

Beth Israel experienced its humble beginning a century ago, when a small group of women known as the Daughters of Israel raised $4,000 to open Beth Israel Hospital on the corner of Kinney and High Streets in Newark.

The Beth quickly outgrew its original quarters and moved to its present location in 1928. In the ensuing decades Newark Beth Israel grew and changed in order to adapt to the community's needs, and was the site of numerous medical breakthroughs. During a Founders Day celebration which officially marked the 100th anniversary of the signing of the hospital's original charter, employees and physicians were joined by Paul A. Mertz, Executive Director; Robert Marks, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; and Lester M. Bornstein, former President of The Beth in signing replicas of the original charter. Victor Parsonnet, M.D., signed a replica of the original charter next to the name of his grandfather, Victor Parsonnet, M.D. Dr. Parsonnet's two grandfathers (the other is Max Danzik, M.D. were among the founders of Newark Beth Israel Hospital in 1901. Lester Bornstein, former President of Newark Beth Israel who served the medical center for 36 years, also signed the charter. The charter is being displayed in the lobby during the Centennial events.

Throughout this year, there will be numerous events scheduled to celebrate the Centennial, including monthly historical displays; a parade in conjunction with the center's Annual Fall Health Fair; a commemorative quilt with the theme "A Century of Caring"; in-hospital theme days, held once a month to celebrate each decade of the 20th century; group outings and contests for employees and physicians; and an Alumni Day to welcome back retired and former employees of the Medical Center. The Centennial celebration will also include several major events: Visionaries in Medicine Science: A Series of Symposia Celebrating the Centennial of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center presenting on the topics "Healthcare and Cultural Diversity," "Cardiovascular Disorders," "Dentistry," "Pediatrics," "Nursing," "Renal Medicine" and "Genetics and Molecular Biology."

Mr. Speaker, in celebration of the important role that The Beth has played in our community throughout the decades, there will be a Centennial Gala at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center on Saturday, October 6, 2001. Let us join in offering our congratulations and best wishes for continued success to the entire Newark Beth Israel community—the medical and nursing staffs, the ancillary services and administration, the Auxiliary and of course, the many dedicated volunteers who give so generously of their time and talent.

TRIBUTE TO AURELIO VALDEZ

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 21, 2001

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Aurelio Valdez for over a decade's worth of hard work and community service. For 27 years, Aurelio Valdez strove to improve the lives of an often overlooked segment of our American society, the mentally handicapped.

As the Superintendent of the Corpus Christi State School, Mr. Valdez labored to reconnect the Texas citizenry with the lives of the mentally impaired residents of the school. For 12 years, Mr. Valdez worked as the Superintendent of the Corpus Christi State School, and during that time, he helped to provide normalized living conditions for the school's three hundred eighty-seven resident students.

By helping to change people's perceptions of those suffering from mental illness, Aurelio became not only a respected educator and healer, but an architect of a unified Corpus Christi community.

Aurelio joined the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in 1974, and has received constant praise for his contributions to the improvements in care for those suffering from mental retardation and mental disease. He is noted around the State School as an innovator and a leader. Ray is one of those special people who sees what he is doing less as a job, and more as a labor of love.

A hero in the shadows, Aurelio urged his employees to step into the limelight and take credit for the work he encouraged from them. This life-long caregiver retires not only with the respect and admiration of his colleagues, but with a vow that he will continue to assist the mentally challenged in reaching their goals.

I am proud to have had the opportunity to serve with such a dedicated servant of the people on a number of health and education issues. With his retirement, Corpus Christi and the rest of Texas lose a leader, an inspiring educator, and a shining example of American patriotism.

I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring a great and generous man, Aurelio Valdez, as he retires from a lifetime of dedicated service to the Coastal Bend, to Texas and to the United States.

THE AMARONE FAMILY

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 21, 2001

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, is my great honor to rise today to pay tribute to a truly amazing family of my hometown neighborhood: the Amarones of New Haven, Connecticut. Now over two hundred strong, the Amarones have long been a legend in the Wooster Square neighborhood and have held the distinction of having the largest family in New Haven since 1938.

Their story begins in 1911 when twenty-one year old Josephine arrived in the United States and met Andrew Amarone on Wooster Street. It was there that they were married and there that they made their home. It was also where their seventeen children were born and where two of their children died. Twenty-two years separates oldest son John from their youngest son Nicolo and one can only imagine the schedule Josephine and Andrew kept. Raising seventeen children through the hardest of economic times, I am still amazed at all they were able to accomplish living on the wages Andrew received as a polisher at Sargents, an architectural hardware factory where many immigrants were employed—averaging between fourteen and twenty five dollars a week.

