TO MY FATHER

I praise you, my father, and all your brothers
a million strong,
You, dauntless ones who crossed the ocean vast at the early dawn of the century, Came from distant lands, and gained free access to our friendly shores, You, challengers of water and wind and the unknown in search of bread and honest toil.
I praise you, Domenico, my father, who shared Your scant bread with me and gave me the sweat of your brow.
I praise you and your brothers a million strong,
You, anonymous, unrecognized, unsung ones,
The laborers, the toilers, the workers, the builders of America.
I honor you, my father, and all your brothers
a million strong,
You, amorphous neglected masses who slept on the earth bare,
Tamed the sooty demons in the coal mines,
pushed the plows in the furrows,
Made the deserts bloom, and the stingy soils yield copious crops, Hammered the spikes that held the rails that span the continent,
And raised the skyscrapers that flirt with the sky.
I honor you, my father, and all your brothers
a million strong,
The laborers, the toilers, the workers, the
builders of America.
I acclaim you, my father, and all your brothers
a million strong,
You, red-eyed-from-soot-and-sweat, barechested smiths
Who wrought the steel that forged the spine and backbone of our mighty cities And powerful industries and ships that sailed
the seven seas;
Who dug the subways and laid the roadbeds
of the spacious highways;
Who quarried the stones that raised the monuments, the cathedrals, the museums, And the schools that taught brawn and brain, races and creeds to amalgamate.
I acclaim you, my father, and all your brothers
a million strong,
The laborers, the toilers, the workers, the
builders of America.
I bow before you, my father, in both humility and pride.
You were just sixteen when your mother,
crying,
Gave you her blessings and kissed you goodbye.
Good-bye. You never saw your mother again alive.
You were still a boy when you waved farewell
To the seagulls on the Adriatic shores of Abruzzo,
A boy unbearded, unschooled, unskilled,
But unafraid of the heights and depths, Driven only by unbending will to find your place in the sun.
I'll always remember you with love, my father,
The barrel-chested, broad-shouldered, five-foot-five
With thick, callus-gloved hands and sinewy biceps, Face scorched by fierce summer suns and winter icy winds,
But face that greeted friends as well as strangers with a smile.
You, my father, and all your brothers a million strong

May have passed by unnoticed, unrecognized, unappreciated, and anonymous,
But in the juster spheres above, your names are carved on immortal granite.
Millions of you have come and gone
But Someone keeps making you and growing you by the millions more,
Because that Someone loves you, my father,
And all your brothers a million strong.

SHERIFF JOHNNY MACK BROWN: A TRIBUTE

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to a leader in the law enforcement field, Sheriff Johnny Mack Brown from Greenville, SC.

Sheriff Brown's community-oriented approach to law enforcement has proved an effective and innovative way to help maintain law and order. Thanks to Sheriff Brown, agencies from across the country travel to observe this concept of bringing law enforcement back into the community.

Mr. President, it gives me great pride to see South Carolinians hard at work insuring that our State remains a safe place to raise a family and conduct business. Sheriff Brown has taken a bold stance against crime.

"We must not, we cannot fall into the trap of believing we are there to do law enforcement work for the community. We are there to do law enforcement work with the community," advised Sheriff Brown in a 1993 newsletter for the National Sheriff's Association.

Johnny Mack Brown has been recognized as a leader by his colleagues both at the national and State level. In 1993 he served as president of the National Sheriff's Association and from 1989-91 he was commissioner for the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. And, under the leadership of Sheriff Brown, the Greenville County Sheriff's Department was the first to achieve accreditation from the commission in 1988. He also served as president of the South Carolina Sheriff's Association in 1983.

Mr. President, I am delighted to commend Sheriff Johnny Mack Brown's dedication to improving the community. His efforts will have a lasting effect not only in South Carolina but across the country.

Recently, the Greenville News wrote of the Greenville County sheriff's exemplary law enforcement methods as a model for the country. I ask unanimous consent that the article be made a part of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL STUDY LOOKS AT SHERIFF'S OFFICE
(By Bryan Gilmer)

The Greenville County Sheriff's Office is one of 12 law enforcement agencies nationwide being studied for its innovative use of community law enforcement strategies, a researcher said.

Community law enforcement includes getting law officers heavily involved with communities where they work a permanent beat. Then, rather than just responding to calls when trouble arises, the officer can work with community members to solve underlying problems that cause crime.

Gerald L. Williams, who teaches at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas, spent Thursday and Friday interviewing deputies and their commanders at the Sheriff's Office and touring the county.

