

But the Snow Goose is equally important and it is imperative that the Congress Act on this legislation as soon as possible. I fear the refusal of the House to act on S. 148 jeopardizes the chances of the Snow Goose legislation this year. For that reason, I have offered an amendment to H.R. 2454 to strip the language pertaining to the neotropicals from the text of the Snow Goose bill.

As part of my agreeing to do this, I have been assured by both the Chairman of the House Resources Committee and the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans that they will do everything they can to assure that the Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act is considered by the full House early next year. I am encouraged by their support and wish to thank them for their willingness to try to move this legislation.

Therefore, I believe that removing the text of the Neotropical Migratory Bird Conservation Act is only a short-term setback. I am confident that once the full House has the opportunity to consider this legislation that a good bill will emerge from that respected body. I urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 2454, as amended.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be agreed to, the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 2774) was agreed to.

The bill (H.R. 2454), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

SEC. 101. FINDINGS, PURPOSES, AND POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) disability is a natural part of the human experience that does not diminish the right of individuals with developmental disabilities to live independently, to exert control and choice over their own lives, and to fully participate in and contribute to their communities through full integration and inclusion in the economic, political, social, cultural, and educational mainstream of United States society;

(2) in 1999, there are between 3,200,000 and 4,500,000 individuals with developmental disabilities in the United States, and recent studies indicate that individuals with developmental disabilities comprise between 1.2 and 1.65 percent of the United States population;

(3) individuals whose disabilities occur during their developmental period frequently have severe disabilities that are likely to continue indefinitely;

(4) individuals with developmental disabilities often encounter discrimination in the provision of critical services, such as services in the areas of emphasis (as defined in section 102);

(5) individuals with developmental disabilities are at greater risk than the general population of abuse, neglect, financial and sexual exploitation, and the violation of their legal and human rights;

(6) a substantial portion of individuals with developmental disabilities and their families do not have access to appropriate support and services, including access to assistive technology, from generic and specialized service systems, and remain unserved or underserved;

(7) individuals with developmental disabilities often require lifelong community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance, that are most effective when provided in a coordinated manner;

(8) there is a need to ensure that services, supports, and other assistance are provided in a culturally competent manner, that ensures that individuals from racial and ethnic minority backgrounds are fully included in all activities provided under this title;

(9) family members, friends, and members of the community can play an important role in enhancing the lives of individuals with developmental disabilities, especially when the family members, friends, and community members are provided with the necessary community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance;

(10) current research indicates that 88 percent of individuals with developmental disabilities live with their families or in their own households;

(11) many service delivery systems and communities are not prepared to meet the impending needs of the 479,862 adults with developmental disabilities who are living at home with parents who are 60 years old or older and who serve as the primary caregivers of the adults;

(12) in almost every State, individuals with developmental disabilities are waiting for appropriate services in their communities, in the areas of emphasis;

(13) the public needs to be made more aware of the capabilities and competencies of individuals with developmental disabilities, particularly in cases in which the individuals are provided with necessary services, supports, and other assistance;

(14) as increasing numbers of individuals with developmental disabilities are living, learning, working, and participating in all aspects of community life, there is an increasing need for a well trained workforce that is able to provide the services, supports, and other forms of direct assistance required to enable the individuals to carry out those activities;

(15) there needs to be greater effort to recruit individuals from minority backgrounds into professions serving individuals with developmental disabilities and their families;

(16) the goals of the Nation properly include a goal of providing individuals with developmental disabilities with the information, skills, opportunities, and support to—

(A) make informed choices and decisions about their lives;

(B) live in homes and communities in which such individuals can exercise their full rights and responsibilities as citizens;

(C) pursue meaningful and productive lives;

(D) contribute to their families, communities, and States, and the Nation;

(E) have interdependent friendships and relationships with other persons;

(F) live free of abuse, neglect, financial and sexual exploitation, and violations of their legal and human rights; and

(G) achieve full integration and inclusion in society, in an individualized manner, consistent with the unique strengths, resources, priorities, concerns, abilities, and capabilities of each individual; and

