

"The volunteers can bring the compassion element that police officers cannot offer because their (the police) job is to solve the crime by asking a lot of questions that may make family members uncomfortable and, many times, the clues to solving a crime may lead us back to the family," Rice said.

Barfield, a former City of Detroit accounting department employee, said she was always troubled by reports of the growing number of Detroit youth who were shot and, often, fatally wounded by handguns.

The 1986 death of her son, Derick, 16, and that of many other Detroit youth moved Barfield to create the organization which has been featured in newspapers and magazines across the country, including Essence, Ebony and People magazines.

HUNDREDS HELPED

In the last 14 years, the group has helped hundreds of families through the grieving process with counseling and support groups that meet weekly.

There also is a 24-hour crisis hotline in which volunteers provide immediate response to families in need.

Since 1988, the group has held an annual public memorial service that is open to anyone wanting to light a candle in memory of someone killed. This year's service will be held from 4-6 p.m. March 17 at the Cobo Center.

The group also hosts an annual appreciation breakfast, usually during National Crime Victim Rights week, the last week in April, to give accolades and the Angel of Mercy Award to emergency room medical staff, homicide investigators, funeral directors and morgue personnel.

NOMINATION OF GALE NORTON

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the nomination of Gale Norton as this country's next Interior Secretary.

While I have some disagreements with some of Ms. Norton's positions, I believe that she represented herself well in the nomination hearings that we held in the Energy Committee.

I indicated during those hearings that if I felt she were another James Watt I could never vote for her "in a million years." I say that because, two decades ago, James Watt came to town as a newly appointed Interior Secretary and very quickly began to take both positions and actions that were, in my opinion, destructive to the interests that I value with respect to the stewardship of public lands in our country. Because Gale Norton was a protege of James Watt, and because she has spoken and written extensively on a range of issues, we questioned her very closely during her confirmation hearing on a wide range of important issues that will confront the new Secretary of the Interior.

Her responses to some tough inquiries during the hearings demonstrated to me that she is qualified to be Interior Secretary and that the views she holds, while in some cases controversial, are well within the norm of the political discussions we're having in Washington about a wide range of these issues.

I want Gale Norton to do an excellent job as Interior Secretary and pledge my cooperation to help make that happen. At the same time, I want her to know that those of us on the Energy Committee take very seriously the representations she made during the confirmation hearings on a wide range of matters. She will find those of us on the Committee who have now voted for her confirmation to be helpful in her job of meeting the stewardship responsibilities of the Secretary of the Interior. But she should understand that she will find us to be severe critics if the representations she made to us during the Committee hearings turn out to be not in keeping with the way she conducts herself as Interior Secretary.

I will be particularly interested in working with Ms. Norton on several issues important to North Dakota and the Nation. For example, I will work to ensure that Ms. Norton provides protection for our National Parks, public lands and environmentally-sensitive areas.

Native Americans are particularly important to me. During the hearing, Ms. Norton said she respects tribal sovereignty. She should adopt a cooperative approach to include the relevant tribal stakeholders in policy and regulatory decision making. She also committed to work with us to make progress in meeting the critical funding needs for tribal schools and colleges.

I will count on Ms. Norton to adopt a sound scientific basis for her policy decisions on actions pertaining to endangered species, the global climate, energy issues and more.

Again, I wish her well and pledge my cooperation as she begins her duties following her confirmation today. She clearly has the skill and capability to do well as Interior Secretary if she pursues a balanced set of policies that conform to the positions she took when she appeared before our Committee.

TRIBUTE TO TERRY BRAGG

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize a brave and hard-working Ohioan by the name of Terry Bragg. Terry has been a life-long resident of McConnellsville, where he has spent the last 39 years as a member of the Malta-McConnellsville Fire Department. During nearly 40 years of tireless dedication to his community, Terry has served as a firefighter, Assistant Fire Chief, and for the last 32 years, as the department's Fire Chief.

I recognize Terry today for his commitment to protecting his community from devastating fires. People like Terry Bragg, who risk their lives daily on our behalf, command great respect and deserve our deep and sincere thanks.

I cannot overstate just how important Terry's job of fire fighting and prevention education is to our families and communities. Overall, fire is responsible for killing more Americans than all natural disasters combined. Every 18 seconds, a fire department responds to a fire somewhere in the United States. In 1998, there were 4,035 civilian fire deaths—that's one death every 130 minutes. And sadly, many of those who die each year in fires are children.

To help support Terry and every firefighter in Ohio and across America as they work to protect our families and children, I sponsored the Firefighter Investment Act, which provides a vital federal investment to the courageous men and women who make up our local fire departments. I am please do report that we successfully included my bill as a provision in the recently-passed Fiscal Year 2001 Department of Defense Appropriations bill. The funding that will be made available as a result will help local fire departments and firefighters, just like Terry Bragg and the Malta-McConnellsville Fire Department, to continue carrying out their life-saving missions.

Over the years, Terry Bragg has received many, many awards and special recognitions. He has received three medals for bravery, and in 1997, the Ohio Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars named him "Ohio Firefighter of the Year." He received the Bob and Delores Hope "Good Samaritan Award," the "M&M Firefighter of the Year Award," and the Ohio Masonic Grand Master's "Community Service Award."

Not only is Terry a dedicated Fire Chief, he is a strong community leader; volunteer; businessman; and loving husband, father, and grandfather. Indeed, Terry Bragg is a role model for whom we all can be proud.

I thank him for his past, present, and future service to his community, to Ohio, and to our nation.

TRIBUTE TO THE LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES AND COMMUNITIES INVOLVED IN THE APPREHENSION OF THE TEXAS SEVEN

• Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, today I want to take a few minutes to recognize the efforts of everyone involved in the capture of the Texas fugitives that ended one of the largest manhunts this national has ever seen. As you know, the last two of the seven Texas inmates that escaped from a maximum security prison in Kenedy, Texas on December 13th surrendered on January 24th in Colorado Springs, Colorado. This can be attributed to the exemplary work done by the local and federal law enforcement agencies involved as well as the communities of Woodland Park and Colorado Springs. This was a cooperative effort that saw the pooling of all the resources available and resulted in a peaceful conclusion.

There cannot be enough said about the work that was done by the law enforcement agencies involved. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, The Colorado Springs office of the Bureau of Alcohol and Firearms, the U.S. Marshals office, the Texas authorities, the Teller County Sheriffs office, the El Paso County Sheriffs office, the Colorado Springs Police Department, the Woodland Park Police Department and the Colorado State Patrol did a tremendous job of working together to apprehend the seven fugitives.

The effort and support of the residents of Woodland Park and Colorado Springs can't be overlooked. We need to commend people like Wade Holder and Eric Singer. Mr. Holder resides in Woodland Park and is the owner of the RV park where the fugitives were hiding out. He called in a tip to the local authorities after seeing pictures of the fugitives on the America's Most Wanted Web Site. KKTU's Colorado Springs news anchor Eric Singer helped negotiators by conducting a telephone interview with the last two fugitives in order to assure a peaceful surrender. These are just a couple of examples of how the two communities contributed to the successful manhunt.

In all of this we should not forget that two law enforcement agents lost their lives in this investigation. Irving, Texas Officer Aubrey Hawkins and Colorado State Trooper Jason Manspeaker both died in the line of duty. Officer Hawkins was brutally shot 11 times and killed by one of the fugitives while responding to a robbery of a sporting goods store in Irving Texas on December 24th. Colorado State Trooper Jason Manspeaker was killed when he crashed his Jeep Cherokee Squad car into a heavy equipment trailer on U.S. Highway 6 in Colorado. The crash occurred while chasing a vehicle suspected of harboring the last two fugitives on January 23rd. Both Officer Hawkins and State Trooper Manspeaker paid the ultimate price for our freedom. My wife Joan and I offer all our compassion, our sympathy and our prayers to the families of both victims.●

LORETTA SYMMS

● Mr. REID. Mr. President, I come to the Senate floor today to express my regret that Loretta Symms will soon retire as Deputy Sergeant at Arms. I would also like to congratulate her on a long and distinguished career.

During her 22 years of service on Capitol Hill, Loretta gained the respect of Senators and Congressman from both sides of the aisle. Her creativity and dedication to improving the inner-workings of the Senate have made her an invaluable asset to the institution and she will be dearly missed by all.

Loretta started her career on Capitol Hill in 1978 working for then-Congressman Steve Symms as executive assistant and office manager. In 1981, after Congressman Symms was elected to the Senate, Loretta became his executive secretary and office manager. In 1987, Senator Dole appointed Loretta as the Republican representative to the Sergeant at Arms.

