RECOGNIZING THE EFFORTS OF THE EMPLOYEES OF ROCKLAND
COUNTY SEWER DISTRICT NO. 1

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the efforts of the employees of Rockland County Sewer District No. 1 in collecting over 7 billion gallons of sewerage annually, treating it, and returning clean water to the environment and the community.

As the 106th Congress works to protect and provide clean water to the communities of our nation, we must not forget those who make our legislation a reality. Their dedication protects each one of us from the pollutants which threaten the health and welfare of our children and our families.

In this spirit, the employees of Rockland County Sewer District No. 1 will be celebrating "Water Week," from May 2nd through May 8th, 1999. This event will celebrate the way people are working to protect and improve our water. It will provide the citizens of Rockland County with tours and exhibits promoting clean water initiatives; and will recognize those individuals who have dedicated their lives to protecting their community water supply.

Once again, I would like to thank the employees of Rockland County Sewer District No. 1 for their hard work and continued dedication.

TRIBUTE TO VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS OF THE UNITED STATES

HON. BOB SCHAFFER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States (VFW). The VFW is dedicated to protecting the rights and families of those who have served in the United States military. This year marks the 100-year anniversary of the VFW.

For over 200 years, the U.S. Armed Forces have fought for freedom and protected the natural born rights of every American citizen. Blood, sweat and tears of these men and women have built and solidified our great nation into a worldwide stronghold. In 1899, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States established itself a defender of the American veteran. To ensure their protection, the VFW continually echoes the soldier's voices through the halls of Congress and stands tall for widows whose spouses died across vast oceans and in the depths of foreign jungles. The VFW promotes veterans not only in times of war, but also when they return from battle, in times of peace.

Mr. Speaker, I proudly rise to honor the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. All Americans, past, present, and future, deeply appreciate their service and devotion.

CELEBRATING 300 YEARS OF THE SIKH COMMUNITY

HON. GREGORY W. MEEKS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Mr. Speaker, on April 10th, this city was treated to the sight of the thousands of Americans of the Sikh religion marching through Washington to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the Sikh's most sacred event, the founding of the "Khalsa" (Community of Sikh believers). For Sikhs in this country and around the world, it was a sacred and inspiring day.

However, both the reporting of the march and several subsequent comments placed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, made it appear as if the march was something it was not. For some reason, the comments in the newspaper and elsewhere made it appear as if the entire U.S. Sikh community was here to advocate separation from India, home of the world's largest Sikh community. This was simply not true. The Sikhs who came to Washington traveled here to show pride in their religion and their way of life. They came to celebrate the deep and abiding three-century heritage as found among the 22 million Sikhs worldwide.

It is a heritage that has enriched both this nation and the Sikhs home country, India. Sikhs have served at all levels of government in India, including the Presidency. They have played a key role in India's economic and military development. The vast majority of Sikhs are committed to India and its continued progress. The Sikh community is held in high regard by all Indians.

Sadly, a small number of Sikhs here seem to have been determined to pervert the purpose of the march. It was their intent to promote a narrow agenda—a partial dissolution of the world's most populous democracy, India. While this small minority is vocal and active, it is a very small minority of American and world Sikhs. But being active, it was their comments that got reported in the press and reprinted in the RECORD. What they espouse, a separate homeland for Sikhs has virtually no support in the Sikhs traditional homeland, the Punjab of India, and very little support here in the United States. And for good reason. Rupturing the territorial integrity of India invites greater instability in a region of the world where U.S. interests are best served by stability.

Mr. Speaker, the April 10 march showed the finest of America—freedom of religion, freedom of assembly, freedom of speech. The great numbers of Sikhs who visited our city recently came here to celebrate their religion and their way of life. Any suggestion that these Sikhs came here with a political agenda is incorrect and does a disservice to the community at large.

THE TAX EQUITY PRESERVATION
ACT OF 1999

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I introduced the Tax Equity Preservation Act of 1999, H.R. 1561, to repeal the Alternative Minimum Tax, the AMT, on individuals.

The AMT must be one of the most perverse provisions found in the entire complex of the Internal Revenue Code. Like many of the taxes designed to make Americans pay their "fair share" to the government, the AMT is very inefficient and subjects taxpayers to a form of double jeopardy.

