STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. LAUTENBERG (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. SIMON and Mr. LEVIN):

S. 757. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to terminate the Civilian Marksmanship Program; to rescind funding for the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice; and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

THE CIVILIAN MARKSMANSHIP PROGRAM TERMINATION ACT OF 1995

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, this morning I rise to introduce a bill to terminate a program that I think has long outlived its usefulness. It is called the Army Civilian Marksmanship Program.

It is no secret that I do not like this program. In fact, I offered an amendment to terminate it in the last Congress. It got 30 votes. The arguments then may not have been persuasive. But perhaps recent events will change that.

Like everyone else, I read the reports that come out about the terrorist bombing in Oklahoma City. And they are shocked by the scope of that tragedy. Every day we hear more and more news about confirmed dead and the fact that the search may in fact have to be abandoned. It is a tragedy that will live on forever in the minds of our democratic society and throughout the world.

But in one of these stories, Mr. President, I found information that members of extremist militia groups in this country may have received weapons, ammunition, and training at Army facilities under the auspices of the Civilian Marksmanship Program.

Indeed, Mark Koerneke, the leader of the Michigan-based militia group, told ABC's "Prime Time Live" that he had access to U.S. military bases in Michigan for the purpose of training through this program.

We all know that one of the individuals accused of masterminding the Oklahoma City bombing, Timothy McVeigh, was associated with the Michigan-based militia group. I do not know, Mr. President, whether Timothy McVeigh received training and ammunition under the Civilian Marksmanship Program. But I know it is possible that he did.

A few days ago, Mr. President, I wrote to Secretary Perry and urged him to conduct an investigation to determine the veracity of the reports linking members of extremist militia groups to the Civilian Marksmanship Program. I also called on the Pentagon to immediately suspend the Civilian Marksmanship Program and propose terminating it in the long run.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the letter I sent to Secretary Perry, along with a press report related to Mark Koerneke's comments, be inserted in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXHIBIT 1

U.S. SENATE,

Washington, DC, May 2, 1995.

Hon. WILLIAM J. PERRY,
Secretary of Defense,
The Pentagon,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SECRETARY PERRY: Recent press reports indicate that members of extremist militia groups in this country may have received weapons, ammunition, and training at Army facilities under the auspices of the Civilian Marksmanship Program (CMP). I am writing to urge you to conduct an investigation to determine the veracity of these reports and to ask that you provide me with a list of all the clubs that participate in the CMP program. In the interim, I urge you to immediately suspend the CMP and propose terminating it in the long run.

As you know, I have long believed the CMP is a low priority program and is an egregious example of waste in government. The program promotes rifle training for civilians through a system of affiliated clubs and other organizations, and sponsors shooting competitions. As part of these activities, the program donates, loans, and sells weapons, ammunition and other shooting supplies.

The program was first established in 1903, at a time when civilian marksmanship training was believed to be important for military preparedness. Yet, according to a report by the General Accounting Office, the program now has limited military value. As Army officials told the GAO, no Army requirements exist for civilians trained in marksmanship, and no system is in place to track program-trained personnel. In a March 15, 1994 hearing in the Senate Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, Army Secretary West stated that national security objectives will be met with or without the CMP.

In essence, the CMP provides a taxpayer subsidy for recreational shooting. In light of budget deficit we face and the military needs we ought to address, this simply is not a justifiable use of scarce resources. After all, defense dollars are not used to subsidize other sports. They ought not to be used to subsidize a shooting program which has no relationship to military needs and requirements.

At a minimum we ought to ensure the CMP is not being used to train and arm members of extremist militia groups. The American people have a right to know that their tax dollars are not being used to train people who pose a threat to law abiding citizens and to peace and order in this country.

I appreciate your prompt attention to this request.

Sincerely,

FRANK P. LAUTENBERG.

U.S. RIFLERY PROGRAM MAY AID MILITIAS (By Colum Lynch)

NEW YORK.—Even as the Clinton administration moves to monitor extremist groups that hate federal agencies, the government continues to fund a $2.5 million program that may have provided elements of such groups with low-cost surplus weapons, free bullets and access to Army training facilities.

Mark Koerneke, the shortwave radio broadcaster and leader of the Michigan Militia group that disdains the federal government, suggested the embarrassing prospect that the government was aiding some of its domestic adversaries when he told ABC's "Prime Time Live" Tuesday that he had gained access to US military bases in Michigan to train through the 92-year-old Civilian Marksmanship Program.

Critics of the federal program, which provides about 1,150 civilian gun clubs around the country with access to military firing ranges and more than 40 million rounds of free ammunition, are demanding that the Pentagon immediately suspend the financing and launch an investigation into whether the program has provided training facilities and equipment to Koerneke and to antigovernment militia groups.

Investigators also want to probe for possible links to Oklahoma City bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh, and brothers James and Terry Nichols, who allegedly helped McVeigh produce explosives in recent years.

"Our government may be inadvertently arming and training individuals and groups whose goal is to harm law enforcement officials and other innocent people," said Rep. Carolyn Maloney, a New York Democrat who has led an unsuccessful two-year battle in Congress to halt the program.

To be sure, many thousands of law-abiding gun enthusiasts have used the program over the years to hone their skills with no other goal than to operate their weapons safely, effectively and peacefully. In Michigan alone, there are 51 clubs with more than 6,400 members in the riflery program.

Army officials yesterday defended the program as a valuable public service, particularly useful in training youths to handle weapons. Still, the Pentagon last year suggested the program might have outlived its usefulness.

The program was started in 1903. Military officials during the Spanish-American War were appalled at the ineptitude of American marksmanship and sought to remedy that by providing rifle training to civilians in peacetime.

"It was discovered that the majority of Americans who were recruited to fight in that war couldn't hit the side of a barn," said Martha Rudd, an Army spokeswoman in Virginia. "The program has been continued ever since. And the only way that it can be made to go away is if Congress makes it go away."

