

Israel, I would have voted yes on this important legislation. H. Con. Res. 280 expresses solidarity with the people of Israel in the fight against terrorism.

The horrific murders of 26 innocent people by Palestinian terrorists during the weekend of December 1–2 make clear the need for all Americans to show their support for the people and Israel during this dangerous and troubled time. Our nation has no more consistent friend and ally in the international struggle against terrorism than Israel. The people of Israel set an invaluable international example with their commitment to democracy and freedom and dedication to working for peace. The people of Israel continue to pay a high price for these ideals. Their nation remains a target of a deadly and unrelenting terror campaign that is often aimed directly at young people and families. Israel deserves and needs our unwavering support at this difficult time.

I strongly support the resolution's call for the Palestinian Authority to destroy the infrastructure of Palestinian terrorist groups and to pursue and arrest terrorist whose incarceration has been called for by Israel. I strongly urge President Bush to take any and all steps to assure these goals are met, including suspending all relations with Yasir Arafat and the Palestinian Authority if necessary.

The safety and security of all people of the world who value freedom and respect the rule of law has never been more threatened. The United States and Israel must remain the closest of allies in our mutual quest to stop terrorism and work for peace. I am pleased to give H. Con. Res. 280 my unqualified support.

TRIBUTE TO ANNETTE M. RAINWATER, DEDICATED ACTIVIST AND COMMUNITY ORGANIZER

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a woman who has given her life to the pursuit of justice and equality.

Annette M. Rainwater is one of Detroit's most committed activists. She came of age at a time when our country and our democracy were at a crossroads. When Dr. King called on Americans to join together to stand up for their rights, to register voters, to fulfill the promise of democracy, she answered that call. She answered it with passion, intelligence, and faith that we could shape a better future. Not only did Annette get involved, she stayed involved. Over the years, she has held leadership positions with such organizations as the Southern Christian Leadership Council, the NAACP, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and the National Political Congress of Black Women, just to name a few. But in all of these roles, her capacity to inspire others and her determination shone through.

Annette also worked tirelessly in her community. As a precinct delegate, she knocked on countless doors and recruited many volunteers. When it came time to get out the vote, Annette was always ready to help. She has offered her skills as an organizer as well, through her roles as a Board member of the Fifteenth Democratic District Congressional Organization and Democratic Party State Central member. She has also been a dedicated public servant, serving as the chief of staff for Councilman Clyde Cleveland.

Although Annette is retiring, she will leave a legacy of activists and public servants to continue her work. She has been a mentor to many, including Llenda Jackson-Leslie, Vice President of the National Women's Political Caucus, Judge Greg Mathis, and Wayne County Commissioner Jewel Ware. These leaders and others will help keep the stories of the civil rights struggle alive—and help make sure that we move forward, and never forget where we've been.

To paraphrase Dr. Martin Luther King, the measure of a person is not where she stands in moments of comfort and convenience, but where she stands at times of challenge and controversy. During one of the most difficult times in our history, Annette Rainwater stood for justice, equality, and a future that would allow all Americans the opportunity to reach our fullest potential.

Detroit is a better place because Annette Rainwater calls it home. She has earned our thanks for her half-century of selfless dedication to creating a more just city, state and nation.

BOOK DEVELOPED BY RON MORGAN

HON. DAVE WELDON

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, Ron Morgan of Cape Canaveral, Florida, is becoming a well known expert on the U.S. flag. He has developed a comprehensive book, The American Spirit in the New Millennium, that endeavors to renew pride in our flag and to present a fair case about its legal protections, effectively countering the arguments of those who would allow our flag to be desecrated. He wants to inspire further research and study of not just the history of the flag, but United States history, law and government. I am proud that Ron Morgan is my constituent on Florida's Space Coast, and I thank him for his hard work and dedication to promote the values represented in our flag. I wish to enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a chapter from his book that was updated since the September 11 attacks:

AMERICA UNITED—A CALL TO HONOR

On January 1 in the year 2000, the entire world was transfixed as a glowing ball of light descended above Times Square, amid the cheers and adulations of over one million New Yorkers. The amazing technology of the last century provided live pictures of this joyous event to every nation in the world, as the global celebration of Y2K signaled the grand commencement of this new millennium.

On September 11 in the year 2001, the entire world was transfixed as the symbol of this new millennium, the mighty twin towers of the World Trade Center, descended in a horrendous roar of fiery steel and concrete, with the unspeakable loss of thousands of innocent men, women and children from America and from 80 sovereign nations around the globe. The amazing technology of the last century provided live pictures of this insane crime against humanity, as the world reeled in terror.

As the immensity of the horror overcame the paralyzing visual shock, people from every nation on earth truly believed they were witnessing the beginning of the end of the civilized world—or as many describe it, the Apocalypse. The bright sunshine was instantly transformed into the pitch-blackness of a moonless night by billowing clouds of black carbon, grey concrete and white ash. Clouds that had not been seen in our nation for 70 years, since the towering clouds of brown dust swept relentlessly across the Great Plains in the 1930's and turned America's heartland into America's wasteland.