(17) as the Nation, States, and communities maintain and expand community living options for individuals with developmental disabilities, there is a need to evaluate the access to those options by individuals with developmental disabilities and the effects of those options on individuals with developmental disabilities.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to assure that individuals with developmental disabilities and their families participate in the design of and have access to needed community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance that promote self-determination, independence, productivity, and integration and inclusion in all facets of community life, through culturally competent programs authorized under this title, including specifically—

(1) State Councils on Developmental Disabilities in each State to engage in advocacy, capacity building, and systemic change activities that—

(A) are consistent with the purpose described in this subsection and the policy described in subsection (c); and

(B) contribute to a coordinated, consumer- and family-centered, consumer- and family-directed, comprehensive system that includes needed community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance that promote self-determination for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families;

(2) protection and advocacy systems in each State to protect the legal and human rights of individuals with developmental disabilities;

(3) University Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and Service—

(A) to provide interdisciplinary pre-service preparation and continuing education of students and fellows, which may include the preparation and continuing education of leadership, direct service, clinical, or other personnel to strengthen and increase the capacity of States and communities to achieve the purpose of this title;

(B) to provide community services—

(i) that provide training and technical assistance for individuals with developmental disabilities, their families, professionals, paraprofessionals, policymakers, students, and other members of the community; and

(ii) that may provide services, supports, and assistance for the persons described in clause (i) through demonstration and model activities;

(C) to conduct research, which may include basic or applied research, evaluation, and the analysis of public policy in areas that affect or could affect, either positively or negatively, individuals with developmental disabilities and their families; and

(D) to disseminate information related to activities undertaken to address the purpose of this title, especially dissemination of information that demonstrates that the network authorized under this subtitle is a national and international resource that includes specific substantive areas of expertise that may be accessed and applied in diverse settings and circumstances; and

(4) funding for—

(A) national initiatives to collect necessary data on issues that are directly or indirectly relevant to the lives of individuals with developmental disabilities;

(B) technical assistance to entities who engage in or intend to engage in activities consistent with the purpose described in this subsection or the policy described in subsection (c); and

(C) other nationally significant activities.

(c) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States that all programs, projects, and activities receiving assistance under this title shall be carried out in a manner consistent with the principles that—

(1) individuals with developmental disabilities, including those with the most severe developmental disabilities, are capable of self-determination, independence, productivity, and integration and inclusion in all facets of community life, but often require the provision of community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance;

(2) individuals with developmental disabilities and their families have competencies, capabilities, and personal goals that should be recognized, supported, and encouraged, and any assistance to such individuals should be provided in an individualized manner, consistent with the unique strengths, resources, priorities, concerns, abilities, and capabilities of such individuals;

(3) individuals with developmental disabilities and their families are the primary decision-makers regarding the services and supports such individuals and their families receive, including regarding choosing where the individuals live from available options, and play decisionmaking roles in policies and programs that affect the lives of such individuals and their families;

(4) services, supports, and other assistance should be provided in a manner that demonstrates respect for individual dignity, personal preferences, and cultural differences;

(5) specific efforts must be made to ensure that individuals with developmental disabilities from racial and ethnic minority backgrounds and their families enjoy increased and meaningful opportunities to access and use community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance available to other individuals with developmental disabilities and their families;

(6) recruitment efforts in disciplines related to developmental disabilities relating to pre-service training, community training, practice, administration, and policymaking must focus on bringing larger numbers of racial and ethnic minorities into the disciplines in order to provide appropriate skills, knowledge, role models, and sufficient personnel to address the growing needs of an increasingly diverse population;

(7) with education and support, communities can be accessible to and responsive to the needs of individuals with developmental disabilities and their families and are enriched by full and active participation in community activities, and contributions, by individuals with developmental disabilities and their families;

(8) individuals with developmental disabilities have access to opportunities and the necessary support to be included in community life, have interdependent relationships, live in homes and communities, and make contributions to their families, communities, and States, and the Nation;