Throughout this last century, the Amarones have lost a number of their loved ones like Benny who was killed at Iwo Jima for which he was posthumously awarded the Silver Star. Many others will be remembered this weekend when New Haven will be host to an Amarone family reunion where over one hundred and twenty family members from across the United States are expected to attend.

The Amarones are an incredible family with a rich history and a reflection of times past. Generations to come will continue in their strong traditions and will be a bright beacon for the future. In a time when family values are under close scrutiny, it is families like the Amarones that we look to for inspiration. It is my honor and privilege to recognize the Amarone family as they gather to celebrate their first family reunion and to extend my very best wishes to them all.

IN APPRECIATION OF THE VETERANS OF NEW YORK'S SECOND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

HON. STEVE ISRAEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 21, 2001

Mr. ISRAEL. Mr. Speaker, on September 17, as the smoke still rose above the site of a terrorist attack on America, I convened a meeting of veterans throughout New York's Second Congressional District. I wanted to hear from them, firsthand, how our Nation should respond at this fateful moment in our history.

I asked for their opinions because these are the men and women who have already seen battle. They have already responded to America's call. They have already paid a price for freedom . . . and many saw their comrades pay an eternal price.

Mr. Speaker, this group of veterans was unified on two essential points which I share with my colleagues in Congress today.

First, the American people, the Congress, and the administration must provide our armed forces with the sustained support they will need to ensure that no terrorist has the capability of inflicting damage on America ever again. Not at any time. Not in any place. Never again. That means pursuing justice until we clean every cave, every tunnel, and every training base where terrorists threaten our country.

Second, we must understand our obligation to our armed forces as we send them into battle . . . and after they return home. There's been a lot of talk about postponing America's domestic agenda. And I agree that we must be focused on our national and economic security. But as we send American troops into conflict, now is not the time to cut veterans benefits. Now is not the time to reduce services at our veterans hospitals. Now is not the time to cut health security or income security for our veterans. We must send a strong message to our armed forces that when they take care of America in battle, America will take care of them in peace. The maxim of battle is "leave no soldier behind." When the battle is over, let us leave no veteran behind.

Mr. Speaker, no group of people can provide more valuable insight about the struggle to come than those who have bravely served in struggles before. I appreciate the counsel that the veterans of New York's Second Congressional District have provided.

IN SUPPORT OF CONGRESSWOMAN
BARBARA LEE

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 21, 2001

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to show my support for our colleague, Congresswoman BARBARA LEE. I am concerned about recent reports that violent threats have been directed at Ms. LEE following her vote against H.J. Res 64, which authorized the use of military force in response to the attacks of September 11.

While many of us may not agree with Congresswoman LEE's decision to vote against the authorization of the use of force, we must stand united to defend her right to vote her conscience as a Member of the United States House of Representatives. A Member's duty is to vote on behalf of their constituents and to vote with their conscience. We must rise in support of this intrinsic component of our democracy.

Just as the acts of September 11th can destroy us from without, they can also destroy us from within. As Members of Congress we must call on America to check our inflamed passions and national anger so as not to risk destroying our national unity. In recent days we have seen a spate of hate crimes against Muslims, Arab Americans and South Asian Americans. Such hate and intolerance threatens to slowly destroy the foundation of our democracy.

During this very difficult time in American history, we must demonstrate to the American people that we are strong and united beyond party lines and ideologies. Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in deploring these acts against Congresswoman LEE and supporting our democratic process.

NEW THREATS READINESS

HON. ROY BLUNT

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 21, 2001

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Speaker, reflection on the attacks at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon leads us to the inescapable conclusion that the United States must ever be ready to meet new threats that face us, regardless of their source.

During our district work period, former Congressman James W. Symington of Missouri spoke at Wilson's Creek National Battlefield for the groundbreaking on the new library at the Battlefield's visitors center. Mr. Symington's father, Senator Stuart Symington, spoke at the dedication of the National Battlefield forty years earlier. Jim Symington is now an attorney in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Symington challenged those at the dedication to consider that threats today could be met by "preventative diplomacy, the maintenance of traditional alliances, the forging of new ones, state-of-the-art intelligence capability, and sufficient countermeasures."

