HAPPY ANNIVERSARY GRANITE CITY, IL

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 9, 1996

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask my colleagues to join me in honoring a prominent community in my district which is celebrating its 100th anniversary. On March 9, 1996, Granite City, IL, will celebrate its centennial at a special banquet at St. Gregory's Armenian Center.

The residents of Granite City make up a very proud community, one with a diverse ethnic makeup and hard-working reputation. The city is home to steel factories, medical centers, and meatpacking houses, as well as the Charles Melvin Price Army Support Center and a variety of excellent small businesses.

It has been my pleasure to represent Granite City in the Congress since I was elected in 1988. The local officials and residents are committed to making their community a better place to live, with improved schools, enhanced infrastructure, and opportunities for area residents to make a living and care for their families.

Together, we have worked to make the Price Center a strong military facility; secure funding to improve the McKinley Bridge; help area steel companies expand their factories; struggle through the great flood of 1993; and create more opportunities for local companies at the Tri-City Port District.

As Granite City looks to the future, its next 100 years, we can be assured that as long as the community continues to work together to achieve progress, opportunity lies ahead.

CHRIS J. WITTING RECOGNIZED AS CIVIC LEADER IN CENTRAL NEW YORK

HON. JAMES T. WALSH

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 9, 1996

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a true civic leader, a man who has not only led the way for manufacturing interests in central New York but has touched the lives of thousands of his fellow citizens with his philanthropy, his counsel, and his encouragement.

Chris J. Witting, a former industrialist who headed Syracuse's Crouse-Hinds Corp. in its heyday, has been a personal inspiration to me and to many others in public life. An astute businessman, Chris Witting has been a model of success—even in what I call relative retirement.

His belief in the power of individuals and their positive-thinking has spurred many of us to boldly persevere in the formation of public policy that is in keeping with our values.

Chris Witting is loved and respected throughout central New York. I will honor him at a public event February 19 in our hometown of Syracuse, NY. I look forward to presenting him with a copy of this memorial, a small token of my personal gratitude for the great impetus he has given to progress in central New York.

I would ask my colleagues today to join me in saluting an American who has lived up to the expectations of the Founding Fathers when they called for strength of spirit and determination in all things in order to build a great Nation.

I offer thanks and congratulations to Chris Witting for his lifetime of dedication to our quality of life and our outstanding community.

SALUTE TO BANKS CONTRACTING CO., INC.

HON. KWEISI MFUME

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 9, 1996

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Banks Contracting Co., Inc., an African-American owned general contracting firm that specializes in commercial and industrial renovations.

As many residents or visitors to the Baltimore-Washington area can attest, Banks Contracting Co. has worked on some of the most important sites in the area constructed over the last 15 years. Sites to which Banks Construction has contributed include some of Baltimore's most famous and visited locales, including the National Aquarium, Camden Yards, and the Baltimore Arena. Banks is currently working on the Baltimore Children's Museum, which is slated to open in 1998. In addition to these well-known landmarks, past clients include the Johns Hopkins Hospital, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, NationsBank, the University of Maryland, Westinghouse, and Toyota, to name but a few.

In addition to these business successes, Banks also has a strong reputation within the community. The company has addressed the needs of the community throughout the years by serving as a mentor to young men and women in the construction field. Several of these young people, with financial and business assistance from Banks Construction Co., have moved on and established their own successful businesses.

In addition, Banks Construction is also a member of the Maryland/District of Columbia Minority Supplier Development Council and has, in the past, contributed its resources to the Contractor's College in Baltimore. In 1995, Banks was the key corporate sponsor for the Associated Black Charity's 10th Annual Fundraising Celebration and in 1994 it received the Administrator's Award for Excellence from the U.S. Small Business Administration. Banks has also been recognized in past years by Westinghouse and the Maryland/District of Columbia Minority Supplier Development Council.

And so, Mr. Speaker, I applaud Banks Construction Co. for its excellence not only as a contractor on some of Baltimore's most important projects, but also a member of our community, one that is willing to give some of its gifts back to its community.

33-year-long career. A native of Durham, NC, Mr. John Lawrence began his professional career in 1963 after graduating from North Carolina Central University with a bachelor's degree in biological science.

While serving full-time as a teacher mentoring countless students at several high schools, Mr. Lawrence juggled his time to earn a master's degree in administration and supervision, while furthering his studies in marina biology at Florida State University and getting another master's degree in adult education at my alma mater, Florida A&M University.

In 1978 he joined the Florida Department of Education as program director of the adult and community education section. His stint in this endeavor proved to be one of the most productive enterprises of his professional career, resulting in his being named chief of the State Bureau of Adult and Community Education.

