

knowing the laws, assisting people in exercising their democratic right, having those kinds of poll workers assist us along with other professionals as well as the wonderful volunteers we have had to date.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is high time for us to be able to give the kind of credible evidence and the kind of respect for the election system that is long overdue in this Nation. There are many countries around the world that fight for the meager chance to cast their vote. There are many that do not have that chance. There are others who look to us for our leadership and many countries have had us as election monitors.

We can do no less for our citizens than to ensure that every vote counts, to ensure that we have a working system that allows every vote to count, to respect the military votes, to respect those who have done their time in prisons and now want to be the kind of citizens that will have their rights restored, to respect those who have registered and yet now are purged.

There are many things we can do to fix the election system. But I believe one that we can all rally around is the Ford-Carter commission. As I said, this national holiday will not be a shopping day. It will be a day of freedom, a day that we will recognize that every single American goes to the polls acknowledging and respecting our democracy.

When our men and women offer themselves for the ultimate sacrifice in the United States military, they do so so that freedom will reign. Support H.R. 934 as we move to the process of enhancing democracy in this Nation.

CELEBRATING THE CITY OF THOMASVILLE'S 150TH BIRTHDAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, the city of Thomasville, North Carolina, will celebrate its 150th birthday in 2002.

When one thinks of Thomasville, there are many things that come to mind: Thomasville Furniture Industries, the Big Chair, the Baptist Children's Orphanage, Everybody's Day, textiles, and high school football.

Thomasville was named for State Senator John W. Thomas, who helped pioneer the construction of the first railroad across North Carolina and, in 1852, created the town of Thomasville around the hustle and bustle of the State's first railroad. In 1857, Thomas finally obtained a charter for the town from the North Carolina General Assembly.

The town of Thomasville grew rapidly with wooden household furniture manufacturing becoming the mainstay of the local economy. Eventually, Thomasville became known as "The Chair Town" due to the fact that the products that the Thomasville Chair Company, which eventually became Thomasville Furniture Industries, were almost exclusively simple, sturdy, straight-back chairs.

Today, Thomasville remains an international center for furniture manufacturing; and Thomasville Furniture Industries, its leading manufacturer, has made the name Thomasville known around the globe.

In 1922, in an effort to take advantage of its reputation as "The Chair Town," Thomasville Chair Company erected a gigantic chair in the middle of the town square. The project kept three men working 20 hours a day for 1 week and took the same amount of lumber that would have been required to construct 100 ordinary chairs.

Unfortunately, after 15 years of exposure, the local chair was torn down in 1936. Due to the Depression and the advent of World War II, another chair was not built until 1948. In 1948, once again, Thomasville Chair Company spearheaded the effort to construct another chair, and a decision was made to construct a chair that would stand the test of time.

The concrete chair was a reproduction of the original Duncan Phyfe armchair. Today, the monument stands almost 30 feet high and overlooks the downtown square. In addition to the chair, downtown Thomasville is home to North Carolina's oldest railroad depot which today houses the Thomasville Visitors Center.

Another one of Thomasville's significant contributions is its commitment to the Mills Home Baptist Children's Orphanage, the largest orphanage in the South outside of Texas. The orphanage provides a wide array of very important children's services to the local and State communities.

One of the longest held traditions in Thomasville, Mr. Speaker, is Everybody's Day. We continue to observe it. The first Everybody's Day Festival was held in Thomasville in 1908 and is North Carolina's oldest festival.

In 1910, the Amazon Cotton Mill, one of the Cannon chain of textile mills, opened its doors as did the Jewell cotton mills that same year. Jewell was a result of investments contributed by local investors in the community. Both these mills served as a catalyst for what would become a very vibrant industry, which still exists today.

Last, but certainly not least, Thomasville is home to a long and rich high school football tradition, a tradition of champions begun under the days of Coach George Cushwa, a beloved coach and teacher. In fact, the current football stadium bears his name. Under Cushwa's tutelage emerged an individual in whom many place their hopes for continued success. This man, Coach Allen Brown, did not let the fans down.