(9) efforts undertaken to maintain or expand community-based living options for individuals with disabilities should be monitored in order to determine and report to appropriate individuals and entities the extent of access by individuals with developmental disabilities to those options and the extent of compliance by entities providing those options with quality assurance standards;

(10) families of children with developmental disabilities need to have access to and use of safe and appropriate child care and before-school and after-school programs, in the most integrated settings, in order to enrich the participation of the children in community life;

(11) individuals with developmental disabilities need to have access to and use of public transportation, in order to be independent and directly contribute to and participate in all facets of community life; and

(12) individuals with developmental disabilities need to have access to and use of recreational, leisure, and social opportunities in the most integrated settings, in order to enrich their participation in community life.

SEC. 122. STATE ALLOTMENTS.

(a) ALLOTMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) AUTHORITY.—For each fiscal year, the Secretary shall, in accordance with regulations and this paragraph, allot the sums appropriated for such year under section 129 among the States on the basis of—

The Secretary shall increase each minimum allotment by an amount that bears the same ratio to the amount of such minimum allotment (including any increases in such minimum allotment under this paragraph (or a corresponding provision) for prior fiscal years) as the amount that is equal to the difference between—

(3) AMOUNTS.—The Secretary shall reallocate the amount to other States with respect to which the Secretary has not made that determination. The Secretary shall reallocate the amount in proportion to the original allotments of the other States for such fiscal year, but shall reduce such proportionate amount for any of the other States to the extent the proportionate amount exceeds the sum that the Secretary estimates the State needs and will be able to use during such period.

(4) REALLOTMENT OF REDUCTIONS.—The Secretary shall similarly reallocate the total of the reductions among the States whose proportionate amounts were not so reduced.

(5) TREATMENT.—Any amount reallocated to a State under this subsection for a fiscal year shall be deemed to be a part of the allotment of the State under subsection (a) for such fiscal year.

TITLE II—FAMILY SUPPORT

SEC. 201. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Families of Children With Disabilities Support Act of 1999”.

SEC. 202. FINDINGS, PURPOSES, AND POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) It is in the best interest of our Nation to preserve, strengthen, and maintain the family.

(2) Families of children with disabilities provide support, care, and training to their children that can save States millions of dollars. Without the efforts of family caregivers, many persons with disabilities would receive care through State-supported out-of-home placements.

(3) Most families of children with disabilities, especially families in unserved and underserved populations, do not have access to family-centered and family-directed services to support such families in their efforts to care for such children at home.

(4) Medical advances and improved health care have increased the life span of many people with disabilities, and the combination of the longer life spans and the aging of family caregivers places a continually increasing demand on the finite service delivery systems of the States.

(5) In 1996, 49 States provided family support initiatives in response to the needs of families of children with disabilities. Such initiatives included the provision of cash subsidies, respite care, and other forms of support. There is a need in each State, however, to strengthen, expand, and coordinate the activities of a system of family support services for families of children with disabilities that is easily accessible, avoids duplication, uses resources efficiently, and prevents gaps in services to families in all areas of the State.

(6) The goals of the Nation properly include the goal of providing to families of children with disabilities the family support services necessary—

(A) to support the family;

(B) to enable families of children with disabilities to nurture and enjoy their children at home;

(C) to enable families of children with disabilities to make informed choices and decisions regarding the nature of supports, resources, services, and other assistance made available to such families; and

(D) to support family caregivers of adults with disabilities.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this title are—

(1) to promote and strengthen the implementation of comprehensive State systems of family support services, for families with children with disabilities, that are family-centered and family-directed, and that provide families with the greatest possible decisionmaking authority and control regarding the nature and use of services and support;

(2) to promote leadership by families in planning, policy development, implementation, and evaluation of family support services for families of children with disabilities;

(3) to promote and develop interagency coordination and collaboration between agencies responsible for providing the services; and

(4) to increase the availability of, funding for, access to, and provision of family support services for families of children with disabilities.

