ADDITIONAL STATEMENTSINTERNATIONAL DOLPHIN CONSERVATION ACT

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I would like to comment briefly on yesterday's unanimous passage of S. 39, the International Dolphin Conservation Act after the Senate had adopted a compromise amendment.

I joined with my colleagues in supporting this effort to bridge the gap between the two sides because I believe that it was the result of sincere movement by both sides, a true compromise. As originally written, S. 39 would have permitted tuna caught by chasing dolphins and encircling them in purse-seine nets to be labeled dolphin-safe. The compromise amendment adopted by the Senate yesterday preserves the existing dolphin-safe label until the Secretary of Commerce has the opportunity to review a study of the effects of encirclement on endangered dolphin populations. This means that the label change will take place no sooner than March 1997.

I must admit that the need for such a study is not entirely clear to me. I think that any method of fishing for tuna that involves chasing schools of dolphins through miles of ocean and encircling them—in nets a mile wide and as deep as a football field is long—cannot honestly be described as safe for dolphins. I only hope that the studies that will be conducted will be anchored in common sense. If they are, I am confident that the label change will not take place.

Unfortunately, common sense may take a back seat to pressures from foreign governments, the same pressures that gave rise to S. 39 in the first place. It's no secret that the countries that permit dolphin-deadly fishing would like to have access to the American tuna market—the world's largest—even if it means that our consumer standards have to be gutted in the process. I regret that too many in Congress and in the administration have failed to resist this pressure and defend our country's laws.

In that connection, I would like to associate myself with the remarks of Senator BOXER, a valued colleague but one with whom I do not typically find myself in agreement. Before the Senate voted on this issue, Senator BOXER said: “American laws should be made by Americans * * * American laws should not be made by other countries.” Senator BOXER has it exactly right. This issue has aroused the passionate interest of humane groups others concerned with dolphin welfare, but it should also be of concern to anyone concerned about the integrity of our governing institutions and the preservation of the sovereign right of the American people to make their laws through those institutions. I trust that we will have the opportunity to revisit that question.

Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to say that Senator BOXER has done a tremendous job of standing up for what is right on this issue and I salute her efforts and those of the others who brought the sponsors of S. 39 to the table. Without Senator BOXER's steadfast efforts, this compromise and the opportunity to preserve the dolphin-safe label it provides would not have been possible. •