Leading the Bulldogs to several State champions and guiding them through the maze of several conference realignments, he was always able to keep his team focused and the fans engaged, continuing in the great tradition of his predecessor.

Today, Mr. Speaker, the Bulldogs are led by yet another great leader and former quarterback, Benjie Brown, who follows in the footsteps of his dad, Allen Brown, and Coach Cushwa.

Needless to say, Mr. Speaker, Thomasville is a vibrant city whose future looms bright, and it is truly an honor for me to be able to recognize this fine city, the Chair Capital of the World on the House floor and wish it well as it begins its celebration for its 150th birthday next year.

TAKING ANOTHER LOOK AT SPRING VALLEY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, this morning's editorial in the Washington Post calls for a second look at Spring Valley. This is the area in an exclusive residential neighborhood in Washington, D.C., immediately adjacent to the American University campus, that was 83 years ago the site of American chemical weapons testing and production during World War I. It is one of over 1,000 sites across America where we have unexploded ordnance, military toxins, environmental waste left from the past.

I could not agree more with the Washington Post that it is time for a second look at what is happening in Spring Valley.

Last spring, the gentlewoman from Washington, D.C., (Ms. NORTON) and I led a group of media and concerned citizens to visit the site where we have saw the areas of the concentration of arsenic, the vacant child care center that had many, many times the level of recommended contaminants before it was vacated, that now stands empty where just a few months ago there were young children.

Or looking at the back yard of the Korean Ambassador that is all scratched away where they are trying even now after the second cleanup to finish the job.

Yes, it is time for a second look at the Spring Valley situation to see what happened, who knew the information, to see if people were adequately warned of the dangers. But I think there is a much larger issue here than the management of the Spring Valley site.

As I mentioned, this is one of over 1,000 sites across the country. Indeed, it is hard to find a congressional district that does not have at least one of these situations that is there dealing with a potential threat to the local environment.

It is important that Congress not be missing in action with the issue of unexploded ordnance, which has claimed 65 lives that we have known of, perhaps more, where we have no real understanding of how many thousands, how many hundreds of thousands indeed. Indeed, the estimates are that it could be as many as 50 million acres that are contaminated.

Until Congress gets on top of this issue, I fear that we are going to be putting the Department of Defense in a situation where, with an inadequate budget, they are given no choice but to go from hot spot to hot spot, from the focus of emergency from the media, political pressure or some other contingency forces their attention.

A much better approach is for us to take a comprehensive look. I would suggest that my colleagues join me in cosponsoring H.R. 2605, the Ordnance and Explosive Risk Management Act that calls for the identification of a single person who is in charge. Right now there is not a single point of contact.

It calls for increased work in terms of research so that we know how best to clean up these sites, that we do a comprehensive inventory so at least we know how big the problem is. Of course, we all need to make sure that we are adequately funding this problem.

People who followed this in the news noticed that American University has filed suit against the United States Government for almost $100 million in damages.

Ultimately, we were responsible for cleaning up after ourselves in terms of Federal Government. Those of us who care about promoting livable communities that make our families safe, healthy and economically secure and who believe that the single most powerful tool available to us is not new fees, new laws, new requirements, but rather the Federal Government led by this bill, modeling the behavior that we expect of other Americans whether they are families, businesses or local government.

We have an opportunity to do that right now in moving forward with legislation, with adequate funding to make sure that the toxic legacy of over a century of unexploded ordnance and environmental degradation is taken care of, is addressed, that we do clean up after ourselves.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues join me in support of H.R. 2605 and that we urge our colleagues on the Committee on Appropriations and the Armed Services Committee to make sure we are all doing our job, making the framework so that Congress is no longer missing in action on the issue of unexploded ordnance.

