

affects citizens—both favorably and unfavorably—are numerous. Many of the cases brought to my attention are severe. Casework is crucial because it addresses the real needs of people.

Second, members of the bureaucracy can make mistakes. A few years ago, for example, I helped an older man who needed kidney dialysis, but whose Medicare coverage was being cut off because the Social Security Administration thought he was dead. Casework helps reduce the frustration people feel toward what appears to be a massive, impersonal government.

Third, constituent service often alerts Congress to limitations in a law. For instance, former contacts about crop insurance regulations led to my pushing a measure which changed the law to allow individual waivers. Many programs, ranging from veterans benefits to regulatory policy, have been amended by Congress because of problems first brought to our attention by constituents asking for help.

CONCLUSION

Constituent service can be tough work for Members of Congress, and an unrelenting demand on our time. But in many ways casework is one of the most rewarding parts of the job. Passing legislation often requires difficult compromise and can take years. With casework, Members can see the impact of their work on the daily lives of individual citizens. Nothing gives more satisfaction than to see that my efforts made a difference and improved the quality of life for a constituent.

TRIBUTE TO A LEGACY OF EXCELLENCE

HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Centralia High School Boys Basketball Program's legacy of excellence. For over 80 years, this program, from the 20th congressional district, has been a dominant force within the great tradition of Illinois high school basketball. The hard work, determination, and commitment to excellence of past and present players and coaches has led to the Centralia High School Boys Basketball Program being named the United States all-time winningest boys basketball program.

The National Federation of High School Associations recognized this national title in its National High School Sports Record Book. According to the 1996 edition, the Centralia Orphans amassed a record of 1,760 wins to 755 losses from 1908 to 1995. This athletic achievement is testament to the program's dedication to excellence that has made the Centralia High School Boys Basketball Program an outstanding success.

I ask my colleagues to join me in a salute to all of the Orphan players, coaches, supporters, and parents who worked to achieve this extraordinary accomplishment.

TRIBUTE TO SELMA JEAN COHEN

HON. BENJAMIN L. CARDIN

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life of Selma Jean Cohen, a Baltimorean who recently died after dedicating much of her life to helping others.

Mrs. Cohen, who died July 2 at the age of 75, was born in an era that did not encourage women to develop all their talents. But that did not stop her from marching to her own drummer and taking on new challenges. As a mother, wife, volunteer and professional woman, she found innumerable ways throughout her life to make a difference in her community and in the lives of hundreds of families she befriended in times of need.

In her early years of raising her two sons, Ellis and Jerome, Mrs. Cohen was a PTA president, a Cub Scout den mother and the president of the sisterhood at her synagogue. After her sons were grown, Mrs. Cohen began a career at the State department of health and mental hygiene where she became the director of nursing home bed registry, a position she held for 25 of her 34 years with the department.

But her work with the State was just part of her dedication to helping others. Mrs. Cohen and her husband, Leonard, whom she met at a Benny Goodman dance in 1940, have been weekend volunteers at the Ronald McDonald House in Baltimore for the past 10 years. In their work at the Ronald McDonald House, they comforted out-of-town families with very sick children at Baltimore area hospitals and made these families feel at home. She and Leonard also found time to do hospice work at Levindale Hebrew Geriatric Center and Hospital and help sick children at the Mount Washington Pediatric Hospital.

I urge my colleagues to join me in extending our condolences to the family of Selma Jean Cohen. Her cheer and energy will be missed by all who knew her and by all of us who believe that one person can make a difference.

THANK YOU, RISDEN WALL, FOR YOUR LOYAL SERVICE

HON. JACK FIELDS

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. FIELDS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it was with mixed emotions that I announced last December 11 my decision to retire from the House at the conclusion of my current term. As I explained at the time, the decision to retire was made more difficult because of the loyalty and dedication of my staff—and because of the genuine friendship I feel for each of them. They have served the men and women of Texas' 8th Congressional District in an extraordinary way.

Today, I want to thank one member of my staff—Risden Wall, a legislative assistant who is serving a congressional fellowship through the Brookings Institution. Risden is a senior special agent with the U.S. Customs Service who began his congressional fellowship in my office in January 1995.

Risden, a native of Ridgeland, SC, earned an associate degree from Brewton Parker Junior College in 1966, and received his bachelor's degree from Florida State University in 1970. From 1967 to 1969, he served in the U.S. Army as an airborne combat infantryman with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, NC, and as a rifleman/radio transmitting operator with the 173rd Airborne Brigade in the Republic of Vietnam.

After leaving the Army and obtaining his college degree, Risden went to work for the U.S. Customs Service in Miami, where he served as a "sky marshall," charged with deterring possible skyjacketings of domestic and international commercial flights. Soon thereafter, Risden served as a special agent in the Customs Service's Miami office—working to prevent narcotics smuggling, money laundering, fraud and other criminal activities. He served in that position for 12 years before moving to Washington to become a senior special agent at Customs Service headquarters, where he worked on financial investigations and undercover operations.

In 1986, Risden was asked to represent the Customs Service on the National Drug Enforcement Policy Board. On the board, he helped establish strategic priorities for all federal anti-narcotics activities. From 1986 to 1991, he served as the Customs Service's representative to the U.S. National Central Bureau of INTERPOL, coordinating investigative activities between 160 member countries, 20,000 federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, the Justice Department and other authorities within the executive branch.

Prior to his fellowship, Risden served as the Customs Service's Northeast Area program manager. As such, he was responsible for overseeing all Customs Service investigations in the northeastern United States.