(c) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States that all programs, projects, and activities funded under this title shall be family-centered and family-directed, and shall be provided in a manner consistent with the goal of providing families of children with disabilities with the support the families need to raise their children at home.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, on behalf of myself, and my colleagues Senators KENNEDY, HARKIN, FRIST, COLLINS, WELLSTONE, REED, DODD, MURRAY, and ENZI, I am pleased that we are considering S. 1809, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1999. This legislation, commonly referred to as the DD Act, represents the reauthorization of a piece of legislation with a rich legacy, and a long history of bipartisan Congressional support. It was initially enacted as Title I of the Mental Retardation Facilities and Community Mental Health Centers Construction Act of 1963 as part of the legacy of President Kennedy, and was last reauthorized in 1996 under the sponsorship of Senator FRIST. It has always focused on the needs of our most vulnerable citizens, currently an estimated four million Americans with developmental disabilities, including individuals with mental retardation and other lifelong, severe disabilities. I am pleased to say that S. 1809 was reported out, unanimously, by the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions on November 3, 1999.

I would like to take a moment to review the history of this legislation, and the programs in each State that it authorizes. The earliest version of this legislation focused on the interdisciplinary training of professionals to work with individuals with developmental disabilities by authorizing funding for University Affiliated Facilities charged with expanding the cadre of professionals able to address the needs of individuals with developmental disabilities. Later, the name of the programs was changed to University Affiliated Programs (UAPs), and their mission was expanded to include community services and information dissemination pertaining to individuals with developmental disabilities. In 1996, after 33 years of planned expansion by Congress, the DD Act provided funding for at least one UAP in each State. The present reauthorization recognizes the development of these programs, adds research as a core function, and re-names UAPs as Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and Service.

In the 1970 reauthorization of the DD Act, Congress recognized the need for and value of strengthening State efforts to coordinate and integrate services for individuals with developmental disabilities. As a result, Congress established and authorized funding for State Developmental Disabilities Councils (DD Councils) in each State. The purpose of the Councils was, and continues to be, to advise governors and State agencies regarding the use of available and potential resources to meet the needs of individuals with developmental disabilities. Every State has a DD Council. The Councils undertake advocacy, capacity building, and systemic change activities directed at improving access to and quality of community services, supports, and other forms of assistance for individuals with disabilities and their families.

In 1975, Congress created and authorized funding for Protection and Advocacy Systems (P & As) in each State to ensure the safety and well being of individuals with developmental disabilities. The mission of these systems has evolved over the years, initially addressing the protection of individuals with developmental disabilities who lived in institutions, to the present responsibilities related to the protection of individuals with developmental disabilities from abuse, neglect, and exploitation, and from the violation of their legal and human rights, both in institutions and other community settings.

The 1975 reauthorization of the DD Act also established funding for Projects of National Significance. Through this new authority Congress authorizes funding for initiatives to address areas of national importance. Over the years, projects related to individuals with developmental disabilities and their treatment in the criminal justice system, their experiences with home ownership, in employment, their use of assistive technology, and their involvement in self-advocacy have been supported through Projects of National Significance.

The legislation before us today, S. 1809, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1999 builds on the past successes of these programs. Additionally, this bill reflects today's changing society and seeks to provide a foundation for the services and supports that individuals with developmental disabilities, their families, and communities need as we enter the next century. Let me take a moment to highlight the major provisions of this legislation.

S. 1809 continues a tradition of support for DD programs in each State including DD Councils, Protection and Advocacy Systems, and University Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and Service. The purpose of the DD programs in each State is to engage in advocacy, capacity building, and systemic change activities related to improving the quality of life for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. This legislation seeks to ensure that individuals with developmental disabilities are able to fully participate in and contribute to their communities through full integration and inclusion in the economic, political, social, cultural, and educational mainstream of our Nation. It also assists DD Act programs to improve the range and quality of supports and services for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families regardless of where they choose to live.

This legislation recognizes that individuals with developmental disabilities often have multiple, evolving, life long needs that require services and supports from agencies and organizations that offer specialized and generic forms of assistance in their communities. The nature of the needs of these individuals and the capacity of States and communities to respond to them have changed. In the past 5 years, new strategies for reaching, engaging, and assisting individuals with developmental disabilities have gained visibility and credibility. These state of the art strategies are reinforced by and reflected in this bill.

