GREENING THE GOVERNMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise today to offer the "Greening the Government Act of 2000." This bill would allow the Federal Government to use its purchasing power to conserve natural resources, create markets for the materials that the American people recycle in their home and office recycling programs, and reduce the toxicity of products commonly used by establishing an infrastructure for coordinating and expanding Federal recycling and "green" purchasing activities.

The Federal Government spends $275 billion each year buying goods and services. With this immense purchasing power, and through its research, development and assistance programs, it can influence markets to create more environmentally friendly products. Indeed, I believe that the Federal Government should be a leader in demonstrating how organizations can meet their mission in a cost-effective and environmentally protective way.

Tomorrow, we will celebrate America Recycles Day. Millions of Americans will re-dedicate themselves to recycling and, more importantly, closing the recycling loop by buying recycled content products. Hundreds of American companies are also recognizing the importance and cost-effectiveness of "greening" their operations. For instance, in my State of New Jersey, Telecordia Technologies has saved more than $3 million by recycling 72 percent of its waste. Telecordia saves $4,000 per week by simply replacing disposable cafeteria trays with recycled content plastic trays. I believe that the Federal Government can also achieve similar savings by "greening" its operations and encouraging environmental innovation. Indeed, the Federal Government's purchasing decisions can tremendously affect the environment we leave to future generations.

Building on the progress made during the past seven years under President Clinton's Executive Order 13101, "Greening the Government through Waste Prevention, Recycling, and Federal Acquisition," the Greening the Government Act of 2000 will establish a permanent infrastructure for coordinating, promoting, and expanding Federal recycling and "green" procurement activities. Under this legislation, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will designate both recycled content products and environmentally