In addition to providing civilian marksmen with access to military facilities, the Army also sells up to 6,000 surplus M-1 rifles annually to club participants at a bargain cost of $250 apiece. Each year, the program funds what one Army official called "the World Series of marksmanship," a shooting tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio, hosted by the Army and the National Rifle Association.

Army officials said yesterday that the riflery program is an innocent recreational affair that promotes civic virtue and in particular aids the safe training of youths ages 10 to 18. In the 1980s, Rudd said, the military worked to discourage more extreme militia organizations from participating by insisting that each club chapter include at least 10 youths.

But she said that adults are welcome to participate and that it is impossible to say whether Koernke or other groups hostile to the government received ammunition or purchased weapons through the program.

In a letter to Defense Secretary William J. Perry, Maloney requested a list of the gun clubs and military bases participating, as well as information on "links between this program and militia groups or individual extremists." Rudd said no investigation into the program had been initiated.

Maloney also circulated a bill calling on Congress to end the program.

"Long before this bombing, the Civilian Marksmanship Program stood out as one of the most ridiculous items in the federal government budget," she said. "We're slashing funding for abused children, foster care and child nutrition, yet we're subsidizing recreational marksmanship."

Indeed, the Pentagon issued a report to Congress last year that said the program no longer served a military purpose. Even conservative commentator George Will has referred to it as "petrified pork." However, largely because of lobbying by the NRA and resistance from some Democratic and Republican supporters, the program has survived.

"The NRA has been the official agent for the Civilian Marksmanship Program," contended Bob Walker, the legislative director for Handgun Control Inc., a Washington-based group advocating gun control. "In order to qualify for surplus rifles and free ammunition, one of the requirements is that you belong to the NRA. This program is a subsidy for the NRA and its members."

The NRA press office did not respond yesterday to several requests for an interview.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I have long believed the Civilian Marksmanship Program is a low priority program and an egregious example of waste in government. The program promotes rifle training for civilians through a system of affiliated clubs and other organizations, and sponsors shooting competitions. As part of these activities, the program donates, loans, and sells weapons, ammunition, and other shooting supplies.

The program was first established in 1903, soon after the Spanish-American War, at a time when civilian marksmanship training was believed to be important for military preparedness. Back then, some Federal officials were concerned that recruits often were unable to shoot straight. The officials believed that a trained corps of civilians with marksmanship skills would be useful to prepare for future military conflicts.

Mr. President, that may have made sense in 1903. But this is 1995. The Spanish-American War ended more than 90 years ago, and things have changed.

According to a report by the General Accounting Office, the program now has limited military value. As Army officials told the GAO, no Army requirements exist for civilians trained in marksmanship. In a March 15, 1994, hearing in the Senate Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, Army Secretary West stated that national security objectives will be met with or without the Civilian Marksmanship Program.

Unlike the situation in 1903 and the Spanish-American War, today we have well-trained Reserves and National Guard Forces, and we have advanced, high-technology weapons systems. The military does not need a ready supply of ordinary civilians who know how to shoot a rifle.

Even if we did need such a corps, the program does not give us one. No system is in place that tracks the program-trained personnel, and the program is not part of the Army plan for mobilizing forces in an emergency.

In essence, the Civilian Marksmanship Program provides a taxpayer subsidy for recreational shooting. In light of the budget deficit we face and the military needs we ought to address, this simply is not a justifiable use of scarce resources.

After all, defense dollars are not used to subsidize other sports. They ought not be used to subsidize a shooting program which has no relationship to military needs and requirements. Training young people to play baseball is a nice thing to do, but the Government does not subsidize Little League. We do not give children free baseballs? Why should we give them bullets?

Mr. President, Americans are deeply cynical about the Congress. They think we are controlled by narrow special interests and that we are wasting taxpayers' money on useless boondoggles. A program like bucks for bullets only reinforces that image.

It also makes people wonder about our priorities. After all, how can we close military bases and lay off thousands of defense workers while spending money on recreational gun clubs? How can we fail to fully fund Head Start if we can pass out free bullets to school kids? How can we omit funds for people unable to afford a college education if we can find millions to teach kids how to shoot?

Where is our sense of priorities? Where is our common sense?

Mr. President, I hope my colleagues will agree that it is time to end this program. At a minimum, Mr. President, we ought to ensure the Civilian Marksmanship Program is not being used to train and arm members of extremist militia groups. The American people have a right to know that their tax dollars are not being used to train people who pose a threat to law-abiding citizens and to peace and order in this country.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this bill, and I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. RESCISSION OF FUNDS FOR NATIONAL BOARD FOR THE PROMOTION OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

The unobligated balanced of the funds appropriated by title II of Public Law 103-335 under the heading "NATIONAL BOARD FOR THE PROMOTION OF RIFLE PRACTICE, ARMY" is rescinded.

SEC. 3. FISCAL YEAR 1996 FUNDING NOT AUTHORIZED FOR THE NATIONAL BOARD FOR THE PROMOTION OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

Funds are not authorized to be appropriated for the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Senator from New Jersey in this legislation to rescind the appropriation for the Civilian Marksmanship Program. I do so for a number of reasons, and I want to briefly cite them.

At a time when our Government and this body is cutting virtually every program that benefits people all across the board, I think the Civilian Marksmanship Program is one program that is truly expendable and can be rescinded. As was pointed out, the military has said this program is not necessary. The General Accounting Office in 1990 found the program unnecessary and not related to the military mission.

In March 1994, the Department of Defense testified before the Defense Subcommittee on Appropriations that the Civilian Marksmanship Program was not related to our Nation's military readiness and had no effect on our national security objectives.

