

competitors: Long distance, cable television, electric utility companies with massive capital, and customer bases of their own will have permanently eroded Bell Co. customer bases. This is not a situation, Mr. President, of a world-dominant AT&T competition with and upstart, customer-poor MCI in the early 1980's. Major Bell company competitors are customer are customer rich, and they are capital rich. They are more than capable, Mr. President, of competing on a level playing field.

I have discussed these issues and my suggestions with the Long Distance Companies Coalition, with cable television representatives, and with Bell company executives, and they agree that my idea offers a possible compromise and is worth further discussion.

I believe that if we can assure each competitor, region by region, that none of them is to have a headstart or an unfair advantage in the race to acquire customers for new services, that we can reach an accommodation that will lead to the passage of important and far-reaching telecommunications legislation in 1995.

I believe that we can do this, and I believe it is urgent that the Congress direct our attention to this in this session. I urge my colleagues to help and join me in crafting a workable telecommunication fair competition amendment. I think my suggestion is one that can be ultimately agreed to by both the long distance carriers, the cable companies, as well as the regional Bells. It is an idea and a concept that needs further discussion, further debate, and further exploration by the various interests that are going to be affected by it. I think it does provide us an opening which I think is significant and one that hopefully the companies and people affected will take advantage of.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. REID addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. I see the Senator who offered an amendment on the floor and a Senator who is going to speak.

The time for morning business is about to expire. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak as in morning business until 5 after the hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. Morning business is extended until 11:05.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as most know, I offered an amendment on Social Security that led ultimately to the defeat of the balanced budget amendment. I am glad that we had the debate on the balanced budget amendment. I think, No. 1, it indicated that we have a problem with the deficit. No. 2, we need to do something about the deficit and No. 3, we should not use Social Security as a method of trying to mask the deficit.

Mr. President, while we are having all this talk about a balanced budget, one of the areas we have not talked about and that we should talk about is health care. Why should we talk about health care?

Mr. President, one of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle was quoted in the Washington Post on February 15 saying, "Health care is not very bright on anybody's radar screen, if it shows up at all."

Mr. President, it may not show up on the radar screen of some Senators in this body, but it shows up on the radar screen of the people of America. Health care is still brightly flashing in the minds of the American public.

The Gallup Poll taken before the end of this year, completed December 30, showed that almost 75 percent of the American people felt that reform of the country's health care system should be a top or a high priority for Congress within the first 100 days.

Mr. President, nobody is talking about health care. We should talk about health care. A CNN poll showed that approximately 60 percent of those surveyed say that if a major illness were to occur in their family, they could not handle the costs of that major illness at all. There is a problem with health care. If we are wondering why the deficit is being driven up, we need look no place else other than the high cost of health care. There are interesting phenomena occurring in the country. We have some managed care operations that are ongoing.

We find that doctors are not being paid as much, hospitals are not being paid as much, but the consumer, the patient, is being charged more. Where is that money going? Who is the great middleman that is making all this money? Who is that? And should we identify him? Health care costs are increasing and we should do something about it.

Mr. President, I received a letter from a friend of mine in Las Vegas who is a physician. He was complaining about a patient who was injured in a car accident in California, a Nevada resident. This patient was injured and spent 31 days in the hospital.

Now, how much would a hospital bill be for a day? Would it be $1,000 a day, $2,000 a day, $3,000, $4,000, $5,000, $6,000, $7,000, $8,000, $9,000? Ten-thousand dollars a day is what it cost the patient before he was allowed to come back to Nevada; $10,000 a day is what it cost that patient in the hospital.

I think, by any standards, that is steep, and I think certainly, Mr. President, we should be concerned about that.

If we are wondering why we are having trouble balancing the budget, let us look at health care. A man spends 31 days in the hospital and his bill is $278,000 for the hospital and $33,000 for the physician.

Well, health care may not be on the screen of some Members of this body, but health care costs should be on the screen of every one of us. Health care costs are insurmountable for State and local governments and the Federal Government, even though we do not talk about it any more.