During his tenure Mr. Lawrence upgraded Florida's adult and community programs, raising them to preeminent prestige and innovation. He was awarded numerous accolades for his visionary leadership and educational entrepreneurship. His advice and counsel were sought by many national school boards and educational councils, giving incisive lectures on the subject of adult and community programs throughout the length and breadth of the educational spectrum. Most prominent among his varied roles was that a serving as a premiere consultant in the World Council on Adult Education in the then-Federal Republic of West Germany.

In 1990 the Council of State Education of Adult and Community Education chose him to serve as chairman. In this capacity the First Lady, Barbara Bush, tapped his expertise in her national adult literacy initiative, taking him regularly to the White House for consultation.

Despite his all-out involvement with Florida's educational initiatives, Mr. Lawrence found time to serve on the Teachers' Credit Union in Leon County, as well as fulfill chairmanships on the Code Enforcement Board of the city of Tallahassee, National Adult Education Professional Development Consortium, National Association of Secondary School Principals, and the National Advisory Committee of the GED Testing Program.

Throughout his career, Mr. Lawrence demonstrated the knack to solidify long-lasting friendships in his professional, civic, social and religious circles. Standing by him in his multifaceted endeavors is Virginia Landers Lawrence, his wife and confidante of 30 years. As proud parents they have instilled into their two sons, John Edward II and Jason Earl, the unerring standard of personal responsibility and moral commitment to the highest sense of self-worth and respect for their fellow human beings.

Mr. Lawrence is indeed the epitome of utmost dedication to the well-being of his family and his church, and personified a dogged determination in enhancing the educational initiatives in his chosen profession. He has become the trailblazer par excellence of our Nation's adult and community education, and his wise counsel in this arena will be sorely missed.

His retirement brings to a close the genuine dedication of one of Florida's unsung public servants. On this occasion I would like to extend my fellow Floridians' utmost gratitude to Mr. John Lawrence for a job well-done and a sterling achievement rarely matched among our Nation's visionaries in educational leadership.

CELEBRATING FEBRUARY 4, NATIONAL DAY FOR SRI LANKA

HON. PATSY T. MINK

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, February 9, 1996

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I am very honored and pleased to have this opportunity to offer my heartfelt congratulations and best wishes to all of the citizens and friends of Sri Lanka as the country celebrated its National Day on February 4.

Sri Lanka has enjoyed independence from British colonial rule these past 48 years and exemplifies a political system and history steeped in democratic tradition. During the past four decades Sri Lanka has held regular national elections and has enjoyed traditionally friendly relations with the United States, based in large part on our shared commitment to democratic principles. Sri Lanka has experienced some ethnic strife related to Tamil separatists and we encourage newly elected President Chandrika Kumaratunga to find a peaceful and lasting solution to this conflict.

During the past half century, Sri Lanka has served as a glowing example of a young democratic country that has overcome numerous hardships to make tremendous strides in the political, international, economic, and cultural arena. Sri Lanka has much to be proud of. Of note is the high 90-percent literacy rate for both men and women which can be attributed to a Government policy of free public education from primary through the university. These policies will create and foster a vigorous economy and strengthen even further our trade relationship.

Happy Fourth of February to Sri Lanka on its National Day.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON S. 652, TELECOMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1996

SPEECH OF

HON. MICHAEL G. OXLEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 1, 1996

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a minute to talk about section 275 of the telecommunications conference report concerning alarm monitoring services. Section 275 generally restricts Bell operating companies and their affiliates from providing alarm monitoring services for 5 years from the date of enactment. It does, however, allow BOC's that were lawfully engaged in the alarm monitoring business on or before November 30, 1995, to continue to provide such services. There are no prohibitions under current law barring Bell operating companies from providing alarm monitoring, and those companies that have chosen to enter this business in reliance on current law should not be unduly penalized after such lawful entry. Moreover, such companies should be permitted to operate and expand their business just like any other company in our free market system. Restrictions on growth deny consumers the benefits that additional competition will bring.

The only restriction on grandfathered BOC's contained in the conference report is that such companies may not acquire any equity interest in or obtain financial control of an unaffiliated alarm monitoring company. Let me be perfectly clear, as is the language of the conference report: This restriction does not encompass customer or asset acquisitions. There is no restriction on acquisitions of customer accounts or the assets of unaffiliated alarm companies by a Bell operating company that was offering alarm monitoring services on or before November 30, 1995. After 5 years, the limited restriction on acquiring an equity interest or obtaining financial control will be lifted and there will be no entry, equity, or financial control restrictions whatsoever on Bell operating company provision of alarm monitoring services.
