

this bill, Amtrak will finally be able to adjust their system of routes without fear that Congress will tie their hands. At the same time we have given preapproval for States to form interstate compacts in order to take over any routes Amtrak discontinues. We are encouraging contracting out, replacing the current Amtrak board, taking the Government out of Amtrak through the redemption of Amtrak's common stock and reforming the labor structure.

Mr. Chairman, some of my colleagues beholden to the labor unions will argue that this bill goes way too far, and I say it does not go nearly far enough. This bill does not go far enough and Amtrak is bound to turn to Congress for more help in future years. But as long as the labor unions are spending millions of dollars trying to buy Congress, as long as we continue to delude ourselves that Amtrak will ever be able to run a railroad and as long as we continue to waste our taxpayers' dollars by pouring it down this empty pit, this is the best bill we can probably pass in this House. I urge my colleagues not to water it down any more.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Chairman, although we have more time, we have no further speakers on our side. In sorrow, disappointment, and puzzlement that we will not get to a vote tonight, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. CALAHAN) having assumed the chair, Mr. KOLBE, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2247) to reform the statutes relating to Amtrak, to authorize appropriations for Amtrak, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

TRIBUTE TO PHINEAS INDRITZ

(Mr. DINGELL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, it is with a great sense of sadness that I advise this House of the passing of a dear friend of this institution and of mine, Mr. Phineas Indritz, an individual known for many years as an outstanding staff member of many committees of this Congress and well known to many on Capitol Hill and the city of Washington.

Phineas Indritz died on October 15, 1997, at the age of 81 at Holy Cross Hospital following a long illness. Phineas was a graduate of the University of Chicago with A.B. and J.D. cum laude degrees, served as Assistant Solicitor and Counsel at the U.S. Department of the Interior from 1938 to 1957, except during the years of World War II, when he served with distinction in the Army Air Forces.

He then began 20 years of service on Capitol Hill as a staff member to the Government Operations Committee, first as counsel for the Subcommittee on Public Works and Resources in 1957 and then going on to other assignments.

In 1963, he became chief counsel of the Subcommittee on Natural Resources and Power, and at the same time, in 1969, to the Subcommittee on Conservation and Natural Resources. He also served with distinction as a member of the staff of the Committee on Energy and Commerce and also for its Subcommittee on Energy and Power.

He has long been known for the outstanding work he has done for human rights, protection of natural resources, and for his work as teacher and scholar and educator in the area of law.

Mr. Speaker, he will be missed, and I extend my sorrow and sympathy to the members of his family who properly grieve the loss of a great man.

Some may remember the series of articles written by David Maraniss for the Washington Post about the Committee on Energy and Commerce in 1983. In one of these articles, dated July 18, 1983, was a portrait of Phineas Indritz. I would ask that a passage from this article be reprinted as follows:

There is a special desk and telephone reserved for Phineas Indritz, the gnome of the Energy and Commerce Committee, on the third floor of House Annex II, and he is received there with the respect befitting a wise old man who has worked in Congress since the birth of the youngest committee member.

That Indritz retired from government service several years ago and is not on the committee's payroll matters not at all when it comes to his standing and influence. Chairman John D. Dingell loves him like a brother, and it is fair to say that Dingell keeps him around because he needs him: Little Phineas is in many respects the social conscience of Big John.

Every few months, Indritz appears in Dingell's office with a wrong that must be righted, with evidence of an injustice inflicted by corporate America or some agency of the federal bureaucracy. "He's like a kid who comes home every day with a different stray dog or cat and plops it on our doorstep," one committee colleague said. "Sometimes we wish he wouldn't bring them home, but his heart is always in the right place. And usually the things he believes in are things that ought to be done."

All of this must be taken into account when one considers the life and times of H.R. 100. This measure, popularly known as the unisex insurance bill, has sent the insurance industry into a multimillion-dollar lobbying frenzy. It has been embraced by feminist groups as the centerpiece of their campaign for economic equity. And it has trapped Energy and Commerce members in the middle of a ferocious fight that many of them wish would be waged somewhere else.

Indritz, committee aide emeritus, dropped H.R. 100 on the doorstep. He is one of the bill's principal authors. An old civil rights activist and New Deal liberal, Indritz is blessed with talents as extraordinary as his name. For years, his amazing juggling feats with bowling pins have delighted friends and strangers in parks around Capitol Hill.

He drives through town in a fine old convertible, his head barely protruding above the steering wheel. His tweed suit pockets hold a bountiful supply of hard candy, and his scholarly mind retains more obscure facts about constitutional law and legal briefs on discrimination than can be found in the library of the Supreme Court.

It was his lifelong obsession with fighting discrimination that led Indritz several years ago to take hold of a bill prohibiting insurance companies from using race or sex in setting rates for policyholders.

Phineas will be greatly missed. We are fortunate that his legacy is so long, and continues to live with us and help us every day. He is survived by his two daughters, Tahma Metz of Bethesda and Tova Indritz of Albuquerque, NM; and a son, Dr. Doren Indritz of Phoenix, AZ; a sister; and two grandsons. He was preceded in death by his beloved wife of 34 years, Ruth Gould Indritz.