We brought a health care reform bill on the floor last year. We debated it at length. We lost the issue. Now I guess we are just not going to talk about it any more, even though health care cost is the No. 1 cost driving up deficits all over this country.

Uninsureds—I am only talking about uninsureds, I am not talking about underinsureds—uninsureds, Mr. President, have increased in the last 2 years by 2 million people. Now it is up to 41 million Americans. Eighteen percent of the people in the State of Nevada have no health insurance.

We have introduced legislation through the minority leader, certainly not nearly as comprehensive as last year—and that is an understatement—but we have introduced legislation to address these problems. I direct this body's attention to S. 7, which deals with some of the big problems facing health care, including paperwork reduction, administrative simplification, to help in rural areas. I see my friend from Illinois on the floor. He has been a leader in trying to provide health care for rural Americans.

Specifically, S. 7 will provide portability, limit preexisting condition exclusions, prohibit companies from raising rates when consumers get sick, and require that all insurers offer at least one plan with the same benefits available to Members of Congress.

The bill will also provide assistance for families and small businesses through tax incentives and modest subsidy programs. Specifically, this bill will reinstate the self-employed tax deduction, a proposal supported by 50 Members of this body in a letter to the majority and minority leaders.

S. 7 will reduce paperwork and provide administrative simplification by implementing standard billing and claims forms. This legislation also provides privacy protection for an individual's health records, strengthens fraud and abuse efforts, and reforms our medical malpractice system.

Two other elements in the bill which I particularly support are measures to provide cost and quality information to consumers and the provisions to enhance rural health care delivery. By providing consumers with accurate cost and quality information on health plans we can put the buying power in the hands of the consumer.

S. 7 will help rural areas establish telemedicine networks and financially viable rural health plans. The Washington Post in its health section recently cited a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill study which found that of the 50 million Americans living in rural areas, more than 21 million are in locations that don't have enough health care professionals to meet their needs. Moreover, the study found that 2,000 primary care doctors are needed in rural areas.

The elements of this bill were supported by both sides of the aisle in last year's debate and were contained in several health care proposals put forth by both Republicans and Democrats. Thirty-three Democratic Senators have rallied around a sound set of principles for health care reform and invited our Republican colleagues to join us in addressing this important issue. These principles include: Insurance market reform, 100 percent health insurance tax deductibility for the self-employed, affordable coverage for children, assistance for workers who lose their jobs to keep their health coverage, and a wide range of accessible and affordable home, and community-based options for families caring for a sick parent or a disabled child.

I believe these principles are ones we, as Members of the Senate, and representative of our constituents, can support. S. 7 and the Democratic principles for reform are a sound starting point. I remain committed to working for reform of our health care system, and I hope we can work together to provide working American families with the quality health care they deserve, at a price they can afford.

I would only say, Mr. President, that if we ignore health care in this body, we are ignoring the No. 1 cost issue facing people all across America. And before we stop hearing the words "balanced budget" and all the debates that took place in that regard, let us not forget about health care. If we are ever going to address the deficit that accumulates yearly in this country, we must be concerned with health care or we will never handle the problem.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KYL). The Senator from Nebraska.

If I may interrupt the Senator from Nebraska, under the previous order, morning business was to expire at 11:05.

Mr. EXON. I ask unanimous consent that morning business be extended for at least 5 minutes, for the purpose of brief remarks by the Senator from Nebraska.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to extending morning business by 5 minutes?

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I would just like to say a few words with regard to the bill that was introduced today.

As the body well knows, I favored the constitutional amendment to balance the Federal budget. I am sorry that it did not pass. But now that it has failed, we need to press ahead to build what discipline we can into the budget process.

We are introducing today a statutory requirement that would have most, if not all, of the teeth that the constitutional amendment to balance the budget would have instituted.

The bill requires the Budget Committee to report out a resolution that shows us when we will get to a balanced budget without using the Social Security trust funds.

