. Then, I offer our colleagues the challenge of doing everything within their power to protect the programs that young Larry and his peers will need to fully develop the leadership talents they displayed on October 5, 1995.

PEACHY—BOY HERO CELEBRATES CELEBRITY
(By Carolyn Bower)

Ten-year-old Larry Champagne III got pulled from class repeatedly Thursday to talk with national radio and television reporters.

But Larry was coping with his sudden celebrity status.

"I'm OK," he grinned outside Bellerive School in the Parkway School District. "I'm peachy. I'm carrots and peas."

Larry, a fifth-grader, became a hero after he stopped a school bus on U.S. Highway 40 near Sarah Avenue in St. Louis Tuesday after the bus driver suffered a stroke. The bus has been going about 55 mph.

Larry is credited with saving himself and 17 other students from serious injury. The bus driver, Ernestine Blackman, was in serious condition Thursday at Barnes Hospital.

On Thursday afternoon, Bellerive's 460 pupils filed into the school gym for an assembly to honor Larry and the other students. In sweet, high voices, the students sang a song about making a difference, taking a risk and becoming the voices of hope in the world.

Said principal Ken Russell: "We are here to honor the students on Bus 3 for their courage, wisdom and bravery in the face of danger. * * * You were good listeners. You were helpful. You are heroes."

The students were on their way to school from their homes in St. Louis Tuesday morning when they heard cars honking and felt the bus swerve and hit a guardrail.

Then they saw Blackman fall from her seat. Larry made his way to the front, grabbed the steering wheel and stomped on the brake, stopping the bus. A pickup plowed into the bus.

Then Larry and five other students helped the bus driver, got the door open and summoned help.

Russell gave Larry a stack of newspapers and a framed copy of a front-page Post-Dispatch story about Larry.

School officials presented the Bus 3 students with medallions on red, white and blue ribbons.

Walle Amusa, and aide to St. Louis Mayor Freeman Bosley Jr., read a message from Bosley and invited the children to meet the mayor next Wednesday. The mayor's message said: "I am very proud of you. It is great to know that we have young people like you who are level-headed, responsible, courageous and humble."

Tim Stieber, a division manager for Mayflower bus company, gave Larry a billed hat, a bus driver's jacket, commendation and $100 gift certificate to Toys 'R' Us.

The television program "A Current Affair" filmed the assembly.

In addition to local news organizations, Larry has had interviews or inquiries from NBC, CBS, USA Today, National Public Radio, Time Magazine for Kids, the Associated Press, United Press International, CNN in Los Angeles, Paul Harvey, David Letterman's show, the "Today" show, the "Tonight Show" and radio stations in Boston, San Francisco and Utica. Charles Osgood wrote Thursday's "Osgood File" rhyme about Larry.

Larry's relatives said the attention at first drove him to tears, but he bounced back.

His grandfather Lawrence Champagne, said: "Larry didn't want to be a hero, but now he's jumping in with both feet and dealing with it."

The grandfather said Larry's actions had lifted the family's spirits just weeks after Larry's father, Lawrence Champagne II, was stabbed to death in St. Louis.

"My son may have lost his life, but his son has saved lives," the grandfather said. "This is a memory we'll cherish forever."

THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
AMERICAN JOBS AND FOREIGN LOBBYISTS

HON. LINDA SMITH

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to let the American people know how Government has really operated in Washington for far too long. For the past several months I have been working in a bipartisan manner with my colleagues in the House and Senate from Washington State, Oregon, and California to address a serious issue. American men and women in the longshoreman's trade are being displaced by foreign workers because our own State Department's rule interpretations strongly favor foreign workers despite Congress' efforts to protect American workers in a trade where half of their jobs have disappeared in the last decade alone.

It's not bad enough that our State Department is failing to protect American jobs but they have ignored Congress' charge to update their annual rule interpretation list for almost 2 years. So let's see, not only does our own State Department favor foreign workers but now they ignore Congress' instructions as well. But wait Mr. Speaker, it gets better!

Now I have discovered that after fourteen other Members of the House and Senate joined me in writing to Secretary Christopher about this problem a mid-level bureaucrat in the Transportation and Economic Section of the Department of State decided he would call foreign ship owners to let them know they too should be concerned about this issue. Yes. We have a State Department official calling foreign lobbyists as if he had been retained to be their personal agent. Whose State Department is this anyway?

But just when I think it could not get any worse I find out that the State Department has agreed to be lobbied by foreign vessel owners and operators so that they can continue to discriminate against American workers. Their concern? It is that the profit margins for foreign vessel owners and operators will be cut.

So let's review what has been going on in our State Department. First, State promulgates rules which discriminate against American workers in favor of foreigners. Second, State ignores the law and defies Congress' charge to produce annual reciprocity lists for almost 2 years. Third, a State Department official takes it upon himself to be the agent for foreign lobbyists by calling foreign ship owners and operators to protect what amounts to be corporate pork for foreigners doled out by our State Department. Last, as if notifying foreigners that their sweet deal may be in danger is not enough, the United States Department of State decides to meet with foreign lobbyists so that their concerns can be made a part of the official State Department evaluation.

While some have asked me which American worker needs to fear our State Department next the real question Americans must ask themselves is "How much does it cost a foreign interest to have the Department of State act as your lobbyist?" The obvious answer, the livelihoods of thousands of American men and women in the longshoreman's trade.

ALTERNATIVE MEDICARE BILL

HON. BRUCE F. VENTO

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 11, 1995

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I recently cosponsored H.R. 2422, the Medicare bill offered as an alternative to the Republican Medicare plan. I am cosponsoring the bill because I believe that it is important for Democrats to offer an alternative plan to the Republicans' massive, unnecessary, and unjustified cuts.

H.R. 2422 cuts approximately $90 billion from Medicare over the next 7 years instead