About a week ago, Mr. President, I had a group gathered of major law enforcement organizations to talk about the intended repeal of the assault weapons legislation, and the head of a Federal law enforcement organization handed me a copy of the National Rifle Association's letter, a 6-page direct-mail piece that went out, and said to me this was received by one of our law enforcement people who was, frankly, amazed that this kind of rhetoric could appear on an NRA direct-mail piece.

I took a look at it, and I was astonished by what I saw. Since that time, a number of Members of the Senate have commented in the Chamber on their concern about this piece. It was thought that the National Rifle Association might agree that it was hyperbole and that it seemed to have a purpose to incite people to take action against the Federal Government, and it made statements which were in effect libelous; they were untrue; they were slanderous; statements like it did not matter to those of us who support the assault weapons ban that it gave "jack-booted Government thugs more power to take away our constitutional rights, break in our doors, seize our guns, destroy our property, and even injure or kill us."

Mr. President, I have had a lot of things said about me but never that. That is untrue. It is a lie. It is patently false and it is said for one reason and one reason only, and that is to incite people.

Then it goes on to say, "President Clinton's army of antigun Government agents continue to intimidate and harass law-abiding citizens. In Clinton's administration, if you have a badge, you have the Government's go ahead to harass, to intimidate, and to even murder law-abiding citizens."

On its face, that is slanderous and in writing it is libelous. It is factually untrue. It is said but for one reason and one reason only. And that is to incite and develop hatred against the Federal Government and the very people who carry out the intent of the laws that we in this body and the other body pass and are signed by the President and become the law of the land. I do not think this body can condone this kind of rhetoric.

Now, is this connected with the Civilian Marksmanship Program? Not directly. Not directly. But indirectly it is, because the NRA effectively participates in this program—it is estimated by some to the extent of $1 million out of the $2.5 million appropriation.

Moreover, given the association's refusal to recant this letter, a letter which is blatantly political and inciting, certainly not one of a nonpolitical organization, should Federal funds benefit a political organization of this type? I would come down and say no, Federal moneys should not go to benefit an organization that openly admits it plays a major political role in the election and in the unelection of Members of Congress and members of other local bodies.

I believe letters of this kind really defeat its purpose as a so-called nonpolitical organization.

In addition, I am disturbed about recent reports, such as the ABC "PrimeTime Live" episode and a Boston Globe article, that describe how militia members brag that they have received ammunition, surplus weaponry, and training on Army bases through the Civilian Marksmanship Program.

I do not know whether this is true or not. I have no way on my own of verifying it, but the fact is they did brag that this was the case.

In fact, my staff was recently told by the Department of Defense about a recent incident where a military security patrol monitoring an Army rifle range saw that club members were using the range and wearing Michigan militia patches. These club members were asked to leave the range, which is located at Camp Grayling, MI, on April 27.

As DOD staff admit, there is nothing in the regulations of this program to prevent militia members from joining civilian marksmanship clubs and receiving ammunition, weaponry, and access to military training facilities, because—and I stress this—the program does not check members for their membership in other organizations or limit the number of adults that can join.

So in light of these reports, which suggest this possibility to train, supply, or subsidize anti-Government extremist militias, and the letter which seems to indicate to me, and I think to other reasonable readers of the letter, that the National Rifle Association is willing to go a step further to raise the level of the rhetoric, to increase the hostility, one can certainly question the wisdom of Federal dollars going to provide weapons and bullets and training to groups who may—and I say may and I say might—use these weapons and use that training against the very people that this body empowers to carry out our laws.

So I believe the time has come to take definitive, direct action and, by that action, to send a message that we will not, in fact, tolerate this. That is why I am cosponsoring this legislation, and I hope this body will be receptive to its passage.

By Mr. HATCH (for himself, Mr. PRYOR, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. LEAHY, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. BOND, Mr. KEMPThORNE, Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. FORD, Mr. ROBB, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. KERREY, Mr. KYL, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. COHEN, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. BENNETT, and Mr. BINGAMAN):

S. 758. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide for S corporation reform, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

THE S CORPORATION REFORM ACT OF 1995

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and Senator PRYOR, I rise today to introduce the S Corporation Reform Act of 1995. We are pleased to be joined by Senators SIMPSON, BREAUX, LUGAR, LEAHY, HUTCHISON, MURRAY, BOND, KEMPThORNE, JOHNSTON, FORD, ROBB, DORGAN, KERREY of Nebraska, KYL, BAUCUS, CRAIG, COCHRAN, GRASSLEY, D'AMATO, COHEN, BENNETT, and BINGAMAN.

Mr. President, today almost 1.7 million businesses pay taxes as S corporations and the vast majority of these are small enterprises. As we all know, small business is the engine that drives American job creation. It is important to note that while in ordinary times, small businesses create half of the new jobs in this country, in times of recovery, this number jumps to 75 percent. It is obvious that the tax and economic policies of this Nation should support and sustain the creation and growth of small businesses. Our economic future depends on the health and strength of our small business sector.

This is why we are introducing a bill today to strengthen small businesses.

Mr. President, this bill will help to fine-tune the Nation's job-creating engine of small business in three ways: by improving access to capital, by making it easier to pass on family-owned businesses from one generation to the next, and by simplifying many of the outdated, unnecessary and complex tax rules that apply to S corporations.

One of the biggest problems facing small business is that of attracting adequate capital. This bill helps to expand access to capital by S corporations by increasing the number of permitted shareholders from 35 to 50, by permitting tax-exempt organizations to be shareholders, and by allowing non-citizens to own S corporation stock. It will also modernize S corporation financing by allowing them to issue preferred stock and convertible bonds.

Further, this legislation will make it easier for one S corporation to own another corporation. Our outmoded rules already permit this, but not without a sizeable diversion of capital away from productive investment and into the pockets of lawyers and accountants. This bill's provisions will streamline small business structure and return common sense to the realm of business ownership.