Over the last few months as Americans prepared their 1998 tax returns, they faced an array of tax deductions, exclusions and exemptions which, depending on their circumstances, they could use to legitimately reduce their tax burden. For example, the Code includes personal and dependent deductions. In addition, Congress recently provided parents with a tax credit for each of their children to help with the cost of raising the kids. There are yet other tax credits available to help offset the cost of education such as HOPE Scholarships and Lifetime Learning credits. Taxpayers may also deduct their medical expenses when they exceed 7.5 percent of their income.

More and more taxpayers are finding that, after they fill out their tax forms and take all their legitimate deductions and exclusions, Uncle Sam is telling them that they did not pay enough taxes. They must then start all over with a new stack of tax forms and compute their Alternative Minimum Tax. Unfortunately, many of the deductions, exemptions and credits available under the ordinary income tax are not available, or are reduced, under the AMT.

For example, taxpayers subject to the AMT may not take personal and dependent exemptions. State and local taxes are exempt under the ordinary income tax, but not under the AMT. Tax credits for children and education credits cannot be used to reduce the AMT burden. Even the deductibility of medical costs is more restrictive under the AMT, with only expenses exceeding 10 percent of income eligible for deductions.

Although designed to prevent "rich" taxpayers from avoiding taxes, because the AMT exemptions and deductions have not kept pace with inflation, more and more middle income taxpayers are falling victim to the AMT. The AMT exemption amounts are only $33,750 for single filers and $45,000 for married couples filing joint returns. Congress last updated these in 1993 and did not index them for inflation.

The Tax Equity Preservation Act will relieve taxpayers from the burden of filling out two separate stacks of tax forms and paying higher taxes. Although we could help middle-income Americans by increasing the AMT exemptions and indexing them for inflation, that would only add more complexity to the Code. The better way to preserve tax equity is to simply abolish the AMT.

I commend H.R. 1561, the Tax Equity Preservation Act of 1999, to the attention of my colleagues and ask them to join me in the effort to repeal the AMT on individuals by co-sponsoring this bill.

APRIL IS PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS MONTH

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, April is Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Month. At this time each year, parents, teachers, and humane educators in small towns and large cities across America teach young people to take proper care of their family cats and dogs. They also teach them to spay and neuter their pets to prevent unwanted litters. The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has for more than 130 years taught us and our children these important lessons. Today, I ask the Congress to join with families, educators, veterinarians, and fine organizations such as the Prevent-a-Litter Coalition and the ASPCA, in urging the Postmaster General to issue a spay/neuter stamp so that this important message will appear on millions of pieces of mail in the year 2000. Millions of stamps means millions of messages, which will save millions of lives.

Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Month is also a most appropriate time, Mr. Speaker, for all of us in the Congress to support pending legislation which will help alleviate pain, fear and suffering in animals. I urge my colleagues to support HR 443, The Downed Animal Protection Act, which would require the euthanization at stockyards, feedlots, and auctions, of farm animals such as cows, pigs and sheep, if they have been so badly injured or weakened they can no longer walk on their own. I also urge for HR 453, the Pet Safety and Protection Act, which would make it more difficult for family pets to be stolen and illegally sold to research facilities. More and more of our constituents are writing and asking for improvements in the way animals are treated. Accordingly, supporting humane legislation is a wonderful opportunity for all of us to be responsive to the American public in a positive, bipartisan way.

HONORING AND ANSWERING THE FOURTH DISTRICT OF COLORADO

HON. BOB SCHAFFER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak about Colorado's Fourth Congressional District and the opinions of my constituents concerning the direction their country is taking. Recently, I surveyed thousands of citizens about issues important to them. I would like to report to you the results of that opinion survey.

The survey asked, "What is the single most important issue facing our country today?" Respondents came back with a whole host of answers including tax relief, preserving social security, need for an effective missile defense system, the failing farm economy, too much government, high taxes, improving our children's education, etc. But the prevailing concern is a "lack of moral leadership," "honesty," "corrupt administration," "moral deterioration," "decline in ethics and morals," and "moral decay." This message was repeated over and over again. The people of Colorado understand the qualities our Founding Fathers identified in order to continue the stability of our Republic, requiring the cultivation of personal morality and responsibility, and courage to stand up for those values.

