ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO BARON GEORG VON TRAPP

• Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to an American and Austrian hero, Baron Georg von Trapp, on the 50th anniversary of his death. During his lifetime, Baron von Trapp stood for honor and courage. He held a deep devotion for both his country and his family. Baron von Trapp was remembered on the week-end of July 11, in a celebration at the Trapp Family Lodge in Stowe, VT. I regret that I was unable to attend, however I would like to take this opportunity to remember the significance of his life, made famous by the 1965 movie, "The Sound of Music."

It is a reflection of Baron von Trapp's spirit that he is not only an American legend, but he is also considered a hero in Austria, the homeland that he fled 60 years ago. It is a tribute to his excellence that the 89 members of the 1997 graduating class of the Theresianum Military Academy, the Austrian equivalent to West Point, voted Baron von Trapp their class hero, someone whom they all wished to emulate.

Baron von Trapp was a celebrated military commander. He was honored with two medals for courage in battle, including the Maria Theresian Ritter Medal, Austria's highest, for sinking a French submarine in 1915. He was also influential in the development of submarine warfare and torpedoes. However, his love and devotion for his country never underscored the importance of his family. He made an intense connection with his children through music. Out of this connection came the famous Trapp Family Singers. When the Nazis invaded and were pressuring Baron von Trapp to join Hitler's ranks, he asked his family if they wanted to leave for America, saying that if anyone wanted to stay, they would all stay. Everyone wanted to leave.

Although nothing could replace the love he had for his homeland, Baron von Trapp did grow to love his new home in Vermont. He found new passions in maple sugaring and farming. Because they spent most of the year touring, they rented out rooms in their lodge to skiers, starting what would eventually become a landmark in Vermont, the Trapp Family Lodge.

Once again, I would like to express my admiration for Baron von Trapp and his entire family on the anniversary of his death.●

USDA REORGANIZATION

• Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I rise today to talk briefly about the recent consolidation of administrative functions at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, recently announced by Secretary Dan Glickman.

In my contact with Secretary Glickman he has said that the changes are being aimed at the national headquarters and State offices, but that there will be no additional field office closings or cut in services as a result of this directive.

Secretary Glickman has also informed me that an outside study is being commissioned to assess the workload of parts of the agency, in light of current and anticipated program activity, and will report on recommendations on the county delivery systems.

The recent administrative convergence by the Secretary is an effort to make the USDA a more efficient and cost-effective agency. No doubt, to streamline the agency and improve efficiency, there is a need to eliminate any duplication of administrative services. However, there is also a need to maintain a vital local field staff with the necessary resources available to them so that they can deliver services to our producers.

As the USDA continues to make adjustments to its operations, I will continue to work with the Secretary and solicit feedback from our local Nebraska offices.

The Freedom to Farm Act of 1996, for better or worse, has brought us into a new era of our farm program. To some extent producers, Members of Congress, and USDA staff are entering uncharted waters. I will be diligent in my efforts in making sure the USDA, and Congress, is up to the navigational task.●

TRIBUTE TO ROLAND AND CLAIRE JUTRAS, NATIONAL 1997 PARENTS OF THE YEAR

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Roland and Claire Jutras of Peterborough, NH, the National 1997 Parents of the Year. The National Parents' Day Foundation bestowed the honor on the Jutras after searching the Nation for the parents of the year.

Roland Jutras came to town in 1972 to run the town of Peterborough's

Recreation Department. His 25 years of service to the town's children has earned him much praise and esteem from the community around. Roland met Claire playing at the co-ed evening volleyball league in 1972. They were later married in 1975.

Roland and Claire are active members of their community. Roland received the Peterborough Rotary Club Paul Harris Award in 1989, Peterborough Citizen of the Year in 1987, and he was VFW Man of the Year in 1981. Roland also served on the ConVal District School Board for 2 years and he taught at St. Peter's Church. Claire is involved in many community activities as well. She has been a Brownie leader for 3 years, a St. Peter's religious education teacher for 4 years, preschool teacher, recreation volunteer, and a member of a local sorority organization. Claire is also a full-time special education aide at Peterborough Elementary School and is known for her warm smile and generous heart to all of those people she has touched.