This bill also recognizes that individuals with developmental disabilities often are at greater risk of abuse, neglect, financial and sexual exploitation, and the violation of their legal and human rights, than the general population. Based upon this recognition, the bill supports the extra effort and attention needed, in both individual and systemic situations, to ensure that individuals with developmental disabilities are at no greater risk of harm than others in the general population.

In the past, the Councils, P&A Systems, and Centers have been authorized to provide advocacy, capacity building, and systemic change activities to make access to and navigation through various service systems easier for individuals with developmental disabilities. Over time there has been pressure for these three programs to provide assistance beyond the limit of their resources and beyond their authorized missions. The bill clearly and concisely specifies the roles and responsibilities of Councils, P&A Systems, and Centers so that there is a common understanding of what the programs are intended to contribute toward a State's efforts to respond to the needs of individuals with developmental disabilities and their families.

S. 1809 gives States' Councils, P&A Systems, and Centers increased flexibility. Each program in a State, working with stakeholders, is to develop goals for how to assure that individuals with developmental disabilities and their families participate in the design of and have access to needed community services, individualized supports, and other forms of assistance that promote self-determination, independence, productivity, integration, and inclusion in all facets of community life. Goals may be set in any of the following areas of emphasis: quality assurance, education and early intervention, child care, health, employment, housing, transportation, recreation, or other community services.

Consistent with Congressional emphasis on strengthening accountability for all Federal programs, this legislation requires each program to determine, before undertaking a goal, how that goal will be measured. The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is to develop indicators of progress to evaluate how the three programs in each State have engaged in activities to promote and achieve the purposes of the Act. In particular, the Secretary is to monitor how the three programs funded in each State coordinate their efforts, and how that coordination affects the quality of supports and services for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families in that State. In doing so Congress recognizes that the programs funded under the DD Act do not have day to day responsibility for the outcomes of the programs directly serving people with developmental disabilities in their States. Therefore, Congressional intent is that the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services develop measures regarding the quality of program activities funded under Title I of this bill, to provide accountability in the areas of advocacy, capacity building, and systems changes as they relate to the areas of emphasis defined in Section 102(2), and that these measures are consistent with the purposes and policies articulated in Section 101.

In recent years, a clearer picture has emerged of what individuals with developmental disabilities are able to accomplish, with the appropriate support, when they have access to the same choices and opportunities available to others. There has been increasing recognition of and support for self-advocacy organizations established by and for individuals with developmental disabilities, particularly individuals with cognitive disabilities. This bill reflects and promotes such efforts by authorizing DD Councils to support the establishment and strengthening of at least one statewide self-advocacy organization for individuals with developmental disabilities in each State. It also authorizes national technical assistance for self advocacy organizations.

In addition to S. 1809 renaming the University Affiliated Programs as University Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and Service, this legislation expands Centers' responsibilities to include the conduct of research, authorizes National Training Initiatives on Critical and Emerging Needs, and links the Centers to create a National Network. In doing so Congress recognizes that Centers have a long history of providing state of the art community education and training in a variety of areas related to improving the capacity of communities to meet the needs of individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. It is the intention of Congress that Centers will continue to provide this training. It is also Congress' intention to recognize and utilize the capacity of all Centers to meet critical and emerging training needs in accordance with Sections 152(c) and 153(b). It also anticipates that Congress will authorize Centers to meet other emerging and critical training and research needs related to individuals with developmental disabilities through other legislation.

By administering the three programs specifically authorized under the DD Act and by funding Projects of National Significance to accomplish similar or complementary efforts, the Administration on Developmental Disabilities (ADD) in HHS plays a critical role in supporting and fostering new ways to assist individuals with developmental disabilities and their families, and in promoting system integration to expand and improve community services for individuals with disabilities. The bill provides ADD with the ability to foster similar efforts across the Executive Branch. It authorizes ADD to pursue and join with other Executive Branch entities in activities that will improve choices, opportunities, and services for individuals with developmental disabilities and to fully utilize the potential of the entities authorized under title I to achieve these goals. Since this bill adds new responsibilities for tracking accountability and collaboration which may trigger the need for additional resources, Section 163(b)(2) authorizes funds for administrative purposes. The intent is that these funds supplement, but not supplant existing administrative funds provided to ADD.