As a member of my staff, Risden has worked on banking, housing, veterans affairs, international relations, military affairs and judiciary issues—keeping me abreast of legislative developments in each of these areas and responding to constituent inquiries.

Risden is one of those hard-working men and women who make all of us in this institution look better than we deserve. I know he has done that for me, and I appreciate this opportunity to publicly thank him for the dedication, loyalty and professionalism he has exhibited throughout his tenure in my office.

Risden's future plans after I retire are as yet uncertain, but knowing him as well as I do, I am confident that the skills and professionalism he has demonstrated in my office will lead to continued success in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I know you join with me in saying "Thank you" to Risden Wall for his loyal service to me, to the men and women of Texas' 8th Congressional District, and to this great institution. And I know you join with me in wishing him and his lovely wife, Georgene, the very best in the future.

GOOD THINGS COME IN SMALL BUSINESS

HON. WILLIAM M. THOMAS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, there is nothing small about small business. In my district alone, small businesses (under 500 employees) account for the vast majority of the total local business establishments. Nationwide, over 21 million small businesses employ more than half of the private work force. The irony is that while small business provides such major benefits to the community, it is the target of the Government's wrath in terms of taxation and regulation.

Time and time again, this vital part of our economy is forced to bear the brunt of higher and new taxes. Small businesses faced the highest tax increase in American history in 1993. Statistics show that 70 percent of those affected by the 1993 tax rate increase were small businesses. Under this type of capital constraint, small businesses can be forced to downsize. Self-employed small business owners have an additional burden as they have not been able to deduct more than 30 percent for health care costs. Small businesses can even be blocked from growing by their inability to get accurate information on ways to comply with laws and regulations.

This Congress is moving to encourage small business. With the passage of the Small Business Job Protection Act, H.R. 3448, in both the House and Senate and health insurance reform (conference pending), H.R. 3103, small businesses can look forward to benefitting from a reduction in taxes through an increase both in their expense limit and their allowable health insurance deduction. The bill also simplifies pension law, making it easier for small businesses to adopt retirement savings programs.

Regulations serve as another impasse for growth in small business. 94 percent of small businesses lack knowledge of current regulations. This apparent ignorance is not the result of stupidity, but rather a constantly changing set of standards expressed frequently in confusing, technical language. This creates involuntary noncompliance on the part of the employer. Now, if an employer is found in violation of this regulation, he or she faces the prospect of fines and ultimately corporate shutdown.

As a cosponsor of the Small Business Regulatory Relief Act, H.R. 3798, I recognize that my constituents cannot be in the dark about regulations that they are required to follow. Nor can they be expected to interpret the language of the mandate without any assistance from those who have direct knowledge of the intentions of the regulations. This act will reappropriate a negligible portion of the EPA, IRS, and OSHA budgets to Small Business Development Centers for purposes of offering counselling services to businesses regarding regulation compliance. In supporting this bill, I am optimistic that small business both in my district and elsewhere will be better equipped to comply in a cost-effective manner with the regulations of today and the future.

Promoting incentives in small business growth is not just a district or a State issue, it is a national issue that demands our attention in order to ensure the stability of our economy. Small business deserves big recognition. It is time that our small image of this industry changes so that it reflects the huge rewards it bestows on our communities. Only then can we truly reap the full benefits of what is contained in small business.

MEMORIALIZE THE DEATHS OF ISRAELI ATHLETES

HON. MICHAEL R. McNULTY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, in 1972, 11 Israeli athletes, who came to Munich to participate in the Olympic games, were ruthlessly shot down by terrorists—as a stunned world looked on in horror.

This despicable act was perpetrated against athletes who had come to Munich in the spirit of peace and brotherhood. They were returned to Israel in coffins.

And yet, the International Olympic Committee refuses to officially recognize these 11 victims, claiming that this would be a political act—and that the Olympics are for the living, not for the dead. What an outrageous statement. It is so out of keeping with Olympic principles.

I call upon the International Olympic Committee to reconsider its position and devote at least 1 minute to memorialize the deaths of these 11 athletes.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NEGRO WOMEN CO-OP CITY SECTION

HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL

OF NEW YORK

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, for 25 years the National Council of Negro Women, Co-op City section, has been serving the community in numerous ways, giving to the area programs which will make Co-op City better for generations to come. This marvelous group of people has established the Saturday tutorial to give individualized instruction in reading and math for grades 2–12. It also established a youth group for young ladies, teaching them pride, leadership, responsibility, and community participation; the Community Concerns Committee, in which members visit shut-ins or nursing homes in the community; and the annual brotherhood program to recognize an outstanding individual, family, and a youth in the community. This is a wonderful organization which continues to contribute so much to the community. I am proud to have them as neighbors.

CREATING JOBS

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 24, 1996

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert my Washington Report for Wednesday, July 17, 1996, into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

CREATING JOB OPPORTUNITIES IN INDIANA

Hoosiers often ask about the availability of good-paying jobs in Indiana. They believe the economy in Indiana is performing better and more jobs are being created, but continue to worry about the long-term prospects for growth.

I share their concerns, and have given a high priority to supporting job creation efforts in southern Indiana. I have taken a leading role in support of several key highway and water projects in the 9th District which will encourage long-term growth, and have led efforts to find productive reuses of closed military bases in and around the District.

HIGHWAY AND WATER PROJECTS

Investment in our infrastructure is vital to maintaining the high quality of life Americans have come to expect. Since last year I have supported over 100 projects, including improving roads and sewer and water systems, in our 21 counties, bringing in over $62 million.

I-265 BRIDGE

I have taken the lead in seeking congressional funding for an I-265 bridge across the