Roland and Claire have strengthened their family with pride, dedication, and love, always first. The Jutras' four daughters have earned as much community recognition as their parents. Christine and Michelle are seniors at Norwich University, Veronica will be a sophomore at Holy Cross in Worcester, MA, in the fall, while Natalie will be a junior at St. Anselm College in Manchester, NH.

The National Parents' Day Foundation was founded in 1994 after President Bill Clinton signed into law the creation of National Parents Day on the fourth Sunday of July each year. Every year the foundation looks for parents who are intact married couples with children, people of good reputation, couples who mirror in their lives behavior the ideals we want to see replicated, and people with strong religiously based moral values.

Roland and Claire will join 13 other U.S. couples who were finalists for the award this week in a reception here on Capitol Hill. Mr. President, on Wednesday evening, I look forward to meeting the Jutras here in a reception to honor this wonderful Granite State couple.

Roland and Claire represent the very best in parenting and embody the finest in sacrificial and caring love for children. New Hampshire is fortunate to be blessed by their leadership and dedication. I applaud Roland and Claire Jutras for their outstanding and caring spirit for their community and family. I am proud to represent them in the U.S. Senate. Congratulations Roland and Claire. ●

HANLEY JAMES NORMENT

● Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today to salute Mr. Hanley Norment, a great civil rights leader and dedicated family man who died Thursday, July 10, 1997.

In 1966, Hanley James Norment came to Washington and a year later, he became a civil rights officer with the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. About that time, he started volunteering on the local level, rising from director of media relations to president of the Montgomery County branch of the NAACP. Mr. Norment's political and professional successes were a direct measure of his character. He was an unselfish man, one who put aside the personal for the common good. As his son, Julian, commented, Regardless of philosophical differences, he got along with you, he respected your opinions.

Throughout the course of his career as a civil rights leader, Hanley Norment relentlessly championed educational causes, pushing for higher standards and equal opportunities for all children, regardless of race. He knew firsthand the value of a good education. Born in Marianna, AR on January 16, 1932, to Ruby and Samuel Norment, Hanley received his early education in the Arkansas public school system in the Jim Crow era. Undaunted by the circumstances of time and place, Norment earned two B.A. degrees and nearly finished a doctoral degree in political science at the University of Michigan. He used his talents and knowledge generously. For more than 20 years, he tutored individual students through various organizations such as the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and the NAACP.

Mr. Norment was extremely proud of the contributions of his wife, Christa, former principal of Montgomery Knolls Elementary School in Silver Spring, MD, to the field of education. Their children, Camille and Julian, continue the family tradition of academic achievement and public service. Camille is pursuing her second master's degree at New York University and I am proud to have Julian working on my Washington staff. The fruit does not fall far from the tree.

Mr. Norment retired in September as director of the Office of Civil Rights at the U.S. Department of Transportation. At the time of his tragic death, he was president of the Maryland State Conference NAACP branches. Hanley James Norment fought the good fight, finished the course, and kept the faith. We all feel his loss. ●

SUBMITTING CHANGES TO THE BUDGET RESOLUTION DISCRETIONARY SPENDING LIMITS, APPROPRIATE BUDGETARY AGGREGATES, AND APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE ALLOCATION

● Mr. DOMENICI. Section 203 of House Concurrent Resolution 84, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1998, allows the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee to adjust the Appropriations Committee's allocation contained in the most recently adopted budget resolution—in this case, House Concurrent Resolution 84—to reflect an appropriation for the renewal of expiring contracts for tenant- and project-based housing assistance under section 8 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937.

Section 206 of House Concurrent Resolution 84, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1998, requires the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee to adjust the discretionary spending limits, the appropriate budgetary aggregates and the Appropriations Committee's allocation contained in the most recently adopted budget resolution—in this case, House Concurrent Resolution 84—to reflect additional new budget authority and outlays for an appropriation for arrearages for international organizations, international peacekeeping, and multilateral development banks.

I hereby submit revisions to the non-defense discretionary spending limits for fiscal year 1998 contained in section 201 of House Concurrent Resolution 84 in the following amounts:

THE CLOSING OF WOOLWORTH'S

● Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I noted in Friday's New York Times the demise of Woolworth's, one of the Nation's best known retailers and one with its origins in upstate New York. The Times article quotes Hofstra professor Robert Sobel; "Woolworth was