The number concerned for our country's moral leadership was followed closely by their outrage over President Clinton's decision to involve the U.S. military in Kosovo. Folks support a strong military but they urged our troops' return from the civil dispute in Kosovo. To date, I have heard from no one supporting this recent military venture of the President's.

The second question asked, "What is the single most important issue to you or your family?" The answers to this question mirrored those they believe are important to the country. They are demanding honorable and moral leadership of this country, believing it will cause a renewal of responsibility, morality and liberty in our society.

The survey continued, asking what people think is the biggest challenge for our schools. Responses included funds not reaching the classrooms; class sizes too big; worries over drugs and violence; Federal Government involvement in our local schools; lack of discipline and parental involvement; curriculum not teaching the basics; ridding the classrooms of the teachers union; need for school choice; and demand for more local control. While the concerns are varied, it is unanimous that people are concerned about the quality of education their children are receiving.

Fourth District Coloradans, more than two-to-one, oppose partial birth abortions and overwhelmingly oppose second amendment gun rights being restricted. But, perhaps the most compelling and almost unanimous response comes in support of requiring Congress to balance the budget and reform taxes.

The 105th Congress provided Americans with the first balanced Federal budget and the first budget surplus since 1969. Since the Republican Congress proved we can balance the budget, people want us to ensure we will balance the budget permanently. It is for this reason I am proud to sponsor H.J. Res. 1, the Balanced Budget Amendment Resolution of 1999. With a permanently balanced budget, the Federal Government will be forced to prioritize money for programs important to Coloradans.

Respondents differ on whether a flat tax or consumption tax would be best, but folks are almost unanimous in believing the IRS tax code should be abolished and Americans given much-needed tax relief. Without exception, no one asked for new taxes or new government programs.

Mr. Speaker, I am grateful for the response I received to the opinion survey. I shall consider this valuable input and share it with colleagues. Americans should keep in close touch with their elected officials. This way, we as public servants know our every move is being watched, and the measurement of our achievement depends upon the betterment of their life, and that of their families.

REGULATORY FAIRNESS AND OPENNESS ACT OF 1999

HON. ALLEN BOYD

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, crop protection tools are necessary for family farmers to provide a safe and reliable food supply to the consumer and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) must use sound science to evaluate and determine which products are dependable and safe. If this is not accomplished, safe and useful crop protection products will be unavailable for use by the family farmer and the quality and affordability of wholesome food supply will be jeopardized.

For this reason, I joined several of my colleagues today in introducing the Regulatory Fairness and Openness Act of 1999. This bipartisan legislation will give EPA the ability to address potential problems with the registration and re-registration processes for crop protection tools during the implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996. This bill ensures that the EPA has the capability to adequately evaluate and analyze all available, accessible data and information and to use the best science to determine which crop protection tools will be available for the family farmer. This Act does not change the FQPA standards for pesticide evaluations, it clarifies the processes employed for evaluation in order to allow for full and scientifically correct compliance with the requirements of the FQPA.

Without the Regulatory and Openness Act of 1999, many crop protection tools will be eliminated for use by agriculture, putting the farmers in the United States at a competitive disadvantage with foreign imports. These imports do not have to meet the strict regulatory requirements that our farmers must follow.

Further, if the EPA eliminates crop protection tools without allowing time for the development of new alternatives, family farmers will lose crops to pest infestations and the consumer will lose the quality and quantity of food available to them. This bill encourages and supports research into expanded information gathering on the use of crop protection tools and research into the development of new alternatives for managing pests in agriculture.

I urge my colleagues to support this very important legislation. The Regulatory Fairness and Openness Act of 1999 is important not only for agricultural America, but for all Americans. Through complete and thorough risk assessments of crop protection tools using actual and relevant data and sound science, the EPA and family farmers can continue to provide our country's citizens with the safest, most abundant food supply in the world.

THOUGHTS ON KOSOVO

HON. MARSHALL "MARK" SANFORD

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 27, 1999

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share with you thoughts on Kosovo from a friend back home, retired Vice Admiral Al Baciocco. His insight as a military man speaks
