

And that is basic to the country. And by doing that, we are going to have a stronger country. The last time we balanced the budget was 1969.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. That is right. For the first time in a generation, this Congress actually dared to say enough is enough, we are going to balance the budget, we are going to only spend as much money as we take in.

A lot of people do not realize how much $5 trillion is. I heard somebody on this floor say one time, in explaining how much $5 trillion debt is, if you earned a million dollars every day from the day Jesus was born, Jesus Christ was born, to today, you would not make enough money, making a million dollars a day, you would not make enough money to pay off that debt. And yet we still have people telling us we do not have to do it in 7 years.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. What is interesting is we can still balance the budget and still have the safety net for those who are in need. This is a compassionate country, and this Congress does care but it does not mean we need to spend money on every program. Frankly, we have a private sector doing a great job, whether Habitat for Humanity, community service block grant where we take existing Federal funds and raise three times as much in the private sector to serve the community, we can do it all. We do not have to bankrupt the country or the next generation in doing that.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I will tell you what we have done in Pensacola, FL. What we have started up, we started a community service network. I got together 3 or 4 months ago with community leaders. One is a doctor, Reed Bell, who has just been instrumental. He has cared. He is a pediatrician. He has done great work in the community for years, caring for disadvantaged children, caring for those in need. I talked to Dr. Bell, and he had come up with an idea, a private sector welfare reform, where when people come off of welfare, we create a community service network of all of these different community service organizations that would work together, that would draw in churches and synagogues, and get these people when they come off of welfare and help them get on their feet and do everything they can to empower those people without going back on the welfare rolls a month or two later.

You know, at the time I came up with the idea, Dr. Bell had already come up with the idea, had been doing it for some time before me. I thought, hey, I have got a great idea. He had already been thinking about it, and we got together, and, with Dr. Bell's leadership, we have launched this community service network. And it is going to make a big difference. But that is something that is spreading throughout this country.

I saw on the front page of the New York Times a few Sundays ago that there has been an explosive growth of these groups, that people are no longer waiting for the Federal Government to come in and help them out. Communities are now sort of digging in and doing their part and saying, "Forget the Federal Government, we have got this American can-do spirit. We are going to do it ourselves." That is what we are doing in Pensacola. That is what Dr. Bell is doing. That is what the New York Times is talking about.

Again, this is not a political revolution that is sweeping the country. It is a revolution of thought, again, that Americans are once again reclaiming their country and saying we are not going to just depend on the Federal Government for everything.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I will say, in summation, the spirit of voluntarism also is alive and well in Montgomery County, PA, where we have hundreds of organizations working to help with shelters for the homeless, food cupboards, you name it, health care. They are involved. But with our welfare reform legislation, in the Congress, I think that is also very sensitive. We are going to have a safety net for those in need, when they are taking care of children at home, those who are able-bodied, in 5 years we are looking to help them get a job, job counseling, job placement, day care, if they need it. We want to make sure it is those who are able-bodied get in the world of work if that is what they are able to do and we can train them for it.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Of course, that debate will continue. I personally think our welfare bill that ended the Federal Government's oppressive mandates on States for the first time in 62 years is a great bill. Obviously, 88 Senators out of 100 Republican and Democrat alike thought it was a great idea.

The President unfortunately vetoed that bill. Obviously, the 50 Governors, when they came to town, all 50 endorsed our welfare reform bill, thought we had a pretty good idea. Again they thought we had a good idea, because it keeps going back to the ideals of Jefferson and Madison and our Founding Fathers that we are in the end a Nation of communities and not a Nation of bureaucracies.

We have got to rely on the goodness of Americans as we go into the 21st century, because we have seen the Federal Government only goes so far.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I want to thank you for taking this hour so we have a chance to discuss some of the basic achievements we have had in the 104th Congress, so we can continue the enthusiasm to make sure we continue our reform goals. I thank you for your leadership.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I thank you for your leadership.
