

Arts Pavilion. We are here for another purpose as well. To dispel the septic rumor oozing from some health policy think tanks to the effect that academic medical centers such as ours are dinosaurs doomed to extinction by the impact of the asteroid of managed care. Look skyward! On this day of noble purpose the sun shines brightly. No ashen clouds obscure the values that have made American medicine a crowning achievement of Western Civilization. And what are these core values? Simply stated: Faith in evidence-based medicine and trust that our superbly trained physicians will translate the basic science of medicine into the art and science of patient care. These values constitute the concrete foundation upon which the three pillars of our academic medical center rests so securely. One pillar is this great medical center committed to superb patient care; the second is the Albert Einstein College of medicine, dedicated to excellence in education and biomedical research. The third pillar is this community whose loyalty and support ensure our continuing vitality. I submit that neither the tremors of the healthquake nor the asteroid of managed care can shake or threaten the foundation of our AMC. Dinosaurs are we? Let us not forget that dinosaurs, as every child knows, dominated this planet for nearly 300 million years.

Besides who would have thought that the most vulnerable to extinction by the impact of managed care might be the giant insurance companies themselves? Asteroid impact sites are difficult to predict. For us, in this holy week of contemplation let us be comforted in the knowledge that good deeds and good works still have currency as effective challenges to potential economic catastrophes. Our species, Homo sapiens, is not only man of wisdom who makes tools; he is also man who plans and builds for the future. How we rejoice when on occasion a man arises from our species who redeems the time with a vision of what will be and has the courage and motivation to pursue it to its realization. Mr. Greene, I salute your uncommon wisdom in selecting parents who gave you good genes and taught the boy to be the mensch he is today. Yours and Mrs. Greene's benefaction strengthens the ties that bind the College of medicine and the Montefiore Medical Center by helping to provide a state-of-the-art medical arts pavilion for the faculty we share in common cause.

On behalf of the President of Yeshiva University and the Board of Overseers of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, I congratulate the President and Trustees of the Montefiore Medical Center and especially Jerry and Dawn Greene for proving that our Academic Medical Center is not only alive and well but that the Sun will continue to shine upon us until it exhausts its thermonuclear energy. But not to worry since that is not likely to happen for another 3 billion years.

I conclude on a personal note of reinterpretation of Albert Einstein's most famous special relativity equation $E=mc^2$, the equivalence of mass and energy. Let us consider the E to be Excellence equal to m , motivation times c , commitment. Excellence=motivation commitment. And let the square be the multiple rather than the addition of our joint commitment to excellence in patient care. Albert Einstein was troubled for the remainder of his life by the use to which his relativity equation was, of necessity, put in producing nuclear weapons of mass destruction in what became the Manhattan project. How pleased he might be to learn today that our interpretation of $e=mc^2$ defines the excellence of our academic medical center as the product of our collective motivation and commitment to the health of the community we serve, not a Manhattan project, but a Bronx project.●

TRIBUTE TO EDWARD VILLELLA, MIAMI CITY BALLET

● Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to commend the meritorious efforts of Edward Villella, founder of the Miami City Ballet, in the global dance community.

Mr. Villella's interest in dance began when he joined the School of American Ballet, where he now serves on the board of directors, at the age of 10.

Early in his career, Edward Villella was the first American male to perform with the Royal Danish Ballet and was the only American asked to dance an encore at the Bolshoi Theater in Moscow.

Villella has honored America with his contributions to dance and his dedication to teaching dance to others. He danced for President John Kennedy's inaugural and in 1975 captured an Emmy for his television production of "Harlequin."

Recently, he was 1 of the 11 recipients of the National Medal of Arts and was inducted into the Florida Artists Hall of Fame this year, the most prestigious cultural honor that can be bestowed upon an individual in Florida.

Edward Villella has honored his State by being awarded a distinguished Kennedy Center Honor for lifetime achievement.

Mr. President, on behalf of Floridians everywhere, I applaud Edward Villella for his success. It is my earnest hope that his outstanding contributions to our State will continue to inspire us for years to come.●

WORLD FOOD DAY AND THE UNITED NATIONS WORLD FOOD PROGRAMME

● Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, to mark the celebration of World Food Day on October 16, I rise today to recognize the work of the United Nations' World Food Programme. The U.N.'s World Food Program is the largest international food aid organization in the world. Last year alone it fed over 45.3 million people in 84 countries, transporting 2.2 million tons of food by ship, canoe, river barge, on the backs of donkeys and elephants, and by parachute drop in remote areas.