Additionally, the bill will help preserve family-owned businesses by making it easier for families to establish trusts funded by S corporation shares, and by counting all members of a family who hold S corporation stock as a single shareholder. These are important provisions, Mr. President, because so many successful small businesses fail to survive beyond the first generation.

Finally, the bill will repair a number of outmoded, inefficient provisions of S corporation tax law. Among the revised rules are a provision giving fringe benefits in S corporations the same tax treatment provided to ordinary corporations, and another which will stop corporate elections from being invalidated by mere technicalities. Most importantly, all of the bill's provisions have been carefully designed to avoid creating future difficulties for America's small businesses.

In my home state of Utah, there are thousands of current and future entrepreneurs for whom this bill will provide much-needed financial and legal flexibility in the increasingly competitive marketplace. Throughout the country, small businessmen and women have been clamoring for relief from our Nation's outdated and inflexible policies regarding S corporation.

I encourage my colleagues to support this badly needed legislation, which will give small businesses the strength and flexibility they will need to thrive into the next century.

Mr. President, there is much talk these days about tax simplification and about throwing out the old tax system and starting over again with a better one that makes more sense. This debate is a very positive thing for this country and I believe it will eventually lead to some vast improvements in the way our economy operates. In the meantime, however, let us not overlook some of the relatively simple and noncontroversial changes that will make our tax system work better. This bill represents such changes. These are improvements that we can make right now that will help small and growing businesses.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

"(i) for purposes of this subsection, such shareholder's wages (as defined in section 3121) from the S corporation shall be treated as such shareholder's earned income (within the meaning of section 401(c)(1)), and

"(ii) there shall be such adjustments in the application of this subsection as the Secretary may by regulations prescribe.

"(B) 2-PERCENT SHAREHOLDER DEFINED.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term '2-percent shareholder' means any person who owns (or is considered as owning within the meaning of section 318) on any day during the taxable year of the S corporation more than 2 percent of the outstanding stock of such corporation or stock possessing more than 2 percent of the total combined voting power of all stock of such corporation."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part III of subchapter S of chapter 1 is amended by striking the item relating to section 1372.

TITLE III—TAXATION OF S CORPORATION SHAREHOLDERS

SEC. 301. UNIFORM TREATMENT OF OWNER-EMPLOYEES UNDER PROHIBITED TRANSACTION RULES.

The last sentence of section 4975(d) (relating to exemptions from prohibited transactions) is amended by striking "a shareholder-employee (as defined in section 1379, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Subchapter S Revision Act of 1982)."

SEC. 302. TREATMENT OF LOSSES TO SHAREHOLDERS.

(a) TREATMENT OF LOSSES IN LIQUIDATIONS.—Section 331 (relating to gain or loss to shareholders in corporate liquidations) is amended by redesignating subsection (c) as subsection (d) and by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(2) ORDINARY INCOME BASIS.—For purposes of this subsection, the ordinary income basis of stock of an S corporation in the hands of a shareholder of such S corporation shall be an amount equal to the portion of such shareholder's basis in such stock which is equal to the aggregate increases in such basis under section 1367(a)(1) resulting from such shareholder's pro rata share of ordinary income of such S corporation attributable to the complete liquidation."

(b) CARRYOVER OF DISALLOWED LOSSES AND DEDUCTIONS UNDER AT-RISK RULES ALLOWED.—Paragraph (3) of section 1366(d) (relating to carryover of disallowed losses and deductions to post-termination transition period) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(D) AT-RISK LIMITATIONS.—To the extent that any increase in adjusted basis described in subparagraph (B) would have increased the shareholder's amount at risk under section 465 if such increase had occurred on the day preceding the commencement of the post-termination transition period, rules similar to the rules described in subparagraphs (A) through (C) shall apply to any losses disallowed by reason of section 465(a)."

TITLE IV—EFFECTIVE DATE

SEC. 401. EFFECTIVE DATE.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I also want to pay specific tribute to our distinguished colleague from Arkansas, Senator PRYOR. Not only has he been a great Senator here but he has been the leader on this particular issue for years and he deserves the credit for these changes in the S corporation law. I have agreed to assistance this year in trying to get this done and we intend to get it done this year. It is something that is long overdue, and thanks to his leadership and his intellectual prowess I think we will be able to get it done. So I want to personally compliment him.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, first I would like to thank my very good friend, my long-time friend and distinguished colleague from Utah, Senator HATCH.

Senator HATCH and I have worked on this proposal for a long time and we are very proud today to be able to introduce it as a bill and to also announce our 23 cosponsors from each side of the aisle in support of the S Corporation Reform Act of 1995.

Senator HATCH has been, certainly, a teacher for me in this whole process. I thank him. He has been a great ally. Truly, serving on the Finance Committee together, working with this legislation and working with a number of colleagues that we have in support, and also the number of organizations that I will list in a moment, we think truly in 1995 we can make this reform of S corporation law become a reality.

This legislation is truly the culmination of the efforts of many, many individuals and groups. It is a bipartisan effort, and certainly represents, I think, a step that Congress can and should take in order to capitalize on one of our country's most valuable resources, small business, as Senator HATCH has just so eloquently stated.

I want to thank all of the businessmen and women, attorneys, accountants, and small business organizations who have worked with me and my staff to help us to understand the unique problems of subchapter S corporations. They have helped us arrive at solutions that we think are easily administered and targeted to encourage economic growth.

The interest and enthusiasm for this effort is of special mention. At this date, the bill is endorsed by the:

Members of the S Corp Subcommittee of the American Bar Association's tax section; the U.S. Chamber of Commerce; National Federation of Independent Businesses Small Business Legislative Council; American Institute of Certified Public Accountants; American Vintners Association; American Consulting Engineers Council; American Electronics Association; Associated Builders and Contractors; Associated Equipment Distributors; National Association of Life Underwriters; National Association of Realtors; National Association of Wholesale-Distributors; National Business Owners Association; National Society of Public Accountants; and the S Corp Reform Project.