In his research project, Williams and a colleague from the University of Kentucky are each examining six agencies. Their research is funded by a grant from the National Institute of Justice.

"This was the only sheriff's department that was selected," Williams said. "It's difficult to be objective when you come into an organization like this one and you see the wonderful things they're doing. It's difficult to remain distant and not become a real cheerleader."

Williams said he's gathered good information during his visit.

"One of the things that is really key to me is that I've been absolutely impressed with the amount of enthusiasm that exists in the people I've talked to, and a commitment toward community-oriented law enforcement here. There's a true sense of, 'We're going to make this work.'"

TRIBUTE TO COMMISSIONER
TILLMAN HILL

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. President, on March 16, a community committee will hold a special event to recognize the many contributions and hard work of Madison County, AL District One Commissioner Tillman Hill. Proceeds from this most-deserved event honoring an outstanding public servant will go to the Hazel Green Public Library Building Fund. Commissioner Hill opened this library at its temporary location in 1991.

The library is Tillman Hill's pride and joy, and it is entirely fitting and appropriate for his community to thank him by raising funds for the facility he has supported and been instrumental in establishing. He has always remembered his roots and has never forgotten his people's needs. Today, the Hazel Green Library checks out more books than any other rural branch in Madison County—over 40,000 volumes in 1994. Tillman's dream is to build a permanent building for the library on 2 acres of donated land. Plans for a 4,500 square foot facility have already been prepared.

Tillman Hill has dedicated his life to serving his community. He is a native son of Madison County, AL, born there, and having attended high school and college there. During the Korean war he was a noncommissioned officer with the 151st Engineering Battalion. Over the years, he has been a member of the Alabama Housing Authority; the Chamber of Commerce; the Jaycees; and the Lions Club. He is a past president of the Alabama Association of Counties.

Tillman is best known as a veteran county commissioner. He was first elected in 1976 and has served as a commissioner for 19 years. His quest to bring about a county building inspection function is only the most recent of his efforts that characterize his expertise and talent as a public official. Throughout his career, he has been the driving force behind many other special projects, including the Sharon Johnston Park; Chase Industrial Park; an expanded county water system; senior citizen and nutrition centers; low-interest housing loans; the restoration of historic cemeteries; and, of course, the Hazel Green Public Library. Since being appointed a Madison County license inspector by Alabama Governor Albert Brewer in 1969, Tillman Hill has been living proof that one individual's concern and commitment can make a tremendous and lasting difference in people's lives.

I am proud to commend and congratulate my good friend Tillman Hill for his many years of service—service which reflects great credit upon him, his community, and his State. The success of the Hazel Green Library will long serve as only one testament to his selfless determination and generosity. He truly embodies the very best of what public service is all about.

A TRIBUTE TO THE KNIGHTS OF MALTA FOR WORLDWIDE GOOD DEEDS

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, at a time when citizen participation and volunteerism are uniquely important in addressing problems of our society, with the contemplated reduction of governmental expenditures I consider it worthwhile to note the important humanitarian contributions of The Sovereign Order Of Malta and its American foundation, the American Knights and Dames.

Some of the important activities of The Knights of Malta have been called to my attention by a longstanding friend and distinguished Philadelphia lawyer, Mr. James Binns:

(1) This year the Order plans to support the Medical Research Center of New York University, for finding and improving the care, and prevention of Parkinson's Disease and Movement Disorders, which unfortunately affects more and more people every day.

(2) This year also, a 400-bed hospital and a biomedical university is now under construction in Frosinone, Italy, for all students from throughout the world.

(3) For Christmas 1994 the Order donated food, toys and clothing to an entire orphanage in Oradea, Rumania.

(4) In 1992 in the State of Nueva Esparta, Venezuela, the Order donated medical equipment to the Civil Defense and to the Firefighter. In 1993, substantial humanitarian help was sent by the Order to Fiume, Yugoslavia, through the Red Cross.

(5) In 1988 a "Proclamation" was signed by Prime Minister Yitzchak Shamir, with a special Ambassador of the Order, sent to Israel, to encourage the spirit of "Vatican II", that Jews and Christians are brothers and sisters under Almighty God. Further, to uphold through dialogue, commerce and diplomacy, the World Council of Nations to recognize the State of Israel's inherent rights through Her Sovereign History in perpetuity, as stated in the United Nations Resolution of November 29, 1947.