The World Food Programme distributes food at hospitals, clinics, and schools to fight malnutrition, which kills 11,000 children under the age of 5 every day and stunts the physical growth and intellectual development of those it does not kill.

When disaster strikes, the World Food Programme is there. When severe droughts threatened North Korea and Southern Africa, the World Food Programme helped prevent famine by feeding millions of people, especially children. The World Food Programme has also provided food to ensure the stability of the peace process in Mozambique and to assist refugees when war hit the Caucasus.

The World Food Programme helps people escape the poverty trap by promoting economic self-reliance. In exchange for food, workers repair dykes in Vietnam, install irrigation systems in India, replant forests in Ethiopia, and construct mountainside terraces in Peru which prevent topsoil erosion.

As an essential element of its strategy of combating hunger, the World Food Programme encourages the empowerment of women. In places like rural Pakistan, the World Food Programme promotes female literacy by giving vegetable oil to parents who send their daughters to school.

In war-torn countries like Afghanistan, Guatemala, Cambodia, Mozambique, Angola, and Bosnia, the World Food Programme trains local people to carry out demining operations which clear roads and land, allowing the delivery and production of food and the safe return of refugees.

Americans can take special pride in the accomplishments of the World Food Programme. Not only is the United States the program's single biggest donor, it also played a central role in its creation, when President Kennedy committed the resources and leadership necessary to make it a reality in 1963.

I urge you, my fellow colleagues, and all my fellow Americans to support the work of the World Food Programme.●

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE ADDELIAR "DEL" GUY

● Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding Nevadan, my friend, the late Judge Addeliar "Del" Guy III, who died last year. This extraordinary individual will receive a permanent honor in my State on February 5, 1998. A local school, to be named the Addeliar Guy Middle School, will serve as a lasting tribute to this remarkable man.

In addition to serving as Nevada's first African-American judge, Addeliar Guy's legacy includes his role as a devoted husband, father and grandfather, decorated soldier, concerned citizen, community leader, talented litigator, and until his retirement, as an elected judge for the Eighth District Court of Clark County, where he served for 20 years.

Judge Guy served in the Coast Guard in World War II, followed by active duty in the United States Army through the Korean war. While in the Army, Del had the chance to act as counsel for one of his fellow sergeants, sparking his interest in the exercise of justice. He later continued his military service in the Illinois and Nevada National Guard and the U.S. Army Reserve.

His extraordinary display of American patriotism has earned him another prominent memorial in our State. On July 2, my colleagues and I in the Nevada congressional delegation presided over the dedication of the new Las Vegas Ambulatory Care Center for Veterans, which was named in his honor. The judge's many military credentials include the Purple Heart, Meritorious Award Medal, Korean Service Medal with two battle stars, and a Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Upon leaving the Army, Del looked for work in the private sector, and although he had a wide range of aspirations and his experience as an officer qualified him for many professional jobs, those opportunities were closed off to him because of race. Fortunately for Nevada, he decided to dedicate his life to the law and received his law degree from Chicago's Loyola University in 1957, where in his second year, he set his sights on achieving what would seem to many an impossible goal, earning a judgeship.

Although he once said that he would never leave Chicago, after attending a Young Democrats meeting in Las Vegas, he was persuaded to join the District Attorney's Office when he was denied a judgeship he was expecting in Illinois. Addeliar Guy became the first African-American licensed to practice law in my State, and, in 1967, was officially admitted to the Nevada bar. In his two decades on the State bench, he served as Alternate Justice of the Supreme Court and in 1975 was appointed by then Governor O'Callaghan to the newly created Eighth Judicial District.

He truly believed in the law. I counted on Judge Guy's trademark intelligence and honesty, as well as his ability to astutely assess the character and behavior of others. These qualities were invaluable as he assisted me in selecting young Nevadans as nominees for our Nation's military academies.

Much of my admiration for Judge Guy stems from his continued enduring commitment to people of the Silver State. Judge Guy's values are reflected not only in the way he lived his life, but in the many organizations he belonged to and served. Until his passing, he worked every day as a citizen-soldier, contributing to groups like the NAACP, the Bar Association, my Academy Board and local youth agencies. Judge Guy also served as a motivating force for Nevada's kids, promoting education through the A.D. Guy Scholarship Fund and the Nevada Spirit of Art Contest.

The Honorable Addeliar Guy's lifetime of achievement is truly an inspiration, and he serves as an incredible role model for judicial prudence and legal acumen. I am confident that Nevadans will remember Judge Guy for his distinguished career, and I hope that the children passing through his namesake will be inspired by his phenomenal record of accomplishment and lifelong service to the State of Nevada.●