Mr. President, these fine organizations we think represent hundreds of thousands of businesses across this country that will be impacted in a good way across our country. It is quite a team, and a team that I think is very rarely put together. It is quite a team that has worked thoughtfully and diligently, and I must say, patiently, through this system to help produce a bill that Congress can pass and we should pass overwhelmingly.

Mr. President, I would like to point out to my colleagues that I introduced similar legislation in the last session of Congress. On November 19, 1993, S. 1690 was introduced with our former colleague, Senator John Danforth, who retired from the U.S. Senate. Working together, we were joined by a strongly bipartisan group of 40 of our colleagues who cosponsored that bill at that time.

Today, once again, I am so proud to be able to join my friend and colleague, Senator HATCH, with whom I very much look forward to working in order that we might take the next step and move this bill into law.

The S Corporation Reform Act of 1995 contains 27 provisions designed to usher sub-S corporations into the financial environment of the 1990's.

Subchapter S was first enacted in 1958. In fact, I think it might have been about the year that the distinguished occupant of our chair was born. On that particular date that subchapter S was passed into law, it was enacted to remove tax considerations from small business owners' decisions to incorporate. This tax treatment has proved helpful to small business over the years, especially to startup businesses, to new businesses. But subchapter S, as originally enacted in 1958, was very limiting and contained a large number of pitfalls. Today, hundreds of thousands of U.S. businesses are S corporations. These businesses are still subject to many of the oppressive restraints which date back to its original enactment in 1958.

Mr. President, it goes without saying that times have changed a great deal since that year. The financial environment is far more complex than the 1950's. Sub S limitations restrict growth opportunities, and frankly sub S needs an overhaul, and it needs an overhaul now.

This legislation we think is the overhaul we need. It is an overhaul that is doable. It is an overhaul that can give a boost to our economic recovery by creating more opportunities for capital growth and jobs throughout every segment of American economic activity.

Mr. President, these objectives are met by this legislation in ways that have been carefully thought through. There may well be other ways to encourage these goals that Senator HATCH and I share this afternoon. But I hope and expect my colleagues respectfully will come forward with their ideas should they see areas where we might improve upon this proposal. I look forward to this dialog. I urge my colleagues to examine this bill closely and to join with Senator HATCH and myself in this effort.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of a summary description of the major provisions of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S CORPORATION REFORM ACT OF 1995
ACCELERATING CAPITAL FORMATION
Shareholder limitations

Increase the number of permitted shareholders from 35 to 50. Currently a corporation is not eligible to be an S corporation if it has more than 35 shareholders. Increasing the number of permitted shareholders to 50 will make S corporation status available to additional closely-held businesses, allowing them the benefits of limited liability. Further, increasing the number of permitted shareholders will enable S corporations to raise more capital.

Permit tax-exempt organizations to be shareholders. This would permit charities and pension plans to be eligible shareholders of an S corporation, thereby increasing an S corporation's access to certain capital markets. Specifically, an S corporation would be able to establish an employee stock ownership plan and would have access to additional capital from charitable organizations and pension funds. The bill further provides that the flow-through income of an S corporation would be treated as unrelated business taxable income to a tax-exempt shareholder as if the S corporation's activities were conducted directly by the tax-exempt shareholder.

Allow nonresident alien shareholders to own S corporation stock. By permitting nonresident aliens to be eligible shareholders of an S corporation, the bill expands an S corporation's access to capital. In addition, it enhances an S corporation's ability to expand into international markets because it provides them the ability to offer an equity interest to individuals they are trying to recruit to grow their business overseas. To ensure collection of tax on nonresident aliens, the bill subjects these shareholders to U.S. withholding tax on S corporation income.

Preferred Stock and Convertible Debt

Permit S corporations to issue preferred stock. Currently, S corporations may not issue more than one class of stock. By permitting S corporations to issue preferred stock, the bill increases access to capital from investors who insist on having a preferential return. The provision also facilitates family succession by permitting the older generation of shareholders to relinquish control of the corporation but maintain an equity interest. The bill also provides that a distribution made with respect to qualified preferred stock will be considered interest income to the shareholder and deductible interest expense to the S corp.

Expand Safe Harbor Debt to permit convertible debt. This provision permits S corporations to issue debt that may be converted into stock of the corporation provided that the terms of the debt are substantially the same as the terms that could have been obtained from an unrelated party. The provision will also permit the debt to be held not only by qualified shareholders, but also by a person who is actively and regularly engaged in the business of lending money. The current law provision, which prohibits conversion of the debt into stock, unnecessarily impairs the ability of an S corporation to raise investment capital.

Subsidiaries

Permit an S corporation to own greater than 80% of another corporation. Currently, S corporations may not own more than 79% of a C corporation. This provision removes this limitation to allow S corporations to hold more than 80% of the stock of a subsidiary C corporations, which will greatly enhance an S corporation's ability to achieve significant non-tax objectives in structuring their operations. In reality, taxpayers get around current rules through complex arrangements used by expensive tax planners. So, this provision allows S corporation to do directly, what they now do indirectly.

Permit S Corporations to own wholly-owned S Corporation Subsidiaries. The provision would permit an S corporation to serve as a holding company for the various operating S corporations, which would simplify management of the group. The holding company could enter into contracts on behalf of the group, serve as a common paymaster, perform other centralized management services, and facilitate obtaining financing for the group.

PRESERVING FAMILY-OWNED BUSINESSES

Expand the types of trusts that can own S corporation stock to include certain complex trusts that qualify as "electing small business trusts." This provision would enable S corporation shareholders to accomplish many estate planning goals not currently available because of current law limitations on the types of trusts that can be S corporation shareholders. Specifically, this provision would enable S corporation shareholders to establish complex trusts with multiple beneficiaries and permit the trustee to have discretion as to which beneficiary to make distributions. Providing this type of flexibility is consistent with a major underlying purpose of the S corporation—to provide a vehicle for family-owned corporations.