As we deliberate our response as a nation to the events of September 11, I urge my colleagues to consider the comments made by Mr. Symington.

UNION, RECONCILIATION, READINESS

In the words of a beloved hymn: "Time, like an ever-rolling stream, bears all its sons away. They vanish lightly as a dream fades at the break of day."

Has it really been forty years since my father stood here to dedicate this hard-won parksite as a memorial, in his words, "to a high point of valor" in our nation's history? It was a Missouri moment, just as it was a century earlier when Missourians in concert with units from neighboring states, contested and made sacred this ground in the same time frame as Bull Run in Virginia and with consequences no less significant. This morning we share another Missouri moment seven score years from the very day this

First, it signifies our precious Union; its bonds re-forged by that historic battle and so many like it over the ensuing four years. Again, in my father's words, "As we dedicate this ground, let us join our hearts and minds in prayer that this be a battlefield of the last war which will ever be fought on native Missouri or American soil". His words call to mind a speech Abe Lincoln made in 1838 to the Young Men's Lyceum in that other Springfield, Illinois: "From where", he said, "should we expect the approach of danger. Shall some transatlantic military giant step the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never! All the armies of Europe, Asia and Africa with a Bonaparte for a commander could not by force take a drink from the Ohio, or make a track on the Blue Ridge in the trial of a thousand years. No, if destruction be our lot, we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation free of men, we will live forever or die by suicide."

What a prophetic utterance—for that Illinois lawyer to make, that young but farsighted Illinois lawyer destined to help his country draw back from the brink of such suicide a quarter of a century later. By giving his own life to the rescue he confirmed the spirit he had already seeded with the appeal he made in his First Inaugural Address: "We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break, our bonds of affection."

Reconciliation—the second lesson of Wilson's Creek. Missourians answered this appeal long before Appomattox. Last spring my wife and I journeyed down the Mississippi by the Delta Queen. Stopping at Vicksburg, we visited that historic battlefield, and particularly the monument to fallen Missourians. I had not known until then that Missouri was the only state that fielded troops on both sides in that crucial campaign.

Those of you who may have seen the Ken Burns public television documentary on the Civil War will recall, I'm sure, that poignant moment, recorded on scratchy black and white movie film in 1913, the Fiftieth Anniversary of Gettysburg. The lame, white haired old survivors of that bloodletting squared off again in reenactment of Pickett's charge. The Confederate veterans, giving their now feeble rebel yell, struggled up the incline to the Union parapets where they were met not by gunfire, but the cheers and welcoming arms of their former foes. Shedding unashamed tears, they embraced, and held one another close. Had the veterans of Wilson's Creek enjoyed a similar chance to meet, the result would surely have been the same. As it is we must assume their spirits mingle kindly together and hove approvingly over us today.

Accompanying my father at the 1961 dedication was his nine-year-old grandson, my nephew, Stuart Symington IV, now a career diplomat. Dad wanted him here to implant indelibly in his mind the significance of that joint sacrifice—just as my Mother, also at the age of nine, had attended the dedication in 1914 of a monument at Gettysburg to her

Our born again Union and the new nation it forged has crossed many a perilous divide since the men in blue and gray stacked their arms, and returned to their homes in 1865. Two subsequent world wars preceded the 1961 commemoration my father addressed. The "passions and faults of human nature", as he said, coupled with the capacity of mankind to destroy itself, placed a grave burden on diplomacy, backed by a force no "transatlantic military giant" would ever dare confront. His focus was Soviet power and intent. Now nuclear proliferation, bio-chemical and other potential threats to our air, water, and cyberspace make today's challenges more complex, diverse, and unpredictable. They require preventative diplomacy, the maintenance of traditional alliances, the forging of new ones, state-of-the-art intelligence capability, and sufficient countermeasures to detect, deter, and, if necessary, overcome any threat that could arise within or beyond our borders. A daunting, multi-faceted challenge, but one which the heroes who contested this ground would expect us to meet cheerfully and without hesitation. And that is the third lesson of Wilson's Creek: Readiness, the wisdom to define it and the acceptance of the sacrifices necessary to maintain it.

Mr. Chairman, in conclusion I know I speak for my departed father, My brother Stuart, and all our family when I convey both our gratitude and warm congratulations to you every one of the remarkable men and women who dreamed, planned, designed, funded, promoted, lobbied, voted, and ultimately achieved this breathtaking memorial to Missouri's "high point of valor". It
