

agree, and not be in a minority. Dr. Joab M. Lesesne, Jr. has not only headed Wofford College with distinction for 28 years, but he has brought luster to the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities as its Chairman. A man of many talents, Joe served as a general in the South Carolina National Guard and is presently Chairman of the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources Governing Board. Dr. Shi, the eminent President of Furman University, cites this record better than I in a recent editorial in the Greenville News. I ask that the editorial be reprinted in the RECORD.

The material follows:

JOE LESESNE STANDS AS A TRUE AMERICAN HERO

(By David Shi)

In an age with few heroes, it becomes even more important to honor those who stand above the crowd. Last week, Furman University had the privilege of bestowing an honorary doctoral degree on Joab Lesesne, the recently retired president of Wofford College. He had served it well—with a special genius that everyone observed yet no one can define.

Joe Lesesne was raised on a college campus. His father, a Wofford graduate, served as president of Erskine College. After graduating from Erskine, the younger Lesesne went on to earn his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in history from the University of South Carolina. He began his career at Wofford in 1964 as an assistant professor of history, and he soon distinguished himself in the classroom. Lesesne was a luminous teacher who made the past shine with interest and significance.

Professor Lesesne was appointed assistant dean in 1967. Soon thereafter, he implemented the college's interim term, a four-week winter learning program that has become an indispensable part of a Wofford education. He later became director of development and then dean of the college. In 1972, at the ripe age of 34, he was named Wofford's ninth president.

Lesesne quickly realized that going from the faculty to the presidency means abandoning righteousness for pragmatism. He also discovered that a college president needs the endurance of an athlete, the wisdom of a Solomon and the courage of a lion. But perhaps most important is to have the stomach of a goat in order to accommodate all of the civic club luncheons, campus banquets and meals-on-the-run.

As a resolute champion of the distinctive virtues of residential liberal arts colleges, Lesesne led Wofford through a remarkable era of progress, change and achievement. The college's endowment soared during his long tenure, new buildings were constructed, and he helped attract a stronger, more diverse faculty and student body. Along the way, President Lesesne displayed extraordinary composure and resilience. Hard to surprise and even harder to shock, he displayed the magnanimity of a saint in dealing with complaints and crises.

President Lesesne became a leader of national prominence within the higher education community. He was the first Southerner to chair the board of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, and he headed the council of presidents of South Carolina's private colleges. In addition, he is a retired major general in the South Carolina Army National Guard, and he continues to chair the South Carolina Commission on Natural Resources.

Yet the real value of a career can sometimes be better gauged by a person's character than by a public portfolio. Joe Lesesne is a genial representative of a fast vanishing world of grace, civility, loyalty, faith and moral rectitude. A warm man with a big heart, he has no enemies—even among those who disagree with him. Known for his casual intensity and refreshing humility, he loves to tell stories and to catch fish.

For almost 30 years as a college president, Joe Lesesne manifested unshaken nerve, rescuing wit, and, above all, a love for Wofford that has never waned. He had a special affection for students. He teased them, entertained them, inspired them and guided them. They responded with equal affection.

It has been invigorating for those of us still in our age of impetuous vanities to associate with such a wise colleague. I cannot imagine anyone more effective at helping the people of this state appreciate the important role played by Wofford and the other private liberal arts colleges. Joe Lesesne is one of those refreshing people who prefers to grin rather than scowl, banter rather than pontificate. What a wonderful mentor he has been to me and many others.

In his compassionate awareness of others, in his instinctive respect for them, in his declared willingness to help, in his courtesy, tolerance and gentleness, Joe Lesesne demonstrated that the highest intelligence is at its most fertile and expressive when allied to the deepest humanity. As to all of these traits, he has provided us the great gift of his example. Blessed are those who perform good works and earn our respect and admiration. Thanks, Joe.●

NATIONAL BLUE RIBBON SCHOOLS IN MARYLAND

● Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am pleased to congratulate and welcome to our Nation's Capitol the two middle schools and two high schools from Maryland that have been named Blue Ribbon School Award winners by the United States Department of Education. These schools are among only 198 middle and high schools nationwide to be honored with this award, the most prestigious national school recognition for public and private schools.

The designation as a Blue Ribbon School is a ringing endorsement of the successful techniques which enable the students of these schools to succeed and achieve. Over the past few years, I have made a commitment to visit the Blue Ribbon Schools and have always been delighted to see first hand the interaction between parents, teachers, and the community, which strongly contributed to the success of the school. I look forward to visiting each of these four schools and congratulating the students, teachers and staff personally for this exceptional accomplishment.