Count all members of a single family that own an S corporation's stock as a single shareholder. An election could be made with the consent of all shareholders to count family members that are not more than six generations removed from a common ancestor as one shareholder for purposes of the number of shareholder limitation.

REMOVING TRAPS FOR THE UNWARY

Elections

Permit the Secretary of the Treasury to treat invalid elections as effective and permit late elections. This provision permits the IRS to retroactively validate an invalid S corporation election in cases where the corporation inadvertently failed to meet the definition of a small business corporation or to obtain the required shareholder consents. The bill sets forth the criteria under which the IRS should validate such elections. The bill also provides for an automatic waiver procedure for certain inadvertent terminations. In addition, the bill provides that if a corporation fails to make a timely S election (i.e., by the 15th day of the third month of the first S corporation year) and the Secretary determines that there was reasonable cause for the failure to make such election, the Secretary may treat the election as timely made.

Passive Investment Income

Repeal excessive passive income as a termination event. Under current law, if more than 25 percent of the gross receipts of an S corporation are passive investment income, a corporate level tax will be imposed on the excess passive income. In addition, an election of S corporation status will be terminated if at the close of three consecutive years a corporation has subchapter C earnings and profits and more than 25 percent of gross receipts are from passive investment income. The provision would increase the threshold for taxing excess passive income from 25 percent to 50 percent. Importantly, the provision would also provide that an S corporation would not lose its S corporation status if it has excess passive income for three consecutive years. Instead, the corporate level tax rate applied to the excess passive income would increase by 10 percent for each successive year. The provision also makes it clear that items of income connected with an S corp's trade or business will not be considered passive income.

FRINGE BENEFITS

Place S corporation shareholders in the same position as regular corporations with respect to fringe benefits such as life insurance premiums.

Repeal restrictions on qualified plan loans made to S corporation shareholders.

TECHNICAL PROPOSALS

Treat losses on liquidation of S corporations as ordinary to the extent the loss created by ordinary income passthrough triggered the liquidation. In the case of a liquidation of an S corporation, current law can result in double taxation because of a mismatch of ordinary income (realized at the corporate level and passed through to the shareholder) and a capital loss (recognized at the shareholder level on the liquidating distribution). Although careful tax planning can avoid this result, many S corporations do not have the benefit of sophisticated tax counsel. The provision in the bill would eliminate this potential trap.

Allow interim closing of the books in termination of shareholder interest with consent of corporation and affected shareholder. Current law requires that if a shareholder terminates his interest in an S corporation during the taxable year, the corporation and all persons who are shareholders during the taxable year must agree to close the books on the date of termination. The bill would eliminate the requirement that all shareholders consent to the closing and instead requires only that the "affected shareholders" (the shareholder whose interest is terminated and all shareholders to whom such shareholder transferred shares during the year) consent to the closing. This change will ease procedural problems in preparing and filing timely corporate tax returns.

Allow charitable contributions of inventory and scientific property to be the same for S corporations as for regular corporations. S corporations would be permitted an increased charitable contribution, equivalent to the deduction amount allowed to regular corporations.

By Mr. BRADLEY (for himself and Mr. HOLLINGS):

S. 759. A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to limit the adjustment of status of aliens who are unlawfully residing in the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE ILLEGAL IMMIGRATION ENFORCEMENT ACT
OF 1995

Mr. BRADLEY. Madam President, I am pleased to introduce, for myself and Senator HOLLINGS, the Illegal Immigration Enforcement Act of 1995. This is a bill to improve the Federal Government's ability to deter illegal immigration by enhancing enforcement of existing laws that prohibit employment of illegal aliens and bar overstays by legally admitted visitors.

Madam President, I have been watching the unfolding immigration debate with real concern. As I followed California's proposition 187 campaign, I realized the arguments over illegal immigration are occurring in a vacuum. We are trying to address the impact of immigration without understanding how it relates to the deeper transformations that are shaping our society. We find ourselves susceptible to the demagogic quick fix, and risk undermining the diversity that underlies our strength as an American people.

Peter Drucker once said:

Every few hundred years throughout Western history, a sharp transformation has occurred. In a matter of decades, society rearranges itself—its world view, its basic values; its social and political structures; its art; its key institutions. Fifty years later, there is a new world. And the people born into that world cannot even imagine the world in which their grandparents lived and into which their own parents were born.

Madam President, we are currently living through such a period of transformation. Not since the age of democratic revolution coincided with the industrial revolution has our world undergone such sweeping change as we are having today. The forces at work in our lives today are as dramatic and powerful as the Declaration of Independence and the steam engine were two centuries ago.

We face today a rapidly transforming world full of new opportunities. But those opportunities are accompanied by profound uncertainties and painful adaptations. Progress creates losers as well as winners. For example, the death of the Soviet Union has ended our fear of nuclear annihilation. At the same time, the resulting military downsizing has cost over 1.1 million jobs in the defense sector alone since 1987. As a result, and not for the first time in our history, politicians and voters have seized upon immigration, especially illegal immigration, as a scapegoat for the deeper uncertainties we feel.

Illegal immigration has also become a lightning rod for worries about the budget crises we face at all levels of Government. There is no doubt that illegal immigrants impose a cost on taxpayers. According to the estimates by the Urban Institute, the seven most affected States pay approximately $3.1 billion yearly on education, $471 million on incarceration, and $313 million on providing medical treatment for undocumented aliens. The Urban Institute's fiscal year 1993 estimates for my own State of New Jersey, which has the sixth largest population of illegal aliens, are $146 million for education, $6.6 million for incarceration, and $0.5-3.9 million for Medicaid, for a total of $153.1–156.5 million.