(6) In 1984 in Rome, Italy, the Order collected over a million US dollars for the Institute, "Regina Elena", specializing in the research of the Hyperthermic Treatment or Cancer.

(7) In 1980 the Belgium branch of the Order donated medical assistance to Africa and a special machine to be utilized for the search of water.

(8) In 1978, in Salvador, Bahia, Brazil, an orphanage for 900 children, was founded with complete facilities, including a school up to the 8th grade.

These humanitarian contributions continue activities of The Knights of Malta which originated with the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in 1099 with assistance to the wounded when the first crusaders arrived at the Holy City.

After being expelled from Jerusalem in 1291, the Knights established a new headquarters of the Order at Limassol in Cyprus until 1309. They fortified the city and laid down the armaments regulations for the vessels carrying traders and pilgrims to the Holy Land. In doing so, the maritime power of the Order was established and the Mediterranean Sea was substantially liberated from pirates.

The Knights continuously played a significant role with the siege of the Island of Rhodes in 1309, the defeat of the Ottomans who attempted to seize Rhodes in 1480 and the later battle with the Ottomans in 1522 resulting in the Knights leaving for Candia in 1523. After the Holy Roman Emperor Charles V ruler of Spain and Sicily granted the Island of Malta to the Order, the Knights of Malta reigned over Malta until 1798. After the surrender of the Island to Napoleon Bonaparte in 1798, many of the Knights returned to their own countries forming different commanderies.

During the 19th and 20th centuries, The Knights of Malta sought to avoid political affairs in order to pursue philanthropic activities which its 40,000 members do to this day.

The Knights of Malta, with its unique history over nine centuries, have established a model for worldwide efforts which should inspire other individuals and organizations to do similar good deeds.

THE PEACE PROCESS IN NORTHERN IRELAND

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, last week, British Prime Minister Major and Irish Prime Minister Bruton took an important step toward lasting peace in Northern Ireland. The two leaders unveiled a framework document designed to serve as the basis for negotiations on Northern Ireland's future.

I believe it is important to note, as both Mr. Major and Mr. Bruton have, that the framework document is not a done deal or final settlement to be imposed, but a basis for talks among all the parties of Northern Ireland. This assurance should go a long way toward putting the various parties on the negotiating track.

Both the British and Irish Governments have signaled their willingness to make some difficult compromises in the name of enduring peace and reconciliation—compromises that cut to the heart of each country's traditional constitutional doctrines and that could cost each government political support at home. I believe that Mr. Major and Mr. Bruton should be commended for their courage. Similarly, Irish Foreign Minister Dick Spring, who was in Washington yesterday, deserves great credit for his efforts—in providing continuity and credibility to the process.

For its part, the British Government will propose changes to its constitutional legislation to ensure that the will of the majority of the people of Northern Ireland is respected in determining Northern Ireland's status. Similarly, the Irish Government will introduce and support proposals to end its constitutional claim to Northern Ireland. The document also proposes to create cross-border institutions, such as a North/South body with elected representatives from a Northern Ireland Assembly and the Irish Parliament.

The fate of the process now lies squarely in the hands of the various parties in Northern Ireland. I sincerely hope that they will not miss this historic opportunity to create a permanent peace. An editorial in Monday's Washington Post makes this point rather well, and I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, Feb. 27, 1995]

AGENDA FOR NORTHERN IRELAND

British Prime Minister John Major and his Irish counterpart, John Bruton, took an important first step last week in opening negotiations for the permanent resolution of the Ulster crisis. The leaders released a frame work for talks that offers a set of opening suggestions they hope will lead to permanent reconciliation.

As usual, the Rev. Ian Paisley and his colleagues were not impressed. Blasting the agreement as a conspiracy to force Ulster Protestants into union with the Irish Republic, the 68-year-old hard-liner seeks to block talks before they begin. But other, younger men who might have stood with him in year past were more responsive. One leader of a Protestant paramilitary group rejected the Paisley position and announced that he is tired after 25 years of killing, and ready to talk. That sentiment was echoed by a Protestant member of the Senate of Northern Ireland whose own daughter was killed by an IRA bomb. If that view is widespread, there is reason for hope.

The framework announced is simply the opening move in what may be a protracted series of negotiations. Devise over 18 months of consultations between the British and Irish governments, the document suggests steps that could be taken to heal divisions in the province. The British, for example, want to create a new legislative assembly in Northern Ireland, with voting procedures that will protect the Catholic minority. The Irish government will support changes in that country's constitution that will revoke legal and political claims to the countries in the North. Both governments suggest the