Fellow human beings began to emerge from those clouds, from the darkness into the light. Some walked, some ran, some carried each other—but all moved with dignity. The eerie, ash covered figures that stepped out of those clouds into the waiting arms of the rescuers, displayed no recognizable ethnic or racial characteristics visible to the naked eye.

We were one with them, and they were ours. New York City was truly united in a heroic display of courage, self-sacrifice, and compassion.

The mightiest city on the planet was brought to its knees in seconds by an act of barbarism unparalleled in history. But as the dust settled amid the raging fires that still burned, a wondrous transformation slowly enveloped that scene of mindless carnage.

The true American spirit began to rise higher than the tall towers that once dominated the skyline of New York. It gave vibrant notice that we have suffered a grievous wound, we have lost uncounted lives, but we will not be bowed, we will endure!

The spirit of courage that drove our fearless and tireless firefighters, police officers, medical personnel and scores of civilian volunteers, who offered their own lives to save others. The spirit of help that mobilized the entire city to aid and comfort the victims, their families and the rescuers who continued to brave unrelenting danger. The spirit of prayer that brought people of all faiths together, as never before in memory.

The spirit that galvanized the entire nation, with volunteers from every state and even foreign nations streaming in New York to help in the enormous effort of recovery. The United States Congress and the Administration were truly unified for the first time since World War II. Our nation spoke with one voice, with one purpose and with one message—This terror shall not endure. Our citizens and our freedoms shall be defended and preserved. Justice under law will prevail!

And the unyielding symbol of the American spirit began to appear on the helmets and the tunics of the incredible rescue personnel. It began to appear on cabs, buses, trucks, cars and subway trains. It appeared on apartments, shop windows, buildings, houses, street signs, light poles and trees. It was worn on lapels, shirts, jackets and hats. It was carried by hand and was waved on high. It was draped on the smoldering steel frames of a once mighty edifice, as a proud badge of honor and an unmistakable pledge of resolve and perseverance in the face of unconscionable evil. The Flag of the United States of America became our rallying cry and our inspiration, just as it has countless times before in the face of tragedy and adversity. It asked nothing in return, just the chance to serve us if we needed something beyond ourselves to remind us of our goal.

There is an incredible historical mosaic that blends and intertwines the past and the present in every city, town, and village in America. That mosaic was never more vividly displayed than in the streets of downtown New York on those fateful days in September 2001.

212 years ago President George Washington knelt down in St. Paul's Chapel, nestled near the Battery on the island of Manhattan, New York. It was April 30, 1789. He had walked to St. Paul's from Federal Hall, where he had just been inaugurated as the first President of the United States. He prayed for guidance to lead a fledgling nation, with honor, into the unknown waters of a new concept of government.

On September 16, 2001 Mayor Rudy Giuliani knelt down in St. Paul's Chapel on the island of Manhattan in the area now known as Ground Zero. He prayed for guidance to lead his wounded city, with honor, in a humanitarian rescue and recovery effort of unparalleled proportions.

St. Paul's is a stone's throw from the World Trade Plaza. It was saved and preserved during the skyscraper construction that totally surrounds it, only because it was listed on the Historic Registry! The twin towers rained down million of tons of debris that rocked the ground with the force of an earthquake. Loose steel and concrete tore apart mighty buildings and filled the city streets around this hallowed site. But not one pane of stained glass in the chapel windows was broken.

At Washington's National Cathedral, President George W. Bush spoke for America to the clerics of all faiths, to our national leaders and to the United Nations representatives assembled in the pews of the cathedral. He humbly prayed for guidance to lead this country and indeed the civilized world, into a new age of freedom from terror and tyranny.

We now realize that the splendor of this new millennium cannot be achieved if we do not meet this worldwide challenge to our very way of life. A challenge that heretofore existed only in shadows and darkness, but now is clear and visible and formidable. The task that lies ahead is a daunting task that will require courage, judgment, patience and—above all—perseverance. The American people are up to the task!

Let us pledge to each other our will, our commitment, our strength and our steadfast unity. Working together as one people, we can strive to meet the three primary goals of this great nation that are so eloquently described in the Declaration of Independence: That personal security of life without fear; the cherished freedoms of our individual and societal liberty; and, the profound enjoyment inherent in the pursuit of happiness and prosperity.

Our nation has issued a Call to Honor. The American people and our noble leaders have stood up bravely and answered the call. They have answered the call with their sacrifice, their deeds and their generosity. They have proudly proclaimed their unity by gathering together with the one and only tangible object that truly represents each one of us individually and all of us collectively—the Flag of the United States.

America United is no longer a slogan. America United is now a reality!