Anger over illegal immigration inevitably creates a backlash against legal immigrants and even citizens of different ethnic backgrounds. However, this is a self-defeating response. Our country is increasingly a mixture of races, languages, and religions, as new immigrants arrive in search of economic promise and political freedom. By the year 2000, only 57 percent of the people who enter the work force in America will be native-born white Americans. That means that the economic future of all Americans will depend increasingly on the talents of nonwhite Americans. We will all either advance together or each of us will be diminished.

We most need to appreciate the remarkable opportunity that our racial and ethnic diversity represents for the future of our country. Our immigrants and new citizens can be our guide to the cultural rhythms in the fastest growing areas of the world economy. Given high-quality and price-competitive goods, the cultural knowledge they have can American the advantage. Our diversity can mean more jobs, more prosperity for all Americans, if we can seize the moment and not run away from it.

To do so, we must reinvigorate the institutions and organizations which integrate new arrivals into American society. I have spoken elsewhere of the crisis afflicting civil society in this country. One of the effects of the decline of the institutions of civil society is the weakening of the lodges, clubs, churches, Scout troops, and other organizations which used to give immigrants entree into American society. As a result, we all too often see groups of teenage immigrants operating on the fringes of society instead of productive new members integrating into the heart of American society.

We cannot realize the opportunity presented by our diversity if we let frustration over the Federal Government's inability to control its borders spill over into action against those who are here legally. We must control illegal immigration in order to make our country safe for legal immigration. We must control illegal immigration if we are to make our country safe for diversity.

There is no shortage of laws on the books to control illegal immigration. There are laws to punish employers and smugglers of illegal aliens, to deny illegal aliens most Government benefits and even to compensate the States for some of the costs associated with illegal immigration.

The primary problem, however, is enforcement. The Immigration and Naturalization Service is underfunded and hindered by a history of incompetence that the current management is hard put to reverse. The INS cannot keep illegal aliens out of the country, track them once they enter, or remove them once they are identified. Its various databases are, frankly, a shambles.

At the same time, certain economic interests benefit from the labor of illegal aliens. They profit from the general climate of neglect in which they can demand long hours of labor for low wages and few benefits.

Madam President, sweatshops manned by illegal men, women, and children are a disgrace to America and a drag on the fortunes of legal immigrant and American workers. These are the very inhumane labor conditions and practices we try to improve in countries abroad, but they are here, in America, today. American workers and honest American employers should not have to compete against this exploited labor force.

That brings me, Madam President, to my bill, the Illegal Immigration Enforcement Act of 1995. This legislation contains three major provisions which can help end this gentleman's agreement and will enforce the laws that are on the books. The gentleman's agreement is: pass tough legislation, but do not enforce it. Talk about being tough on illegal immigrants, but allow certain economic interests to benefit from illegal immigrant labor.

The first provision goes to, I think, the root problem, which is employment. Most illegal aliens do not come to the United States for health care or welfare or even education. They come to work. That means that the way to discourage them is not to punish their children by denying them medical care or education, as proposition 187 tries to do, but instead remove the employment magnet and remove the incentive that attracts them to the United States.

Existing law, starting with the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, contains provisions which would reduce employment opportunities for illegal immigrants if they were simply enforced. Before enacting fundamental changes in this bedrock piece of legislation, we should try enforcing the laws already on the books. Empty legislating is no substitute for enforcement.

The place to start is employer sanctions. The 1986 act, better known as the Simpson-Mazzoli Act, imposes civil penalties on employers of illegal aliens of up to $10,000 per alien for repeat offenders. There is also a criminal penalty of up to 6 months imprisonment and a $3,000 fine for pattern or practice violations.

Madam President, enforcement of employer sanctions is a low priority at INS. In part, this is because the labor regulatory function is different from the policing function usually done by the investigative branch of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. As in any bureaucracy, "different" means "low priority."

In addition, this branch has a mandate to focus on antismuggling and removal of criminal aliens. By implication, everything else has low priority.

This low priority shows up in the figures. The 1986 act authorized $100 million per year to enforce employer sanctions, and even that was probably too little, but by fiscal year 1994, the appropriation had shrunk to $23 million. Funding has recovered somewhat since 1994, but remains well under the amount necessary to implement the law properly.

As a result, the number of cases investigated has declined by nearly 50 percent from 1989 to 1994. In particular, the number of investigations resulting from leads, the most productive investigations, declined from 5,118 in 1989 to 2,240 in 1994.

It is clear that as long as the same INS branch tries to perform investigative and employer sanctions functions, the latter will have to take a back seat. The way it is currently structured, employer sanctions will always take a back seat.

My bill fixes this problem by creating a separate Office for the Enforcement of Employer Sanctions and authorizing it for $100 million, the figure that was contained in the 1986 Act.

This first provision of my bill also addresses the potential for employment discrimination that exists in any employment eligibility legislation. For example, in 1990, a GAO study found that the 1986 act's employer sanctions provisions resulted in employment discrimination. The study suggested three causes for this:

First, the employers do not understand the law's requirements; second, employers do not understand how to determine employment eligibility; and third, the prevalence of counterfeit documents increases employer confusion.

As the GAO study implies, the problem is not with the law but with the INS's failure to educate employers about what the law requires them to do. Most employers, for example, still do not know that they must fill out an I-9 employment eligibility form for every employee, whether that employee is white, African-American, Hispanic, Asian, or otherwise. This is the key to combating discrimination, educating employers that this form applies to all.

Note that the GAO study reports that an estimated 346,000 employers said that they applied the 1986 act's verification system only to persons who had a foreign appearance or accent, and recommends, among other steps, increasing employer understanding through effective education efforts.