According to the Department of Education, Blue Ribbon Schools have been judged to be particularly effective in meeting local, state and national goals. These schools also display the qualities of excellence that are necessary to prepare our young people for the challenges of the next century. Blue Ribbon status is awarded to schools which have strong leadership; a clear vision and sense of mission that is shared by all connected with the school; high quality teaching; challenging, up-to-date curriculum; policies and practices that ensure a safe environment conducive to learning; a solid commitment to family involvement; evidence that the school helps all students achieve high standards; and a commitment to share the best practices with other schools.

After a screening process by each State Department of Education, the Department of Defense Dependent Schools, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and the Council for American Private Education, the Blue Ribbon School nominations were forwarded to the U.S. Department of Education. A panel of outstanding educators from around the country then reviewed the nominations, selected schools for site visits, and made recommendations to Secretary of Education Richard Riley.

The four winning Maryland secondary schools are as follows:

Baltimore City College High School: founded in 1839 is the third oldest public high school in the country. A college preparatory magnet high school emphasizing the liberal arts and serving students and parents in Baltimore, City College sends 95 percent of its graduates to post-secondary institutions and, in doing so, has played a part in the American dream—preparing students to succeed in college as well as giving them day-to-day experience in working with people of all backgrounds to lead in the community.

Bel Air Middle School: located in Harford County, is a high-performing model of teaching and learning because of its outstanding academic programs and the high level of commitment from teachers, students, local businesses, and parents. Bel Air Middle School has developed an integrated assessment program entitled, "Student Achievement and Improvement through Lifelong Learning", SAIL, which has been recognized nationally by the National Council of Teachers of English. Additionally, Bel Air Middle School has a literacy Team, which provides the faculty with ongoing professional development, particularly in the areas of reading and writing.

Paint Branch High School: in Burtonsville, Montgomery County, offers a dynamic and innovative whole-school signature program in science and the media. In addition to delivering a rigorous, comprehensive high school program with a full complement of honors and advanced placement classes and additional support related, community service, and extra-curricular experiences emphasizing research and experimentation. Several business partnerships support the largest internship program in the county, with nearly 170 students this year earning credit at such sites as the National Institutes of Health, Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, Discovery Communication, Inc., and Black Entertainment Television.

Plum Point Middle School: in Huntingtown, Calvert County, exhibits enthusiasm and strength which grows from school-wide philosophy that considers each member valuable and every minute important. Students are encouraged to participate in a variety of educational and extracurricular activities. Over 75 percent of its students are involved in after-school activities. The school has been county athletic champion 13 times in various sports. Over 20 percent of the teaching staff have been award winners—including Maryland's 1999 Teacher of the Year, Rachael Younkens.●

RECOGNITION OF CLAIRE HOWARD

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize Ms. Claire Howard of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania who will serve as President of the USA Council of Serra International next year. This is a most noteworthy accomplishment, as she is the first woman ever to serve in this high capacity. I would like to insert the following article into the RECORD, which was printed in the Allentown Diocese Times on August 3, 2000:

Claire Howard of Bethlehem was installed as President-Elect by United States Serra clubs at the annual Serra International Convention in Kansas City. She will serve a one-year term as President-Elect on the USA/Canada Council Board. In 2001, she will become the first woman President of not only the USA Council, but also the first in Serra International's 65-year history.

As President-Elect of the USA Council (USAC) of Serra International, a worldwide organization that works to foster and promote Catholic religious vocations, she will work closely with the national staff and local Serra clubs, and assist the president as needed. She also serves as a liaison with the council's 13 standing committees.

"I'm looking forward to making sure we all really commit ourselves to the ministry of building up the body of Christ through our Serran work," Howard said.

A charter member of the Serra Club of Bethlehem, Howard has served two years as club President. An active member over the years, she has served on almost all the standing committees.

Her future seat as president is not Howard's only "first" in Serra International; she has trail-blazed the way for women in Serra for years, ascending steadily through the ranks of the organizational structure. In 1993, she was the first woman to serve as District Governor of Serra International and in 1994 became the first regional representative (again the first woman) of Region 3 of the then newly formed USA/Canada Council of Serra International.

She has chaired USACC's Meetings and Conventions Committee, which is responsible for coordination of the fall regional conventions in the 13 regions of the United States and Canada. In recent years she has served as USA Council Vice President for the Membership and Programs committees.

For the past six years, she has been the Coordinator of the Serra Clubs of the Allentown Diocese's "Life/Vocation Awareness Weekend," working closely with diocesan Director of Vocations the Rev. Francis A. Nave. The weekend offers any adult who would like to explore the possibilities of entering the priesthood or a religious order a time of reflection, prayer and interaction with priests and religious [leaders].

