

may love more, in order that He may love him. Jonathan was created as the object of this great love. Jonathan did not have to deserve God's love. He did not have to be worthy of God's love. He was the beloved, just by virtue of being created by God. The length of his life was utterly unimportant, whether it was 7 weeks or 7 months in the womb or 7 years or 70 years after birth, he was the beloved.

There are so many voices in our world today telling us that in order to be loved, in order to count for something, in order to be worthy, we have to be the right way. We have to make a certain salary or live in a certain community or associate with the right people or drive a certain car, wear certain clothes, attend a certain church. If we will just do all of these things, somehow we will be worthy, we will be deserving of love and appreciation. As Henry Nowan, a Christian writer says, we drown out that voice that calls us the beloved, just because we are created by God as the object of His love.

That is why those of us who are pro-life see this as a matter of principle, not just as an issue that can be compromised. We really do see this issue of abortion as a matter of life and death, as a matter of taking away a life that God has allowed to be created as the object of His love. But if we really believe that, then we must also believe that the lives of those caught up in the terrible circumstances of considering an abortion and all of the trauma that goes along with that, we must also believe that we have no right to further traumatize that person by self-righteous condemnation of their character. Only God must judge. If our faith teaches us anything, it is that we must have compassion and mercy, not judgment.

I do not expect to ever get to a time when I stop struggling with either my faith or my politics. Christ said, as Christians, we are to be in the world, but not of the world. Some days I think that I understand that distinction very clearly and other days, I am not so sure.