The practical effect of this requirement would be to require the Government to run surpluses in the unified budget, surpluses that would start to reduce—and I emphasize, reduce—the debt held by the public and prepare us for the financial needs of the next century.

Our bill enforces this requirement with a 60-vote point of order against budget resolutions that do not show how we get to balance.

The bill allows for waiver in wartime and in recessions, using the same mechanisms that Congress put in the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law.

As for the schedule, the Budget Act requires the Senate Budget Committee to report a budget resolution by April 1.

The Budget Act requires the Congress to complete action on the budget resolution conference report by April 15. I hope we can meet that deadline.

Last year, the Senate Budget Committee reported the budget resolution on March 18.

The year before last, when Congress enacted the deficit reduction bill that has reduced the deficit by over $600 billion, the Senate Budget Committee reported the budget resolution on March 12, and Congress completed action on the conference report on April 1.

We look forward to working with the Republican majority to expeditiously fashion a budget resolution that shows us how we will get to a balanced budget and get on with the obvious work in this area that we must do.

I reserve the remainder of my time and I yield the floor.

WAS CONGRESS IRRESPONSIBLE? THE VOTERS HAVE SAID YES!

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, for about 3 years I have been making daily reports to the Senate regarding the exact Federal debt as of the previous day.

We must pray that this year, Federal spending will begin to be reduced. Indeed, if we care about America's future, Congress must face up to its responsibility to balance the Federal budget.

As of the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, March 8, the Federal debt stood (down to the penny) at $4,848,281,758,236.20, meaning that on a per capita basis, every man, woman, and child in America owes $18,404.16 as his or her share of the Federal debt.

It's important to note, Mr. President, that total Federal debt a little over 2 years ago (January 5, 1993) stood at $4,167,872,986,583.67—or averaged out, $15,986.56 for every American. During the past 2 years (that is, during the 103d Congress) the Federal debt has escalated by more than $6 billion, which illustrates the point that so many politicians talk a good game at home about bringing the Federal debt under control, but vote in support of bloated spending bills when they get back to Washington.

If the Republicans do not concentrate on getting a handle on this enormous debt, their constituents are not likely to overlook it 2 years hence.

ATTACKS IN PAKISTAN

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, yesterday we learned of the attack on three Americans on their way to work at the United States Consulate in Karachi, Pakistan. While they were stopped at a traffic light, gunmen jumped out of a yellow taxi and opened fire with AK-47 assault rifles.

Two of the Americans were killed: Jackie van Landingham, a secretary; and Gary Durell, a communications technician. And I know I speak for every Senator when I extend our deepest sympathy to the friends and families of these two Americans who were killed in service to their Nation in a changing and often dangerous world.

Mr. President, the third American, a young man from Framingham, MA, Mark McCloy, who worked in the consulate's post office, was injured in the attack and was taken to Agha Khan Hospital. He is now in stable condition. Last evening I spoke with his mother, Muriel McCloy, in Massachusetts, and I have assured her that the United States is doing everything we can to bring those who are responsible for this terrorist act to justice; and I assured her that we would do everything we can to bring her son home safely.

Mr. President, this attack reminds us of the dangers that exist in the world and the courage of those who choose to serve their country in spite of those dangers. We cannot underestimate the commitment of foreign service personnel who serve at a time when the post-cold-war world realigns—and the national, regional, religious, and cultural interests of peoples in every country are put to the test of sovereignty and self-determination. The courage and contribution of the men and women of the foreign service in this new world deserve our admiration and our respect.

So, Mr. President, though we are saddened by this tragedy, we are also strengthened in our appreciation of the contribution of those who serve. To the thousands of Americans around the world who have suffered the separation from families and home, from friends and loved ones, to embark on a great adventure to promote peace, understanding, and the principles of American foreign policy—in the name of those who have paid the ultimate price—we salute you.

Mr. President, for Jackie van Landingham and Gary Durell the adventure came to an end in a distant land, but for those of us at home who reap the benefits of their sacrifice, their memory will never die.