Madam President, my bill takes this problem head on by mandating that the INS Office for the Enforcement of Employer Sanctions be charged with "educating employers on the requirements of the law, and in other ways as is necessary to prevent employment discrimination."

The bottom line, then, is that my bill does not add to employers' burdens; it does not add one single form to the mountain of paperwork they must already fill out when they hire a new legal worker. Instead, it requires the Federal Government to explain the existing law to them. In this way, it will reduce the burden of uncertainty employers now bear.

Let me point out as well that the bill complements other efforts by the administration, Senator FEINSTEIN, Senator SIMPSON—the coauthor of the 1986 act—and others, to reduce the number of documents that can be used to confirm employment eligibility, make it more difficult to counterfeit the documents and develop a more reliable national employment eligibility data base.

So, Madam President, the first initiative in the bill is to tighten up employer sanctions.

Second, the bill prevents illegal aliens from reaping the rewards of their illegal entry into the United States. It prohibits adjustment of status within the United States for those seeking employment-based legal immigrant status. Further, it disqualifies those who have worked illegally in the United States from becoming legal immigrants. Currently, those in the United States illegally can try to adjust to a legal status, based upon family relationship or employment in a hard-to-fill job.

While I do not advocate separating families, we can and should go after those who come to the United States illegally and expect to find an employer who will sponsor them for adjustment to legal status.

My bill does this by forcing those who want to adjust for work-related reasons to do so outside the United States. So that, if they are denied, they cannot simply melt back into the population. In addition, by making previous illegal employment a disqualification for adjustment of status for work-related reasons, this bill denies illegal workers the benefit of their lawbreaking.

Finally, Madam President, the bill addresses the problem of overstays by visitors admitted to this country legally. The debate on illegal immigration is focused on the United States-Mexican border. This is understandable, given the flow of illegal aliens across the border and the impact of this flow on border States. However, even sealing off the United States-Mexican border would not solve the problem of illegal immigration.

Indeed, Madam President, the United States-Mexican border is less than half of the problem. The Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates that 52 percent of all illegal aliens residing in the United States do not sneak across the U.S. border. Instead, they enter legally on visitor's visas and then overstay their visas. The percentage in my State of New Jersey is even higher, given its distance from Mexico and the sources of our illegal alien population. The INS estimates that 60 percent of New Jersey's illegal aliens enter the country legally on a visitor's visa and then just overstay, convinced that the INS will never find them. And most times they are right.

The administration and Congress, fixated on the Mexican border, are ignoring this very substantial problem. My bill addresses it by requiring the INS to develop an entry and exit data base that will alert it to overstays by legally admitted nonimmigrants. It is pretty simple. We cannot hope to control our borders unless we know who is inside them. Once we know who is overstaying his or her visa and where that person is staying, we can easily take steps to remove that person from our country. It is a very simple step. It is not taken today, so you have 52 percent of the people who come on legitimate visas disappearing into the society as a whole.

Madam President, the terrorist atrocity in Oklahoma City reminded us that we live in a dangerous world. Of course, non-Americans have no monopoly on terrorism. That is what Oklahoma City said as well. The evidence indicates that the Oklahoma City bombing was not perpetrated by an illegal alien. However, illegal aliens overstaying tourism visas have been implicated in terrorism in this country. For example, take Mohammad Salameh, who is accused of having rented the van used in the World Trade Center bombing. He was living in the United States illegally at the time of that crime. He entered this country legally, on a 6-month tourist visa, on February 17, 1988. And he still had not departed at the time the World Trade Center bombing on February 26, 1993—5 years later.

Under current procedures, the INS had no idea of Salameh's failure to depart or his whereabouts in the United States. Under this bill, the INS would have been alerted to Salameh's overstay and illegal residence in the United States nearly 4½ years before the crime.

So, Madam President, there you have it. Enforcement of employer sanctions, restrictions on rewarding aliens for illegal work, and measures to discourage overstays by legally admitted visitors. With these steps toward enforcing existing law, we can help to build common ground here at home, to parlay our diversity into strength, to protect legal immigration, and to lead the world by the power of our example.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Illegal Immigration Enforcement Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Government of the United States has failed to curb the influx of undocumented aliens into the United States.

(2) The social and economic costs of illegal immigration create a backlash against legal immigrants and citizens of different ethnic backgrounds.

(3) The primary magnet for illegal aliens is work.

(4) Existing law contains provisions to prevent the employment of undocumented aliens.

(5) Properly enforced, these provisions could reduce employment opportunities for illegal immigrants and thereby reduce the incentive for illegal immigration.

(6) With proper enforcement and employer education, the employer sanctions laws should not result in employment discrimination.

(7) However, these laws are not now adequately enforced.

(8) This is in part because Immigration and Naturalization Service inspectors have other, legislatively mandated, priorities that have first call on their limited resources.

(9) Many illegal immigrants adjust their status to become legal residents.

(10) This prospect is another encouragement to illegal immigration.

(11) Statistics show that approximately one-half of all illegal aliens living in the United States arrived legally on non-immigrant visas, then failed to depart.

(12) The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) is currently unable to identify or locate such visa overstayers in a systematic fashion.

SEC. 3. ENFORCEMENT OF EMPLOYER SANCTIONS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF NEW OFFICE.—There shall be in the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Department of Justice an Office for the Enforcement of Employer Sanctions (in this section referred to as the "Office").

(b) FUNCTIONS.—The functions of the Office established under subsection (a) shall be—

(1) to investigate and prosecute violations of section 274A(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a(a)); and

(2) to educate employers on the requirements of the law and in other ways as necessary to prevent employment discrimination.

(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Attorney General $100,000,000 to carry out the functions of the Office established under subsection (a).

SEC. 4. LIMITATION ON ADJUSTMENT OF STATUS.

Section 245(c) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1255(c)) is amended—

(1) by striking "or (4)" and inserting "(4)"; and