SPEECH BY COUNTY COMMISSIONER RON RANKIN OF KOOTENAI COUNTY, IDAHO

HON. C.L. "BUTCH" OTTER

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, December 11, 2001

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to bring to the attention of the House a recent speech by County Commissioner Ron Rankin of Kootenai County, Idaho. Ron is a veteran of the United States Marines and is a tireless defender, like all Idahoans, of the rights our veterans preserved for us through their devotion. This speech was given by Commissioner Rankin on the occasion of the dedication of a new veteran's memorial. I urge my colleagues to read this speech and remember the sacrifices our veterans made for us and the continued sacrifices being made today by our men and women in uniform. With the consent of the House I would like to insert that speech for the record.

KOOTENAI COUNTY VETERANS MEMORIAL WALL DEDICATION, NOVEMBER 10, 2001

(By Commissioner Ronald D. Rankin)

Once there was a nation of patriots, men, women, and children who loved their country, their flag, and their freedom, and the independence guaranteed by their divinely inspired United States Constitution. They honored their soldiers who fought to preserve their freedom and independence.

Then came the Korean War, the first war our country fought that we were politically prohibited from winning. This was followed by the Viet Nam War where hoards of drug crazed traitors cursed and spat upon combat veterans returning from a war that cost over 50 thousand casualties. Our fighting men and women were pilloried for the treasonous political decisions that protracted that war far longer than any other in our history.

That "hippie generation" is now being replaced by a generation which has never witnessed a war like those of the 20th Century—a generation that will determine the future of our country, our United States constitution, and our freedom.

They must be taught and reminded what American veterans have sacrificed for them to be able to live in freedom.

To that end, and through most generous private contributions, Kootenai County citizens are carving highlights of history into stone. A remembrance of some of the great moments in history that have molded and formed our futures.

Each of the fourteen laser-etched stone photo panels on this wall will represent a major military mark in history.

On the inside of the foyer/gallery, will be found separate pamphlets each describing a great event of military history.

One will describe in detail the infamous attack on Pearl Harbor, not the entire World War II but only Pearl Harbor. Another will describe in detail the barbaric Bataan Death March, where American prisoners of war were tortured, murdered and taken to Japan to work as slaves in the mines; another, the turning point of World War II in the Pacific—the Battle of Midway, where the sinking of so many Japanese aircraft carriers effectively broke the back of the Japanese fleet.

Iwo Jima; how that well known flag photograph came to be, and at what terrible cost.

The Navajo Code Talkers; American Indian patriots who saved the lives of thousands of their fellow Marines, sending and receiving combat messages in their ancient tongue that was undecipherable by Japanese intelligence.

A detailed account of the Battle of the Chosin Reservoir in 1950 in North Korea—an epic in Marine Corps history.

The epic landing at Normandy on "D" Day—1944.

The heroic 2nd Rangers scaling a 100 ft. cliff to take a German pill box at the top of the coastal cliffs of Normandy.

The Battle of the Bulge. The hard fought heroic battles that were the turning point in the war in Europe.

The air war over Europe and the heroes of the B-17's.

The emergence of helicopters and river gun boats as weapons of choice in Vietnam. These and more to be added, will be a source of unrevised history for our youth of future generations as well as some of our adults of today who have little knowledge of the sacrifice of our combat veterans past and present.

It is our resolve here today in dedicating this memorial wall, that our veterans will retake their places of honor and respect in the minds of those so blessed by the freedom they enjoy. A legacy of the sacrifices of the generations of patriots past and present who have worn the uniform of our country with pride and dedication to the principles we all hold dear.

May God Continue to Bless America in all of her righteous endeavors.

This I ask humbly in the name of Jesus Christ—Amen.

BIPARTISAN TRADE PROMOTION AUTHORITY ACT OF 2001

SPEECH OF

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 6, 2001

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 3005, the Trade Promotion Authority Act.

I certainly recognize the value of trade, but contrary to the claims of the GOP leadership and Administration, passing fast track is not just about trade and the economy. It's about health, human rights, consumer and environmental standards. Unfortunately, the Thomas "fast track" bill is a roadmap to undermining these standards globally.

As members of Congress, we have an important role in shaping future trade agreements. As the influence of trade extends to other areas including health, education, and the environment, we must ensure that trade agreements reflect the values and standards that we have worked so hard to uphold. If we pass H.R. 3005, we give up our authority to influence the content of future trade agreements, and we erode the government's ability to guard against direct attacks on the progress we have made. Even more important, we eliminate a crucial piece of the constitutional process by limiting democratic debate and stifling the voice of the people. That's undemocratic and it's not smart public policy.

The GOP leadership argues that passing H.R. 3005 is the patriotic thing to do. Make no mistake, "fast track" does not rebuild, it does not restore, it does not heal and it will not bring America together. Instead, by pushing this divisive issue forward, we are driving America and its government apart when what America needs is unity.

H.R. 3005 will not advance fair trade policies, but policies that are harmful to our nation and the world. We CAN foster trade while ensuring that American jobs, civil rights, and our natural resources are protected. We just can't accomplish this goal through the enactment of H.R. 3005. With its lack of enforcement measures, H.R. 3005 jeopardizes international environmental agreements, compromises job security for American workers and curbs economic growth. That's why I will continue to urge my colleagues to support free trade, but only when it's fair trade.