I would like to thank Senator HARKIN, and Senators FRIST and WELLSTONE for drafting provisions in Title II and Title III, respectively. Title II of this legislation addresses the critical need for family support for families of individuals with severe disabilities. The bill authorizes grants (one, 3-year grant per State, on a competitive basis) to assist States to provide services to families who choose to keep their children with disabilities at home. It gives support to States' efforts to assist families. Family support services are cost effective in reducing the costs associated with life-long disability, and in preventing the expense of out-of-home placement. Such services allow individuals with disabilities to stay at home with their families.

Title II gives flexibility and authority to States in the design of statewide systems of family support services for families of children with disabilities. Family support activities supported through this bill should be family-centered and family-directed. This means families of children with disabilities have control over decisions relating to the supports that will meet the priorities of their family, and participate in the planning, development, implementation, and evaluation of the statewide system of family support.

When applying for a grant, States are expected to demonstrate the nature and extent of the involvement of families of children with disabilities and individuals with disabilities in the development of the application and in the development, implementation, and evaluation of the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities.

The bill requires States to designate a lead entity that will coordinate activities funded under the grant. The lead agency should have the capacity to promote a statewide system of family support services that is family-centered and family-directed; to promote and implement systems change activities; and to maximize access to public and private funds for family support services for families of children with disabilities. The application should also designate the involvement of other State or local agencies, including local councils, in both the preparation of the application and the continuing role of each agency in the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities.

This legislation also gives States maximum flexibility in selecting activities they will implement in providing family support services for families of children with disabilities, including populations who are unserved or underserved. Activities may include training and technical assistance; the development or strengthening of family-centered and family-directed approaches to services, including service coordination services, service planning services, and respite care services; and assistance to families of children with disabilities in accessing natural and community supports and in obtaining benefits and services. A State may also conduct needs assessments; evaluations of data related to the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities; or pilot demonstration projects to demonstrate new approaches to the provision of family support services for families of children with disabilities.

Title III recognizes and responds to a national need to increase the number of, and improve the training for, direct support workers who assist individuals with developmental disabilities where they live, work, go to school, and engage in other aspects of community life, consistent and in coordination with title I of this legislation. Title III acknowledges that direct support workers play essential roles in providing the support that individuals with developmental disabilities need, and in expanding community options for these individuals.

Section 303 of title III authorizes the Reaching Up Scholarships Program to encourage continuing education for individuals who provide direct support to individuals with developmental disabilities. This scholarship program authorizes vouchers of up to $2,000 to an eligible direct support worker. Recipients of these vouchers will be direct support workers who assist individuals with developmental disabilities in a wide range of settings. This grant program will be administered through institutions of higher education, State agencies, or consortia of such institutions or agencies. It will enable direct support workers to access training related to providing state of the art supports and services to individuals with developmental disabilities and their families.

Title III, section 304 of this legislation provides funding for the development, evaluation, and dissemination of a staff development curriculum, and related guidelines for computer-assisted, competency-based, multi-media, interactive instruction to provide staff development for individuals in direct service roles with people with developmental disabilities and their families. Title III also recognizes the potential contribution of individuals with developmental disabilities who themselves may choose to become direct service providers. This state of the art curriculum will allow direct service workers, including those with limited levels of literacy, access to and participation in, state of the art training that reflects the principles articulated in title I, particularly the principles of self-determination, independence, productivity, integration, and inclusion of individuals with developmental disabilities in all aspects of community life. The curriculum will also address the use of positive supports and interventions as alternatives to the use of aversive treatment, particularly the inappropriate use of restraint and seclusion with individuals with developmental disabilities across the age span and in a variety of settings. The curriculum will be fully field-tested, evaluated, and nationally disseminated.