Howard was also appointed by the Most Rev. Edward P. Cullen, D.D., Bishop of Allentown, to be the Serran representative for the Allentown Diocese Vocation Recruitment Committee.

An active member of St. Anne Church, Bethlehem, she serves as a Eucharistic minister, lector and coordinator of the adult Bible study group. Howard's community work includes active membership in Morning Star Rotary; sustaining membership in the Junior League of the Lehigh Valley; Bethlehem Palette Club; and Bethlehem Quota Club.

She works as a full-time associate real estate broker with RE/MAX 100 Real Estate of the Greater Lehigh Valley. She is married to John J. Howard Jr., and they have three grown children. They divide their spare time between a small home in Orlando, Fla. and a season home in Stone Harbor, N.J.

The USA Council was formed officially June 1, 1994, as a national council for all Serra clubs in the United States and originally included clubs in Canada. The USA Council represents Serra International in the United States and is committed to its mission.

As Serra International is the lay vocations arm of the church, the council's mission is to foster and affirm vocations to the ministerial priesthood and vowed religious life in America, and through this ministry, further their members' common Catholic faith.

The council's primary purpose is to establish communication links between the Catholic Church hierarchy, Serra clubs and local Serrans to effectively distribute information, coordinate vocations programs and activities, and promote membership growth in the two countries. There are 12,585 Serrans in 313 Serra clubs in more than 100 dioceses in the United States.

Serra International, founded in 1935 in Seattle, Washington, is a Catholic membership organization of lay men and women who work to promote vocations to the priesthood and religious life while developing their Catholic identity. There are more than 22,000 Serrans organized into 732 clubs in 35 countries throughout the world.●

RECOGNITION OF MS. SUE DILLON, FOUNDER AND PRESIDENT OF TAIL'S END FARM ANIMAL RESCUE

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, it is at this time that I would like to recognize Ms. Sue Dillon for her efforts as founder and president of Tail's End Farm Animal Rescue. Ms. Dillon started this organization to save horses from going to slaughter and focused on finding them good homes.

In 1993, she realized that there were no organizations or facilities in Pennsylvania to accommodate homeless farm animals needing shelter. Consequently, in order to save the lives of these animals, Ms. Dillon decided that she would take on the challenge of providing a safe haven for these animals. In 1996, she discovered that she needed to turn her facility into a full-scale, no-kill, animal facility. She obtained a non-profit status, the correct licences and opened her doors to cats, dogs, and any other homeless animals.

Although Ms. Dillon has volunteers to run the farm, help with adoption, and other facets of the operation, she remains to be a huge part of the Rescue. She continues to be actively involved with the everyday operations of the organization.

I would like to take this opportunity to recognize Sue Dillon in taking the lead to provide a safe haven for many of these animals. She is an exemplary citizen, and I applaud her efforts on this issue.●

RECOGNITION OF HOT PINK PITTSBURGH DANCE RECITAL

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the fundraiser Hot Pink Pittsburgh, a collaboration of Family Health Council and Pink Ribbons Project Dancers in Motion Against Breast Cancer, which will increase the awareness of breast cancer, its treatment and prevention. The event will raise funds to provide essential health care services to a growing number of uninsured women in Pennsylvania.

Hot Pink Pittsburgh will take the stage of the Byham Theater on October 2, 2000 to showcase performers and increase community awareness and appreciation. Dancers from the Pittsburgh Ballet Theater, Dance Alloy, Shona Sharif African Dance and Drum Ensemble and Hope Stone Dance as well as members of the Pittsburgh Symphony will donate their performances for the benefit.

This event will help Family Health Council provide annual exams, breast and cervical cancer screening and health education. Early detection and treatment gives women their best chance of breast cancer survival, while cervical cancer is preventable with screening and treatment.

Family Health Council, founded in 1971, serves more than 100,000 women and their families in western Pennsylvania every year. As a non-profit organization you provide gynecological and obstetric care; breast and cervical cancer screening; comprehensive nutrition services; nationally recognized teen pregnancy prevention resources; domestic and international adoption; and applied research in women's health. Family Health Council also administers a network of more than 20 community-based health care organizations. Your organization is supported by patient fees, private and public grants, and individual gifts.

I commend the efforts of the Family Health Council and Pink Ribbon Project Dancers in Motion Against Breast Cancer as well as those so dedicated to increasing the awareness of breast cancer, its treatment and prevention.●

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 12:00 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Niland, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:
