IN RECOGNITION OF FIRST NATIONAL THROCKMORTON REUNION

---

HON. DEBORAH PRYCE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the first national Throckmorton Reunion, to be held in Williamsburg, Virginia from June 16th through the 20th. The Throckmorton family's legacy in the United States is as storied and proud as any lineage in our nation's history. From the settlement of Jamestown in 1607 to the present, the Throckmorton name has embodied public service and patriotism. They were involved in the founding of our country from early colonial times through the Revolution, into the Civil War and Reconstruction. Throckmortons from around the U.S. will meet in the colonial city of Williamsburg to celebrate their illustrious heritage and retrace the steps of their forefathers as founders of Virginia and Colonial America.

Their story in America begins with the travels of Kellam Throckmorton to Jamestown, Virginia in 1607. Kellam was among the settlers of England's first colonial establishment on our soil. Kellam was sadly among the brave adventurers who did not survive the harsh winter of that first year in Virginia. Even Sir Walter Raleigh, a founder of Virginia, was connected to the Throckmortons; marrying Elizabeth Throckmorton the daughter of Queen Elizabeth's Ambassador to France. The next chapter of the Throckmorton legacy was the following generation and the travels of John Throckmorton with Roger Williams. Admitted as a Freeman on May 18, 1631 in Salem, Mass., John, along with Williams, settled most of Rhode Island and other parts of New England in the 1630's and 40's.

Several family members were guests of George and Martha Washington's and served under him in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War. Families such as the Throckmortons are more than worthy of recognition for their immeasurable sacrifices to our nation's birth and cause.

The Civil War era saw two prominent politicians and soldiers from this family. James Webb Throckmorton was a soldier in the Mexican War and a Confederate general from Texas. He worked closely with American hero Sam Houston as a Texas state senator leading up to the war. Although he fought for the South, Throckmorton was one of seven delegates who voted against the 1861 Texas Secession Convention. After the war, James Webb Throckmorton was elected governor of Texas and later served for over a decade in the House of Representatives before his passing in 1894. This era also includes the services of Oliver Hazard Perry Throckmorton as Governor of Indiana and as a close advisor of President Ulysses S. Grant in 1872. Oliver Throckmorton served as an American envoy to Great Britain as well.

More recently, the proactive work of Mrs. Clare McLaren-Throckmorton and Dr. Caroline Throckmorton Lewin, a psychologist from my district in Ohio, has been commendable. It's important to remember the bravery and service of others to our country throughout history. The Throckmorton reunion in Williamsburg, Virginia is a gathering of a great American family and a salute to times past. I'm confident that generations from now the Throckmortons will continue to be a proud family of patriots. It's my honor and privilege to recognize the Throckmorton family, and extend my best wishes to them all. The United States is in their debt.

IN HONOR OF THE HEROISM OF JOHNNY SHERRILL

---

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE

OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to pay tribute to and honor the heroism of a brave civil servant, Mr. Johnny Sherrill of New Castle, Delaware. His bravery and heroic actions resulted in a life being saved.

Mr. Sherrill, a mail carrier with the United States Postal Service, deserves a hero's recognition for his actions that save the life of 95-year-old Elsmere resident Almira Francisco. While on his delivery route, Mr. Sherrill heard a smoke detector alarm and noticed smoke coming from Mrs. Francisco's residence. Mr. Sherrill alertly checked on the residence, escorted Mrs. Francisco safely outside, and called the Elsmere Fire Department. After waiting for emergency personnel to arrive, Mr. Sherrill simply continued on with his delivery route.

Mr. Sherrill displayed a quality that all Delawareans should look for in a role model—selfless concern for fellow citizens. We should all hope to emulate Mr. Sherrill's actions. In times like these, America needs everyday heroes who display courage and bravery when called upon to help their fellow citizens. I am proud to say that Mr. Sherrill exemplified these qualities with his actions, and his recognition, Mr. Speaker, is duly deserved.

Ordinary people, like Johnny Sherrill from my great State of Delaware, are the true heroes in today's world, and are the true role models for the next generation of leaders, both inside and outside of Delaware's borders.

TRIBUTE TO MR. ANDREW KAMEI

---

HON. MICHAEL M. HONDA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of the achievement of Mr. Andrew Kamei of Bishop, California. Andrew Kamei was awarded first place in the Junior Historical Research Paper category at the California State History Day competition held in San Jose, California. Having accomplished this, Andrew has earned the honor of representing California in the National History Day Competition this month, an event honoring the scholarship and creativity of students across the nation.

Andrew Kamei is a 12-year-old seventh grader with an inspirational work ethic and a remarkable understanding of history. His award winning research paper, titled "In Times of War the Laws are Silent: The Fair Play Committee, Heart Mountain Relocation Camp, Wyoming, 1944" is a written testament to these qualities. The paper describes the experiences of the Fair Play Committee, a group of Japanese Americans who were sentenced to extended terms in federal prison for refusing to appear for draft induction while being held in internment camps as potential enemies of the United States.

The sixty-three members of the Fair Play Committee unanimously agreed to serve in the military on the condition that their constitutional rights be restored, a remarkable historical event that Andrew Kamei explored with tremendous determination. By talking to former internees, scouring state archives, and meeting with surviving members of the Fair Play Committee, Andrew has put together a research paper of the highest caliber. Furthermore, Andrew draws on his own experiences as a Japanese American and the son of a man born into internment to give his work an added depth and gravity. The result is an important historical document worthy of competing in the National History Day Competition.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Andrew Kamei for his spirited pursuit of academic excellence and historical perspective. Balancing national security and civil liberties is an important issue, one that Andrew can continue to study and apply to what will certainly be a bright academic and professional future.

IN HONOR OF THE 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF TEMPLE EMANU-EL

---

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the 90th Anniversary of Bayonne's Temple Emanu-El. This momentous event took place on Sunday, June 9, 2002, at Temple Emanu-El, and featured the television personalities, "The God Squad", Msgr. Thomas Harman and Rabbi Marc Gellman.

Initially formed in 1911 as a response to the Conservative Movement of America, Temple Emanu-El, with its modern outlook, has served and continues to serve as a inviting place of worship for Bayonne's Jewish community. In a departure from the Orthodox practice, in 1913, it was decided that men and women should sit together, demonstrating the Temple's enlightened vision, as well as its commitment to the congregation.

The Temple's first President was Hyman Lazarus, followed by many outstanding leaders, all of whom contributed greatly to making Temple Emanu-El the esteemed place of worship it is today. The Temple's first building was purchased in 1912 and completed in 1913. In 1953, the building was completely renovated, and continues to serve as the congregation's meeting place.

Over the past nine decades, Temple Emanu-El has established itself as Bayonne's leading Jewish religious institution with a beautiful house of worship, exceptional religious instruction for its students, and countless social functions for its congregants and their family and friends.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Temple Emanu-El for ninety years of Jewish religious guidance, the congregation's contributions to the community of Bayonne, and its success at making Bayonne a more prosperous and spiritual community.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO DANNY COLLINS

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a man whose unrelenting spirit, and passion for life, have personally touched me during our many years of friendship: Danny Collins. I grew up with Danny and have been impressed by his infectious joy since we first met. Danny's ongoing struggle with the effects of Down Syndrome has been an inspiration to me from a very young age; to watch him undertake this battle with a constant smile on his face has been a reminder of the many ways in which we all take our lives for granted.

Danny was born in Glenwood Springs, CO, in 1953, though he was raised for much of his early life in nearby Carbondale. At the age of ten, Danny Collins returned to Glenwood Springs, where we both spent our childhood. From a young age, it was clear that Danny was a very special person. Though he has Down Syndrome, Danny has been a constant source of light in the lives of others: he has never allowed his challenges to dampen his contagious spirit for life.

In 1978, Danny became a client at Mountain Valley Developmental Services of Glenwood Springs, where he received invaluable care and attention from their many skilled practitioners. He moved into their first group home on Hager Lane and benefited from the camaraderie and love that Mountain Valley Developmental Services had to offer. Danny currently works as a weaver at Mountain Valley

Weavers, where he has developed remarkable skill in the trade, adding a little piece of himself to each item he weaves.

Having spent his entire life in Colorado, Danny has been an avid Denver Broncos football fan for many years. Like many Broncos fans, Danny is an admirer of former Quarterback John Elway. To express his love and appreciation for Elway and his exploits on the field, Danny recently wove bright orange mug mats and a glass case for John Elway and his family—yet another example of Danny's big heart and selfless nature.

Mr. Speaker, I bring my friend Danny Collins to the attention of this body of Congress not because of the particular accomplishments he has achieved during the course of his life, but rather for the infectious spirit and indomitable will that have been his hallmark since childhood. I am proud to pay tribute to a good friend and fellow Coloradan. The love and joy that Danny reflects was absorbed from his caring family who have swarmed around him like angels from the time he was young. Though Danny's parents have sadly passed away recently, I know their affection for Danny lives on in the lives of his three siblings. I echo their admiration for Danny as I pay tribute to him today here on the floor of this distinguished Chamber—he is a truly remarkable man.

CELEBRATING THE BIRTH OF HARRISON BECKETT LAZAR

HON. VAN HILLEARY

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Speaker, over 2,000 years ago, Cicero, the Roman statesman, philosopher and politician, noted, "Of all nature's gifts to the human race, what is sweeter to a man than his children?" A rhetorical question of course to which the answer is nothing. It remains as true today as it was when Cicero said it two millennia ago.

Children are the greatest gift God can bestow upon us. They bring pride and joy, humility and unconditional love and so much more. Most of what we do is fleeting, but the values and principles we teach our children are lasting. Whatever we may do in life, our children and their progeny are our most important legacy.

Craig and Andrea Lazar welcomed their first child into the world last week. Harrison Beckett Lazar arrived at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday, May 30.

His life will be enriched by a large and caring extended family. Harrison's maternal grandparents are Christine Hessong and Keith Hessong. His paternal grandparents are Charles Lazar, and Linda Lazar. Harrison has five great-grandparents: Don and Angus Hessong, Max and Helen Beloff and Katherine Lazar.

I join them in celebrating the birth of Harrison Beckett Lazar. Harrison's birth, as does those of all children born today, holds the promise of our future. We welcome him to a world that we constantly strive to make better so his future will be a little brighter, more secure and full of promise, and so when the time comes when his own child is born, he may revel in the sweetest gift that can be bestowed upon us.

CHILD HEALTH CARE
AFFORDABILITY

HON. RON PAUL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, June 11, 2002

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to help working Americans provide for their children's health care needs by introducing the Child Health Care Affordability Act. The Child Health Care Affordability Act provides parents with a tax credit of up to $500 for health care expenses of dependent children. Parents caring for a child with a disability, terminal disease, cancer, or any other health condition requiring specialized care would receive a tax credit of up to $3,000 to help cover their child's health care expenses. The tax credit would be available to all citizens regardless of whether or not they itemize their deductions.

The tax credits provided in this bill will be especially helpful to those Americans whose employers cannot afford to provide their employees health insurance. These workers must struggle to meet the medical bills of themselves and their families. This burden is especially heavy on, parents whose children have a medical condition, such as cancer or a physical disability, which requires long-term or specialized health care.

As an OB-GYN who has had the privilege of delivering more than four thousand babies, I know how important it is that parents have the resources to provide adequate health care for their children. The inability of many working Americans to provide health care for their children is rooted in one of the great inequities of the tax code: Congress' failure to allow individuals the same ability to deduct health care costs that it grants to businesses. As a direct result of Congress' refusal to provide individuals with health care related tax credits, parents whose employers do not provide health insurance have to struggle to provide health care for their children. Many of these parents work in low-income jobs; oftentimes their only recourse to health care is the local emergency room.

Sometimes parents are forced to delay seeking care for their children until minor health concern that could have been easily treated become serious problems requiring expensive treatment! If these parents had access to the type of tax credits provided in the Child Health Care Affordability Act, they would be better able to provide care for their children, and our nation's already overcrowded emergency room facilities would be relieved of the burden of having to provide routine care for people who otherwise cannot afford it.

According to research on the effects of this bill done by my staff and legislative counsel, the benefit of these tax credits would begin to be felt by joint filers with incomes slightly above $18,000 dollars a year, or single income filers with incomes slightly above $15,000 per year. Clearly this bill will be of the most benefit to low-income Americans balancing the demands of taxation with the needs of their children.

Under the Child Health Care Affordability Act, a struggling single mother with an asthmatic child would at last be able to provide for her child's needs; while a working-class family will not have to worry about how they will pay the bills if one of their children requires