Throughout the country, the DD Act programs have a long history of achievement. In Vermont, the DD Act programs make on-going contributions to major initiatives affecting individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. They play significant roles in many of Vermont's accomplishments, including: the inclusion of children with severe disabilities into local schools and classrooms; early intervention and family leadership initiatives that are national models; and innovative programs in the areas of employment, and community living options for individuals with developmental disabilities. Based upon the letters our office has received from across the country, it is clear that these DD programs make substantial, positive differences in all States.

S. 1809 is bi-partisan, balanced, and responsive legislation that reflects months of discussion and collaboration among individuals and organizations representing a full range of opinion. I would like to recognize the contributions of the numerous disability and advocacy groups that provided public input, especially the Developmental Disabilities Task Force of the Consortium for Citizens with Disabilities and their co-chairs, who have worked with staff over nine months to develop this legislation.

I would like to thank Senate staff including Connie Garner from Senator KENNEDY's staff, Katie Corrigan and Tom Hlavacek from Senator HARKIN's staff, Dave Larson from Senator FRIST's staff, Cheryl Chambers from Senator WELLSTONE's staff, and Liz King from the Senate Legislative Counsel. I would also like to thank staff from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services including Sue Swenson, Reggie Wells, and Elsbeth Wyatt from the Administration on Developmental Disabilities, and Barbara Clark and Amy Lockhart from the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Legislation. And finally, I would like to thank my own HELP Committee staff particularly Pat Morrissey, Lu Zeph, Leah Menzies, Heidi Scheuermann, and Mark Powden who worked long and hard on this legislation.

S. 1809 continues a long tradition of Congressional support for individuals with developmental disabilities, their families, and their communities and ensures that this support will continue to meet their needs into the next century. I ask my colleagues to join me today in voting to pass this bill out of the Senate.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I support the passage of Senate Bill 1809, the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1999.

As the chief sponsor of the Americans with Disabilities Act and the former chair of the Senate Subcommittee on Disability Policy, I take a particular interest in the Developmental Disabilities Act, which has been a cornerstone of our national policy for people with disabilities. In fact, the Supreme Court cited the Developmental Disabilities Act in the recent Olmstead decision as evidence of Congress' intent that people with disabilities should have the choice to receive services in the community.

The entities funded under the Act—the Developmental Disabilities Councils, University Affiliated Programs, and the Protection and Advocacy systems—have enabled us to move away from a service system that denied people with disabilities the choice to receive services where families and individuals want them—in their own homes, communities, and neighborhoods.

This year's reauthorization is very important for several reasons. First, we must continue our progress toward ensuring that people with developmental disabilities achieve their maximum potential through increased self-determination, independence, productivity, and integration in all facets of life.

Second, we must ensure that people with developmental disabilities are free from abuse and neglect in all aspects of the service delivery system. This bill will help protect people with disabilities from abuse and neglect no matter where they live—inside an institution or in the community.

And finally, we must do more to strengthen and support families as they provide care and support to family members with a disability. Family caregivers are the true heroes of our long-term care system. In Title II of this bill, Congress lends support to State efforts to give individuals with disabilities the choice to stay at home, with their families.

I thank Senator JEFFORDS for acknowledging my strong interest and contributions to this important title. This Family Support grant program gives flexibility and authority to the States in designing statewide systems of family support services for families of children with disabilities. It is our intention that all activities conducted under the Family Support program should be family-centered and family-directed. This means that services and programs should facilitate the full participation and control by families of children with disabilities in decisions relating to the supports that will meet the priorities of the family; and in the planning, development, implementation, and evaluation of the statewide system of family support.

We have given States the flexibility of defining what Family Support services will be provided. Family Support services should lead to the integration and inclusion of children with disabilities and their families in the use and participation of the same community resources that are used by and available to other individuals and families.

