

decisions toward the radical right, to arbitrarily deny representation to minorities in our country or to create greater hardships and havoc for significant numbers of our fellow citizens who just do not have the raw power to control the lawmaking process here in Congress.

So, Mr. Speaker, let me end with a bit of friendly advice. Don't misinterpret your mandate. Remember that it was obtained with gerrymandering congressional districts, which means that your power was acquired through the use of wrongful and discriminatory political tactics. Also, remember, Mr. Speaker, as you continue to abuse your ill-gotten power, that at some point the voters could very well become sufficiently outraged and could rise-up and take back that power. And I believe that is exactly what is going to happen to a lot of your arrogant, power-mad legislative co-conspirators. I also believe that you have already missed your chance to run for President because of this very same arrogant use and abuse of political power.

MILLIONS WILL SUFFER AND SOME WILL DIE, NEEDLESSLY

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 13, 1995

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to enter in the RECORD an op ed from today's New York Times entitled "A Giant Leap Backward" written by Emory University Professor Melvin Konner.

[From the New York Times, Oct. 13, 1995]

A GIANT LEAP BACKWARD

(By Melvin Konner)

Now it's official. The Republican House plans to cut a total of $452 billion out of Medicare and Medicaid over the next seven years. Medicaid would lose $182 billion, even though it covers a disproportionately large number of children as well as elderly people who have spent themselves into destitution to qualify for it. Later this month, the measure is to be voted on as part of the budget reconciliation package, and Speaker Newt Gingrich plans to block a Presidential veto by forcing the country to the verge of default on our national debt. International markets await news of this potential disaster with thousands of pairs of hands poised over keyboards.

Default would be only the latest step in the third worldization of America. The gap between rich children and poor children here is larger than in Switzerland, France or any of the 15 other industrial nations examined in a report this year by the Luxembourg Income Study, a non-profit group. Not only that, we have a health care delivery system that overtreats the well-to-do—not actually a good thing for them—while all but withholding treatment from 43 million uninsured citizens.

Where will the savings from health care cutbacks go? Republicans argue that the money will insure that Medicare and Medicaid remain solvent. But they are also pressing for a huge tax cut for the middle class and well-to-do; presumably that money has to come from somewhere. And of course nothing Republicans do will be allowed to slow profit-taking in the health care industry, whose profits outpace national corporate averages by far. Characteristically, the American Medical Association came out in support of the Republican plan only after payments to doctors were carefully protected.

Few people may realize that our much praised health care system, about to be made worse, is already an international disgrace. The most scientifically advanced medicine in the world has limited practical or moral value when nearly a fifth of the population cannot get to it. During the past few years, while the spirit of health-care reform was being born and then started dying, the throng of the uninsured swelled from 37 million to 43 million. This trend will only worsen. Cutbacks are closing emergency rooms and clinics, and the great public hospitals are being sold off or destroyed in New York, Los Angeles and other cities. Does anyone care where the poor will go?

Republican leaders say they have a mandate to cut costs. But only about 38 percent of eligible voters went to the polls in 1994 and only slightly more than half of those voted Republican. The result is perfectly democratic, but it is not a mandate. Sixty percent of voters currently say they are dissatisfied with Congress. Time will tell whether the voters of 1994 were indulging in conservatism or merely in volatility.

Mr. Gingrich says he wants to renew America, but the only thing he is likely to renew is the frustration and anger of people who can only gape at the good life, and good health care, without hope of having it themselves. Senator Phil Gramm, a Presidential candidate, invokes the Second Coming on the campaign trail. Which Second Coming? The one brought on by Armageddon, or the one that many Christians believe grows gradually in the world through the imitation of Jesus Christ?

Deep in the Judeo-Christian tradition are such sentiments as "Do justice to the poor and fatherless; deal righteously with the afflicted and destitute." A modern politician who transfers wealth from the suffering to the comfortable and cuts off poor people's access to decent medical care might wonder how he would stand in a Second Coming.

America is taking a great step backward. All other industrial countries seem to know something we don't: having no place to take a sick child does not encourage people to identify with their country or its interests.

Americans have always been torn between self-reliance and compassion. Those who think that conservatism is now set in stone should study American history; they are only watching part of the arc of a pendulum swing. Compassion, fairness, cooperation—these are the forces that will stop this swing, whether in one year, five or seven.

In the meanwhile, millions will suffer and some will die, needlessly, for want of decent medical care.

THE BOOK TOUR

HON. PATRICIA SCHROEDER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 13, 1995

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, there is some good news. The Speaker says he'll pay for the Government-paid security on his book tour. Today I've written the Sergeant at Arms asking him to send a bill. Let's hope there is prompt payment.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Washington, DC, October 13, 1995.

WILSON LIVINGOOD,

Sergeant at Arms, The Capitol, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. LIVINGOOD: Thank you for your September 8 letter. The October 9, 1995, issue of Bill Shipp's Georgia indicates that House Speaker Newt Gingrich has offered to reimburse the taxpayers "for the cost of his government-paid security" during his whirlwind book tour. I congratulate the Speaker on his offer, and I request that you prepare and send him a bill.

What with the Republican efforts to cut Medicare and balance the budget, I'm sure the Speaker's offer will be welcome.

Sincerely,

PAT SCHROEDER,
Congresswoman.

HAS NEWT'S BOOK BOMBED?

It now looks as if House Speaker Newt Gingrich should have taken the $4.5 million book advance offered by HarperCollins, the publishing house owned by controversial media mogul Rupert Murdoch. Reports from the publishing industry are that there'll be no second printing of the speaker's book, "To Renew America," and as many as half of the 625,000 run may be returned.

Gingrich is on the hook for an agent's fee of $675,000, based on the original $4.5 million advance, which Gingrich turned down after bipartisan criticism of the deal. After payments to his ghost-writer, reimbursement to HarperCollins for the costs of his 25-city tour, taxes and reimbursing taxpayers for the cost of his government-paid security, Gingrich may net less from the book deal than his salary as speaker.

On top of all that, Gingrich has said he will give all of the royalties from book signings to his favorite charity, Earning by Learning, which Gingrich's pal Mel Steely set up at West Georgia College. Maybe the speaker should have arranged for "bulk purchases" from some wealthy GOPAC supporters, a la former Speaker Jim Wright.

HONORING CELEBRATION OF LEARNING

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, October 13, 1995

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, this year, the University of New Haven marks its 75th anniversary with a year-long "Celebration of Learning." It is with great pleasure that I rise today to congratulate the university administration, staff, alumni, and students on reaching this historic milestone.

With 6,000 students currently enrolled and over 28,000 alumni, the University of New Haven has become one of the largest independent institutions of higher education in the region. The university offers an impressive array of services to its students and, under the strong leadership of President Lawrence J. DeNardis, has forged strong ties with the surrounding community. Indeed, the university administration has worked hard to cultivate a long-lasting and mutually beneficial relationship with the city of New Haven. Students from all walks of life are able to take advantage of the school's diverse and exciting programs.

The University of New Haven has more than fulfilled the vision and expectations of its founders who conducted the first classes at Yale University in the 1920's. Since then, the university has become known nationally for its exceptional programs in a number of different disciplines. I am confident that UNH will continue to expand its services while maintaining its hard-earned reputation for academic excellence and innovative programs.

On Saturday, October 14, 1995, more than 600 alumni and friends of the University of New Haven will attend the 75th anniversary gala. I thank the university administration for including me in this historic celebration, and wish them continued success in preparing students for the 21st century.