HONORING BOB L. VICE

(Mr. PACKARD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor a distinguished agricultural leader at the local, State, and national level who will be leaving office this year. Bob L. Vice, President of the California Farm Bureau Federation, has led the largest agricultural organization in the State of California for the past 8½ years. He has met many challenges during the time to keep a $24 billion a year agricultural industry, the largest in the Golden State on course. California agriculture is an industry that contributes generously to the State's economy.

While many think of California as large cities and recreational parks, one in 10 jobs are directly related to agriculture. Farmers face the whims of mother nature and uncertainties of the marketplace and ever increasing government regulations. Bob Vice has been a strong advocate of the industry and has spent much of his time away from his family to devote his efforts to the industry that he loves. I am proud to know him as a distinguished agricultural leader, a devoted constituent and a friend. I wish him the best in his future endeavors.

Bob Vice began his service to the agricultural industry when approached to attend a meeting of the California Farm Bureau Federation's Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee. This offer to attend this meeting was made so far in advance that he gave little thought to the time commitment involved. But it was to the agricultural industry's benefit that he chose to do so.

After attending the meeting, Bob Vice became very active in the San Diego County Farm Bureau's young Farm and Ranchers Program and worked on many programs at the county level. His involvement led him to a position on the County Farm Bureau board of directors.

His enthusiasm for work on behalf of the agricultural industry and Farm Bureau was acknowledged by his progression to president of the San Diego County Farm Bureau and thus a delegate to the California Farm Bureau Federation. In 1987, he was honored as the San Diego County Farmer of the Year.

In December 1981, Bob Vice was elected as the first vice president of the California Farm Bureau Federation at their annual meeting in Palm Springs. As an officer and board member of the State organization, he participated in many committee assignments and directed the policy review procedures at the annual meetings.

In 1985–86, he participated as the agricultural point person to deal with the Immigration Reform and Control Act provisions in the national legislation. He continues to be a national spokesperson for agricultural labor issues and has been called upon to testify before Congress numerous times.

In 1989, after serving 7½ years as first vice president, Vice assumed the role of president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and was re-elected four times to that two year position. He served on the American Farm Bureau Federal [AFBF] board of directors from 1989–92. He was reelected to the AFBF board in 1994 and continues to serve in that capacity. He was also named to the six member executive committee of that organization. He has served on many committees including chairman of the AFBF International Trade Advisory Committee. He has participated in agricultural trade delegations to Europe, Israel, Latin America, the Pacific Rim, South Africa and Australia.

Bob Vice has not only been active within Farm Bureau but as a leader for all of agriculture. Shortly after assuming the presidency, he became the chairman of an agricultural coalition to successfully fight the ill-conceived "Big Green" initiative. His efforts further elevated him as a leader on the national agriculture scene.

Bob Vice has been a visionary on behalf of the agriculture industry by his long range outlook on issues affecting the industry. He is especially aware of the need to balance the use of water between competing interests within California and was one of the original participants on the California Bay Delta Oversight Committee established by Governor Pete Wilson. He was a major participant in the effort to pass Proposition 204, the water bond issue in 1996.

His willingness to participate in issues affecting agriculture has propelled the California Farm Bureau to new heights in political awareness and has made the organization a well respected force in Sacramento and Washington, DC. This respect is not only acknowledged by elected officials but also by his peers throughout the industry.

He was appointed to the 22d Agricultural District Fair Board (Del Mar) in 1984 by Governor George Deukmejian and has been re-appointed twice by Gov. Pete Wilson. He is a member of the Advisory Council on Small Business and Agriculture of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

In addition to his many agricultural activities, Bob Vice and his wife Carilyn are very active in their church and community. He continues to farm avocados in Fallbrook, San Diego County.

MORE ON THE IRS AND THE TAX CODE

(Mr. SMITH of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to talk about the IRS, our Tax Code, where we go from here, and some of the abuses. In my Somerset congressional church in Somerset, MI, a member gave me his dun notice from the IRS and I would like to share it with my colleagues and, Mr. Speaker, with the American people.

It says, "According to our records, you owe $49 on your income tax. Please pay the full amount, et cetera, by this date. If you have not paid, mail your check or money order. Tax withheld, zero; estimated tax payments, $6,347; total payments or credits, $7,379.83; total tax on return, $7,380." That is all complicated.

Here is the line that makes the difference. "Your underpaid tax, 17 cents. You owe a penalty of $49.35."

The postage stamp to send out this dun notice is more than the 17 cents that IRS said he owed on his taxes. I think it is another example of why we have to reform the IRS and get rid of it as we know it.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the following:

REQUEST FOR TAX PAYMENT

According to our records, you owe $49.35 on your income tax. Please pay the full amount by Sep. 15, 1997. If you've already paid your tax in full or arranged for an installment agreement, please disregard this notice.

If you haven't paid, mail your check or money order and tear-off stub from the last page of this notice. Make your check payable to Internal Revenue Service and write your Social Security number on it. If you can't pay in full, please call us to discuss payment.