Family Support services may include help with service coordination; the provision of goods and services such as specialized evaluations and diagnostic services, adaptive equipment, respite care, personal assistance services, homemaker and chore services, behavioral supports, assistive technology services and devices, permanency and future planning, home and vehicle modifications and repairs, equipment and consumable supplies, transportation, specialized nutrition and clothing, counseling and mental health services, family education and training services, communication services, crisis intervention, daycare and child care for a child with a disability, supports and services for integrated and inclusive community activities, parent or family member support groups, peer support, sitter service or companion service, education aids; and financial assistance, which may include cash subsidies, allowances, voucher or reimbursement systems, low-interest loans, or lines of credit.

A statewide system of Family Support Services means a system that is family-centered and family-directed, and that assists and enables families to receive rights and procedural safeguards and to gain access to social, medical, legal, educational, and other supports and services; and that include follow along services that ensure that the changing needs of the child and family are met; the coordination and monitoring of services provided to the family; the provision of information to children with disabilities and their families about the availability of services, and assistance to such children and their families in obtaining appropriate services; and the facilitation and organization of existing social networks and natural sources of support, and community resources and services.

Such a statewide system should also be culturally competent, community-centered, and comprehensive so that it addresses the needs of all families of children with disabilities, including unserved and underserved populations; and addresses such needs without regard to the age, type of disability, race, ethnicity, or gender of such children or the major life activity for which such children need the assistance.

When applying for a grant, States should demonstrate the nature and extent of the involvement of families of children with disabilities and individuals with disabilities in the development of the application, including the involvement of unserved and underserved populations; and in strategies for actively involving families of children with disabilities and individuals with disabilities in the development, implementation, and evaluation of the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities. In the application, States should also describe the unmet needs for family support for families of children with disabilities in the State.

When applying for a grant, States should designate a lead entity that will coordinate activities funded under the grant with activities of other relevant State and local agencies. The lead agency should have the capacity to promote a statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities throughout the State that is family-centered and family-directed; to promote and implement systems change activities; and to maximize access to public and private funds for family support services for families of children with disabilities. The application should also designate the involvement of other State or local agencies, including local councils, in the preparation of the application and the continuing role of each agency in the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities.

We have given States maximum flexibility in selecting activities they will implement in providing family support services for families of children with disabilities. The State may support training and technical assistance activities for family members, service providers, community members, professionals, students, and others to increase family participation, choice, and control in the provision of family support services for families of children with disabilities; to develop or strengthen family-centered and family-directed approaches to services, including service coordination services, service planning services, and respite care services; and to assist families of children with disabilities in accessing natural and community supports and in obtaining benefits and services.

A State may conduct needs assessments, evaluations of data related to the statewide system of family support for families of children with disabilities, or pilot demonstration projects to demonstrate new approaches to the provision of family support services for families of children with disabilities. A State may also support activities to identify and coordinate Federal and State policies, resources, and services, relating to the provision of family support services for families of children with disabilities, including interagency activities and agreements.

In addition, a State may conduct outreach activities to locate families who are eligible for family support services for families of children with disabilities; to solicit input from such families; and to identify groups who are unserved and underserved. Such activities may involve the creation or maintenance of, support of, or provision of, assistance to statewide and community parent organizations, and organizations that provide family support to families of children with disabilities; the dissemination of relevant information; and other education activities.

In closing, I remind my colleagues that the toughest barriers faced by people with disabilities are not architectural, they are attitudinal. They are not in the environment, they are in our hearts and in our minds. When people with disabilities are integrated throughout our communities, we are given the opportunity to change our attitudes from ones based on stereotypes, fear, and ignorance, to ones based on admiration, acceptance, and affection.

In this way, the Developmental Disabilities Act benefits all of us. Not only are people with disabilities assisted in taking their rightful place in the mainstream of American society. Not only are families that include a child with a disability given access to the supports, resources, and services needed to maintain family unity. But in the process, we all gain from the opportunity to experience people with developmental disabilities as friends, as neighbors, as co-workers, as classmates.

I especially thank Senator JEFFORDS and Senator KENNEDY for their leadership on this issue, and I am glad to join so many of my colleagues from the HELP Committee as a co-sponsor of this legislation.