HONORING THE KABOOM! CORPORATION AND NASCAR FOR THEIR PUBLIC SERVICE CONTRIBUTIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. ISAKSON) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. Speaker, last night about 10 hours ago this Congress passed the VA-HUD appropriations bill for the year 2002. In so doing, we have appropriated billions of dollars to assist low- and moderate-income Americans in the purchase or rental of their housing.

Mr. Speaker, 13 years ago when George Herbert Walker Bush, the former President of this country, made his acceptance speech, he made a speech about the "Thousand Points of Light," those Americans who go unnoticed every day but do so much good for their fellow man without credit or without compensation.

Today in Washington, D.C., a point of light will shine brightly. Under the auspices of a not-for-profit playground construction company known as KaBOOM! In the Jetu Washington apartment complex where over 500 children reside, a new playground will be dedicated to improve the quality of life and the environment for those children, a safe, attractive and accessible playground. The KaBOOM! Corporation, over the course of many years, has built 270 playgrounds in America for disadvantaged children and assisted in the renovation of 1,200 such playgrounds.

They do so by partnering with the private sector to provide the manpower, the resources and the funding. I am pleased today to acknowledge the Home Depot Corporation and NASCAR, who have partnered to provide the manpower, the funding and the resources for the playground that will be built today.

I particularly want to pay tribute to the Home Depot Corporation. Its founders, Bernie Marcus and Arthur Blank, when they started their company not too many years ago in their first store, insisted on community participation on behalf of their employees, and themselves were philanthropic in the gifts of their money to support good causes.

Last year alone the Home Depot Foundation donated $75 million in America for our at-risk youth, for their recreation and their quality of life, and for their health care. They truly are points of light that make our community better.

So as last night we celebrated the expenditure of billions of dollars in taxpayer money to assist Americans, let us also pay tribute today to the untold billions of dollars in manpower, man-hours and actual money donated by those points of light in America who for no reason but the goodness of their hearts make the quality of life for the less fortunate better.

Today in Washington, D.C. that will happen at the Jetu Apartment complex thanks to the not-for-profit company, KaBOOM!, the for-profit companies of NASCAR and Home Depot, two points of light that will make a difference in the lives of hundreds of children.

IN SUPPORT OF CLEAN PATIENTS' BILL OF RIGHTS LEGISLATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, many of us know now that the Republican leadership postponed any debate or vote on the patients' bill of rights, the HMO reform even though it was scheduled for last week. Now, of course, we are hearing that it may come up this week perhaps as early as Thursday, later on this week.

Mr. Speaker, I mention it because myself and many other Democrats have come to the floor frequently over the last year, and perhaps over the last 2 or 3 years, demanding that we have an opportunity for a clean vote on a real patients' bill of rights because we know of the problems that Americans and our constituents face with abuses when they are in the managed care system, where they have an HMO as their insurer.

What I fear though, Mr. Speaker, from the pronouncements that we are hearing from the Republican leadership is that there will not be an opportunity for a vote on HMO reform unless they have the votes for a weaker version of HMO reform or they call it the patients' bill of rights than what the majority of the Members of this House have been seeking.

The majority of the Members of the House, almost every Democrat and a significant number of Republicans, in the last session of Congress voted for a very strong patients' bill of rights, the one sponsored by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), who is a Democrat and also by some Republicans, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE), and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), who are Republicans.

It is very important that the opportunities be presented here in the House if it is going to happen this week to have a clean vote on the real patients' bill of rights.

I think it is crucial that my colleagues and the public understand that there is a difference between some of the different versions that have been sort of circulating around this Chamber, and to suggest that we are going to have a vote on the patients' bill of rights but not have the opportunity to deal with the really effective strong one, I think would be a major mistake.

Let me give an example of the differences and why I think it is important that we have a vote on the real bill, on the one that is going to make a difference for the average American.

President Bush has said over and over again that he does not support a real patients' bill of rights. He does not support the Dingell-Ganske-Norwood bill because, first of all, there will be