As Director of the Capitol Facilities Department, she reinvented the Facilities Department providing career ladders, formal position descriptions, instituted reading programs, basic computer classes for employees, and training programs. Working closely with the Secretary of the Senate's office, Loretta has been actively involved in the oversight and management of the Senate Page Program. For example, Loretta participated in the renovation and opening of Webster Hall, the Senate Page dormitory, and the Senate Page School.

During her tenure as Deputy Sergeant at Arms, Loretta worked closely with the Assistant Secretary of the Senate to create the Joint Office of Education and Training which provides a wide variety of professional seminars and training for the staff of Senate Offices and Committees. As every Senator can attest, this office has become an invaluable resource. In 1996, Senator LOTT named Loretta Deputy Sergeant at Arms, the post in which she still serves. As Deputy, Loretta has managed the day to day operations of more than 770 employees.

Loretta is married to former Senator Steve Symms. They have 7 children and 10 grandchildren. Her retirement will allow her to fulfill her dreams of traveling and spending more time with her grandchildren. Loretta's impact on the institution of the Senate is greatly appreciated and will be remembered for a long time to come. But most impatiently to this Senator is the many acts of kindness in the most professional manner that Loretta was extended to me. For her many acts I will always be grateful.●

TRIBUTE TO BEN AUGELLO

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to honor Ben Augello of Weare, New Hampshire, an elementary school principal whose devotion to education serves as an inspiration for his colleagues and students alike. Recently named Elementary Principal of the Year by the New Hampshire Association of School Principals, Ben is known for his incomparable listening skills.

Ben's lifelong dream since childhood to become a teacher began in New York where he taught science to middle school students. He had a special talent for making every student feel valued and special.

Ben has been the principal of the Center Woods Elementary School in Weare, New Hampshire, since 1991. He oversaw the construction of the school and has also spearheaded development of the school's inclusionary model. Mr. Augello is an enthusiastic administrator who exudes a warmth and openness that permeates the school.

Married for thirty-seven years, Ben and his wife Bunny have two children: Christine, a resident of Nashua, and Peter, who resides in Florida. Ben's hobbies include cooking and traveling throughout the United States and Europe.

Ben Augello is a tribute to his community and profession. It is an honor and a privilege to represent him in the United States Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO DEBBIE JANS

● Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, when I first came back to Washington, DC as a Senator-elect in December of 1996 for freshman orientation, one of the first people I met was a young lady who I was told I had to get to know if I was to be able to successfully get around the august halls of the Senate. She was then the Director of the Congressional Special Services Office that provided assistance to Capitol visitors and staff with disabilities. What I did not know at the time, but soon learned, was that she had been working for years to help move both Houses of Congress toward compliance with the landmark Americans with Disabilities Act. What I also didn't know at first, but learned almost immediately was that this young lady, Deborah Kerrigan Jans—known to all as Debbie—once worked for that great Senator Hubert Humphrey and that in addition to Minnesota ties she shared with Senator Humphrey a great fondness for the spoken word! In spite of that, or perhaps because of it, I soon found that Debbie had made herself indispensable to the conduct of my activities as a United States Senator and I quickly signed her on to my staff to coordinate my scheduling and advance work in the Senate. Part of her role was described very well in an August 1999 article in Esquire magazine:

He (Cleland) has one staffer, Deborah Jans, who advances his schedule to make sure he can get there. She is a dervish, racing in and out of men's rooms to make sure the doors on the stalls open out and not in, looking everywhere for ramps and elevators, measuring doorways for the chair. . . . So she goes, and she measures, and she checks—a whirlwind advancing a kind of rolling thunder.

Today, Debbie is retiring after 25 years of service to the Senate and to Congress. Prior to her excellent work for me, Debbie served as Director of the Congressional Special Services Office, Manager of the Senate Special Services Office, and Tour Guide with the U.S. Capitol Guide Service. These positions allowed her to share her love of the Capitol with visitors, providing a political, historical and architectural orientation to our magnificent institution. As I previously mentioned, in the latter part of this service, her role was extended to providing support and services to Capitol visitors and staff with disabilities. The innovative programs that she managed included special tours for individuals with disabilities, sign language interpreting, wheelchair loans, development of Braille materials, as well as classes and seminars for Congressional staff on disability issues.

Debbie and her husband Ron, who is a wonderful fellow himself and has had the opportunity to develop tremendous listening skills during his years with
